JAPAN SWELLS ARMY BY 10,000 NEAR SHANGHAI

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY DEMANDS DRAFTED

Calls on 2 Nations to Stop Hostilities; Japanese Are Ordered to Leave.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai (Saturday), March 5.—The Japanese army of occupation in control of a wide area about Shanghai was increased today by 10,000 reinforcements.

As the men were landed from their transports the battle area was generally quiet—although there were reports of an action at Taitsang, 25 miles northwest of Shanghai—but this war-weary city was disturbed by a Chinese government announcement that the latest Japanese peace terms had been rejected.

Army units totaling 8,000 men were landed during the last 24 hours at Liuho on the southern bank of the Yangtze, and 2,000 more were put ashore at Woosung. It was understood that bluejackets who had been on duty in those areas were returning to their ships.

Japanese Attack Reported.

Official Chinese advices from Taitsang late yesterday said the Japanese Eleventh Division had attacked the Chinese forces there and that a severe battle was under way, adding that the Chinese were putting up stiff resistance.

Low Wen Kan, the Nanking foreign minister, was the authority for rejection of the new Japanese series of demands, which have been characterized by the Chinese as meaning simply a complete surrender.

Japanese military and naval officials denied that fighting was taking place around Taitsang despite reports from travelers that they had heard the rumble of artillery. The same authorities said they did not care to discuss the rejection of Japanese demands by the Chinese.

Claim Hostilities Halted.

This was the way the Japanese put it:

"The Japanese forces are maintaining the same positions as yesterday, calling a halt to their hostilities and concentrating their units within an area east of a line drawn between Nanziang and Kating." (This in effect would be a consolidation of the Japanese positions around the 12½-mile limit imposed by their recent ultimatum.)

If China has rejected the Japanese demands, the Japanese military officials expressed the opinion that the situation was deadlocked and that the military would likely maintain its defense lines around Shanghai indefinitely.

Thousands Are Homeless.

In the absence of the din of war in this immediate vicinity, the city began to note opening shops and started out to survey the devastation in Chapei, Paoshan, Woosung, Kiangwan and other nearby points. What to do with the hundreds of thousands of homeless refugees encamped within the International Settlement and the French Concession gave relief societies and authorities a pressing problem.

Among the refugees are 125,000 women and 20,000 children mill workers as well as many hundreds of

Wheat Relief Bill Ready for Signing

Senate Agrees to House Amendment on Plan to Feed Hungry.

(Associated Press.)

Congressional action was completed yesterday on a bill to give 40,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat to the Red Cross for the needy and for live stock feed when the Senate agreed to a House amendment.

The action was taken late in the day by an oral vote. The bill now goes to the White House.

The House had put into one measure bills previously passed by the Senate, one of which provided 40,000,000 for human needs and the other 5,000,000 for feed for live stock in the Northwest drought areas, while leaving the total provided 40,000,000 bushels. This was the amendment to which the Senate agreed.

Stock Market Quiz Ordered by Senate; Will Start Tuesday

Administration Charges That Professional Speculators Have Hammered Securities at Expense of Returning Prosperity Will be Investigated; $50,000 Expense Authorized.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday ordered a thorough investigation of stock market manipulations and the banking committee will begin the gigantic task on Tuesday.

Administration charges that professional speculators have been driving down security prices for personal gain and at the expense of returning prosperity will be the first objective of the committee's inquiry.

But the bulls who pushed stock prices to record heights in 1928 and 1929, as well as the bears who are charged now with retarding economic recovery, will be subjected to the searching examination of the Senate inquisitors.

The Senate acted with speed and without ceremony in ordering the investigation, as asked in a resolution drafted Thursday by the banking committee.

Senator Townsend (Republican), Delaware, the chairman of the audit committee, presented the resolution with the committee's approval of $50,000 outlay for their inquiry. It was considered immediately by the Senate and adopted by unanimous consent.

Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, the chairman of the banking committee, promptly called a special meeting for Tuesday to outline plans for the investigation. Special investigators probably will be employed, he said. Both Senator Norbeck and Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, who demanded an inquiry particularly into "bear raids," expressed the view that the committee very likely would give first attention to these oprations.

There was a strong intimation from some of the committee mem-

REDS VERIFY TROOP MASSING ON BORDER

Moscow, March 4 (A.P.).—Soviet Rursia admitted today she was concentrating an army near the Far-Eastern Siberian border to defend herself "against a Japanese attack."

The admission was made in the government organ Izvestia and was inspired by a statement of the Tokyo foreign office on February 29.

As published here the foreign office statement quoted the Japanese Consul in Vladivostok as saying that Soviet Russia was concentrating large bodies of troops and munitions there and predicting a "collision" soon between Japan and Russia.

Asserting that the Japanese information was obtained from "foreigners" in Vladivostok, the newspaper said that the Japanese report clearly showed "specific provocative aims" and that it was unnecessary to deny the prediction of a collision.

"It is much more interesting to note that Japanese politicians are trying to use information from 'poisoned wells' instead of being more attentive to facts as exemplified in our consecutive (consistent?) peace policy," Izvestia said.

"We have no reason to conceal the fact that conditions in the Far East, emphasized by such facts, compel the Soviet Union to strengthen its defensive capacity and the safety of its border, particularly by increasing the army near the Far Eastern borders.

"The most we can do is to adopt all possible measures to defend out frontier against outside attacks."

This first official admission that Russia is engaged in defensive maneuvers was also inspired by documents attributed to high Japanese military officials. These documents, the newspaper said, proposed not only the invasion of Siberia but a combination with other nations in an attack on the Soviet Union.

Izvestia concluded that these documents compelled Russia to "pay strict attention to everything that is happening in the Far East."

JAPANESE CROESUS MURDERED IN TOKYO

Tokyo (Saturday) March 5 (A.P.).—Baron Takuma Dan, managing director of the vast Mitsui commercial interests, died shortly after noon today from wounds inflicted by an assassin.

He was attacked as he alighted from an automobile in front of the Mitsui Bank. Whether he was stabbed or shot could not immediately be learned from the police authorities.

The assailant, who was arrested at the scene of the attack, was identified as Goro Hishinuma, 21, whose home is in the Ibaraki prefecture, a rural district north of Tokyo.

The baron was widely known among American business men with important interests in the Far East. He came to this country in 1921 as the leader of a group of Japanese business men whose mission was to improve commercial relations between the two countries.

The house of Mitsui is by far the richest business organization in the oriental world. It controls mines, banks railroads, steamship lines, factories and commercial houses of all sorts.

Woman Scoops Up Cash As Men Hold Up Bank

Seattle, March 4 (A.P.).—A woman robbed the People's North Seattle Bank of about $5,000 today, aided by two men. She was described as about 30 years old, wearing a blue sweater and a dark dress.

The manager, H. S. Penrose, and two depositors were in the bank when the men entered.

"This is a stick-up. Don't say anything," they threatened. The woman ran in and scooped up the money. Her retreat was covered by her companions, who carried pistols.

Willie Reynolds, River Hero, Dies as Blaze Razes Home

Fireman Takes Body From Burning House Near Canoe Storage Building; Veteran Boatman Had Saved Many Lives in Various Craft Upsets.

John William Reynolds, better known as "Cap'n Willie," hero of a score of rescues from the Potomac and known to most Washington canoeists, was burned to death last night when fire wrecked his home on the river front just below Key Bridge.

"Cap'n" Reynolds was the operator of Reynolds' boathouse, where hundreds of canoes belonging to Washington boatmen were stored. The flames did not menace the storage house and wharf above the Aqueduct Bridge, however.

The charred body was found near the door of his three-room house, about 150 yards down the river, where he lived and kept his bait. He had apparently attempted to grope his way through the smoke to the door when the fire broke out, but was overcome, as his head was found almost touching the door.

Flames were leaping high from the house when they were noticed by a taxi driver, who gave the alarm. The cabman said he attempted to enter the house to warn the occupants, but was driven back by the heat. He gave the alarm to No. 5 engine and Reynolds' body was taken from the still blazing house by Lieut. J. H. Davidson. Taken to Emergency

NEW TAX BILL SHAPING; LEVY ON SALES SET

INCOME ASSESSMENT RATE TO BE BOOSTED

Manufactured Articles Will Pay 2.25 Per Cent; Goes to Floor Monday.

(Associated Press.)

The structure of the new revenue bill, with a broad manufacturers sales tax as its foundation, is near completion.

Construction of the measure, designed to balance the Federal budget in 1933, came fast yesterday after the House ways and means committee decided the rate of the sales tax would be 2.25 per cent.

This rate was approved following several days of controversy that had delayed progress on the bill. It is estimated by committee members that $625,000,000 will be derived from this new revenue source. The vote was 20 to 4, and bipartisan.

Shortly thereafter the committee agreed on virtually every important phase of the bill except on proposed excise taxes to raise about $200,000,000 and changes in the administrative provisions of the estate tax. Plans are to introduce it into the House Monday.

Approves Income Tax Increase.

The committee approved increased individual and corporate income taxes, a gift levy, higher estate taxes and changes in administrative provisions, but declined to make them public.

About $200,000,000 in additional revenue is expected from the increases in the income and estate taxes, and $100,000,000 is the estimated yield of the administrative changes involving modification of the capital gains and loss provision of the income tax law.

Although the Treasury's anticipated deficit in 1933 under present revenue is $1,241,000,000, the total yield of the new bill is expected to reach but $1,100,000,000. It is being drawn in the expectation that Congress will reduce President Hoover's budget estimates by $150,000,000.

Acting Chairman Crisp announced the sales tax would become effective 30 days after enactment of the law. Manufacturers of finished products with a turnover of $10,000 a year will be licensed for the tax under reported terms of the bill. The sales

Candidacy Denied By Melvin Traylor

Banker Discounts Reports Before Legislature in Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., March 4 (A.P.).—Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker, said, "I have not been, am not now, and do not expect to become a candidate for political office," in an address before the Kentucky Legislature today.

Mr. Taylor, who is president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and a native Kentuckian, said he was "most anxious to dissipate" any impression that he was a candidate. He has been urged as a Democratic presidential candidate by his friends in Kentucky and other States. Touching briefly on national issues, he said:

"The tendency of the States to request or permit the assumption by the Federal Government of the exercise of functions which should be forever sacred to the States is alarming in the extreme and has already resulted in the building up of a bureaucracy in Washington at once expensive and inefficient, and calculated in the end to rob the States of the sovereignty which the founders of our government intended they should forever maintain."

More Kansas Support Is Pledged to President

Coffeyville, Kan., March 4 (A.P.).—United support to the Hoover-Curtis administration was pledged today by Third District Kansas Republicans, who elected Frank Brewster, Baxter Springs, and Arthur D. Walker, Arkansas City, as delegates to the national convention.

Four other Kansas districts also have instructed for Hoover.

LINDBERGHS PLEDGE THEIR WORD

Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make a personal contact with the kidnappers of our child.

Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return and we feel certain that the kidnappers will realize that this interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promises that we may make in connection with his return.

We urge those who have the child to select any representative that they desire to meet a representative of ours who will be suitable to them at any time and at any place that they may designate.

If this is accepted, we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential, and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child.

In an earnest plea for return of their baby, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh issued the above letter through the office of Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey promising they would not seek to punish those responsible if the child is returned.

SENATE IS TOLD HYDE MISUSED U.S. FUNDS

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the Senate, late yesterday charged that Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde had "misused public funds for political purposes."

The accusation against the Cabinet officer was the climax to an outpouring of Democratic criticism and sarcasm on the third anniversary of President Hoover's inauguration.

Senator Robinson charged that Secretary Hyde had sent through the mails, at Government expense, a statement attacking the Democrats of the House.

The statement, Senator Robinson said, was mailed to rural newspapers by the Publicity Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, and went out under a Government "frank."

As quoted by Senator Robinson, Secretary Hyde began his statement with the words: "Yesterday the Democratic organization in the House railroaded a bill to provide $132,000,000 for roads."

The Publicity Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, Senator Robinson said, was created to send out information that will be of benefit to the farmers. The Hyde statement he added, was "alleged" to deal with farm marketing news.

"Now just what relation that has to farm market news," Senator Robinson said, "is something I'd like to have the giant intellect that dominates the Department of Agriculture explain.

"It is an improper use of public money—money appropriated for wholesome publicity purposes, and being used by a Secretary of Agriculture whose ethical standing can not be described in parliamentary language.

"The Treasury is in no condition to provide campaign funds for this administration.

(Associated Press.)

An optimistic picture on the political outlook was given to President Hoover yesterday by Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, who directed the 1930 senatorial campaign.

Senator Moses was a guest of the President at lunch, at which the domestic, political and economic situation was discussed. New Hampshire's vote for President in Tuesday's primary was assured by the senator.

"The Democrats are clearly showing their fright," Moses said. "They see what is happening. The swing is toward the President. They are trying to get back lost ground, but they can't do it."

CHARLES H. SHERRILL IS ENVOY TO TURKEY

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday named Charles H. Sherrill, New York lawyer, to be United States Ambassador to Turkey. Mr. Sherrill will succeed Joseph C. Grew, who has been named by the Chief Executive to be Ambassador to Japan. W. Cameron Forbes, the present ambassador to Japan, plans to return to this country.

Mr. Sherrill served the United States as Minister to Argentina from 1909 to 1911, and was successful in obtaining the contract for two battleships for American shipyards.

This success attracted much attention and was widely heralded in the press of European powers, whose yards lost the contract as an indication that the United States had gone in whole-heartedly for dollar diplomacy. President Taft and Secretary of State Philander C. Knox, under whom Mr. Sherrill served, both commended his efforts.

Mr. Sherrill is a native of the District of Columbia, 65 years old, and has lived in New York and practiced law there most of his life. He is married, but has no children. He is a man of wealth, maintains a home in Paris and both he and Mrs. Sherrill speak French, the language of diplomacy in Istanbul.

Mr. Sherrill is widely traveled and has written a number of books about European travel. He was an athlete in his college days at Yale and was American champion 100-yard runner in 1887.

Mr. Grew, whom Mr. Sherrill will

Virginia First to Ratify Lame Duck Amendment

Richmond, March 4 (A.P.).—Virginia became the first State to ratify the "lame duck" amendment to the United States Constitution late today when the House by a vote of 53 to 12, passed a joint resolution unanimously adopted by the Senate earlier in the day.

Opponents of passage of the resolution by the House expressed the opinion that the Assembly could not legally act until it had received formal notification of the amendment's submission to the States.

SAILOR ARRESTED UPON REQUEST OF POLICE OF JERSEY

Henry Johnson, Seized in Hartford, Conn., Where Two Notes Are Found, Admits That He Knows Girl.

PARENTS' PLEA TO KIDNAPERS CARRIES IMMUNITY PROMISE

Hartford, Conn., March 4 (A.P.).—Henry (Red) Johnson, friend of the nursemaid to the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, was taken into custody here tonight coincident with the discovery of a letter and a postcard in the Hartford postoffice addressed to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Johnson, a sailor, was taken into custody at 7 p. m. at the request of New Jersey officials. In front of the home of his brother, John Johnson, was found a green coupe (Chrysler) which authorities described as similar to the one seen near the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnaping, March 1.

County Detective Edward J. Hickey, who became nationally known for his investigation in the case of Gerald Chapman, hanged for murder, questioned Johnson while waiting for the New Jersey officers and announced he believed he had obtained "a very important clue."

The special delivery letter, mailed at a corner box, was addressed to Mrs. Lindbergh and forwarded to Hopewell. The postcard, printed similarly to the first one received by the colonel earlier in the week, read:

"Baby still safe. Get things quiet."

The address read: "Chas Linberg, Princeton, N. J." The J was reversed, as it was on the first card. The word quiet was underlined.

Hickey and State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn refused to make public any further details of their examination of Johnson, who told newspapermen he had been out of work and had come here to visit his brother. He said he had known Miss Gow for about three years and had been "going with her" off and on.

Meanwhile Alcorn notified John J. Toohey, secretary to Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey.

"We've got the car, and we've got a milk bottle found in the car," he said.

Lindberghs Offer Parley.

Johnson's brother refused to see newspapermen and would not say when the sailor arrived in Hartford.

Johnson was formerly employed on the yacht of Thomas W. Lamont, of the Morgan banking firm, police announced. They said their request to hold him came from the Englewood police station.

Hopewell, N. J., March 4.—An offer to deal directly and confidentially with the kidnapers of their blue-eyed young son was made personally today by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Just 62 hours after the child was stolen from his sick bed the two anxious parents who had seen a mountain of clews and leads fade one by one into insignificance, signed their names to a typewritten statement. It pledged them not "to try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child," and to observe faithfully any promise.

HOUSE STRIKES OUT PAY-INCREASE BAN

The House yesterday voted to strike from the Treasury and Postoffice supply bill the ban on pay increases, made part of every other House appropriation measure this year.

The vote followed impassioned floor debate, in which Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns took the floor against all comers, in opposition to the move. He urged the need for economizing, calling on "patriotic" Federal workers to cooperate.

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, led the fight on the section, and it was his motion to strike that was adopted by the House.

Party lines were broken in the vote. When a division was called on a viva voce vote, the first count showed 72 for and 60 against. Tellers were called for and the second vote showed 74 for and 65 against.

The real test will come today when the committee of the whole reports back the bill and all amendments to the House. Chairman Byrns is expected to call for a separate vote on the LaGuardia amendment, which may end in roll call and possible reversal of yesterday's action.

Elimination of the entire section followed a favorable vote on another amendment to strike out only part of the clause prohibiting automatic promotion of postal employes according to length of service. This amendment was offered by Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the House postoffice committee, as a substitute for one proposed by Representative Car-

Painting of Lee's Daughter, Taken in War, Is Returned

Concord, N. H., March 2 (A.P.).—An oil painting portrait of Mildred Childe Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, leader of the Confederate Army, cut from its frame in the Lee mansion at Arlington, Va., during a Union raid, was restored to the Government today.

The portrait of the girl, taken when she was 17 years old, will be returned to its Southern home, now called Arlington Mansion, and the property of the Federal Government.

James A. Learned, of the First Massachusetts Artillery, one of the Federal soldiers in the raid, had climbed upon a spinet in the Lee home and cut the picture from its frame. He rolled it up, hid it beneath his Army overcoat, and then gave it to his colonel for safekeeping during the remainder of the war.

When he was discharged from the Army, he reclaimed the portrait. For many years it had hung in the home

HUNT FOR OHIO BOY SHIFTS TO ILLINOIS

Two Men and Youth Seen in Stolen Car, Sending Police on Wide Search.

Rockford, Ill., March 4 (A.P.).—Two men and a boy who abandoned a stolen automobile here late this afternoon and fled after stealing another car, were sought throughout northern Illinois and eastern Iowa tonight on the possibility that the boy was James De Jute, kidnaped 12-year-old son of a Niles, Ohio, contractor. Witnesses told police the lad answered the description of the De Jute boy.

The car they abandoned, its ignition all but burned out and the entire vehicle showing signs of continued hard driving, had been reported stolen by Max E. Bieler, of Wilmette, Ill., a suburb of Chicago.

Residents of the neighborhood where the car was abandoned told police that two men about 27 years old and a boy about 12 years old and answering the description of the De Jute youth, were in the automobile. The boy, they said, evidently was under compulsion of the men.

A few minutes after the car was abandoned, another automobile was stolen in the neighborhood. It bore Iowa license plates. Later reports said the car was seen speeding west toward Iowa.

Mother Ill in Bed.

Niles, Ohio, March 4 (A.P.).—A heart-broken father and mother tonight begged for some word from the kidnapers of their 12-year-old son.

James De Jute, wealthy Niles contractor, whose son, James, jr., was abducted while on his way to school Wednesday morning even while the Nation was learning of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, appealed for some news.

His wife, hysterical since the kidnaping, broke under the strain today and became ill. She was sent to bed.

"If only they would let me know what they want," De Jute said. "This suspense is awful. My wife is heartbroken."

De Jute already has offered to pay $1,000 for the return of his son, but there has been no letters, no telephone call, no communication of any kind, he said, from the two men who grabbed the boy and rushed away with him in an automobile. Fears for the boy's safety were growing hourly.

Tips Prove Valueless.

"I know nothing about it," De Jute said. "I only wish I could tell you my son is safe."

He said he was convinced ransom was the only aim of the kidnapers, but had no conjecture as to why no demand for money had yet been made.

County authorities and police continued to operate on the theory that vengeance prompted the kidnaping, since there had been no ransom note. They had only the description of the kidnapers, however, to work on. One by one, they ran down tips and found them valueless. A suspect, arrested at Youngstown last night, was released today when he could not be identified as one of the men who grabbed the boy.

Cleveland Federal authorities, informed of the Department of Justice's decision today to aid in the Niles as well as the Lindbergh kidnaping cases, said they were ready to cooperate as soon as they received instructions.

Recently Mrs. Skilton learned that Congress had appropriated funds to restore the Lee Mansion, and communicated with the Government. Today Lieut. Col. Bay State Clew Proves Futile in Kidnaping

Cambridge, Mass., March 4 (A.P.).—A theory that the missing Lindbergh baby might be in Massachusetts was exploded tonight when authorities found clews supplied them earlier in the day were without foundation.

Reports that a prisoner held for Federal authorities at East Cambridge Jail was Scotty Gow, sought for questioning by authorities investigating the kidnaping in New Jersey, caused a flurry of excitement until it was established that the man in question, William Campbell, of Worcester, had been in jail since February 11. Campbell, born in Scotland and known as "Scotty," denied he was Gow and asserted he knew no one of that name.

House Committee Hears Lie Passed

(Associated Press.)

A heated exchange between the two participants yesterday threatened for a time to disrupt a House elections committee's consideration of the contest between Representative Peter C. Granata and Stanley H. Kunz for the Eighth Illinois Congressional District.

Closing arguments for both men were being made when Granata, a Republican, suggested to the committee that it ask Kunz, a Democrat, several questions.

He intimated that Kunz and Judge Edmund A. Jarecki, who supervised a vote recount showing the Democrat had a majority, were "too friendly."

"You're a liar," Kunz shouted.

Representative McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, interrupted to remark that the committee would not tolerate "ethics of gangland" and that both men should restrain their feelings.

Representative Williams (Democrat), Texas, suggested that contestee and contestant possibly should leave the committee room, but the hearing ended before his suggestion was put to a vote. A decision may be made today.

Letter Threatening Baby Found in Postoffice Here

A crudely scribbled note to "Col. Charles Lindbergh, Hopewell, N. J.," threatening death to the kidnaped son of the flier if the $50,000 ransom were not quickly paid, was picked from the mails at the city postoffice yesterday by a clerk, unleashing an energetic search for its writer.

The letter was written on two sheets of cheap white paper about 3 by 4 inches in dimension. A third sheet contained a diagram of a two-block area in the downtown section with a cross marking a spot on a vacant lot where the money should be deposited "Sunday night at 1 p. m."

The only school with a lot nearby is located on New York avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets northwest. It has been abandoned for some time and is now used as a storehouse. Although the map indicated the lot where the money is to be left was across the street, the only lot nearby is adjacent to the school. The nearest street—L street—runs behind the school and is faced by a row of brick houses.

While every effort was being put forth to trace the origin of the communication, police were not disposed to view it with any great seriousness. It was obviously the work of a subnormal person or a clever simulation of the handiwork of such a person. Deciphered, it read:

"Your baby is safe. Put $50,000 as shown in the diagram below. We are on the lookout. And if anything goes wrong, the kid will be killed—and we are not fooling."

An envelope, with the printed inscription of a local life insurance firm, contained the missive and the name of famous addressee.

Investigation at the life insurance firm's offices brought no information as to who might be the writer. It was believed that the envelope had been pilfered from that office.

A mail clerk at the city postoffice came upon the note as he was emptying a sack of mail which had been collected here. He noted that it had no stamp on it and picked it up.

As the inscription on it became clear to him he hurriedly told a superior official, who notified police and postal inspectors. No clew had been obtained last night as to what section of the city it had been mailed from, but it was expected that postal inspectors would shortly establish this fact.

"If this is accepted we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child."

Broadcast in 6 Languages.

Early in the evening radio station WOR, which said it was acting at the behest of an intimate friend of the Lindberghs, began a periodic broadcast of the parents' appeal in six languages.

Editors of foreign language papers read the plea in German, Spanish, Italian, French and Yiddish, while a regular announcer read it in English.

Some significance was attached to this move, since it was learned from an authentic source that the carefully-guarded text of the ransom note left on the window sill of the baby's nursery contained two words in German and one letter in German script.

The note also was understood to have advised the Lindberghs that the kidnapers would communicate with them in "two to four days." Counting the night of the kidnaping (Tuesday) the four-day period would have expired tonight. However, on a basis of a 24-hour day the period does not end until about 9 p. m. tomorrow night.

Almost simultaneous with the issuance of the Lindberghs' joint plea, Gov. A. Harry Moore sought to coordinate the Nation-wide manhunt by requesting officials from the Eastern half of the United States, including representatives of President Hoover, to confer with him tommorrow.

Eager to Pay Ransom.

Earlier in the day an anonymous telephone call was received at the famous flier's hilltop home, where the brains of the East's law enforcement agencies have been scrutinizing clews and questioning men and women by the hundreds.

The caller wanted to know whether immunity would be granted the kidnapers if they decided to return the abducted 20-month-old child. Police tried to trace the call, but whether they succeeded no one would say.

As Capt. J. J. Lamb, of the New Jersey State police, announced receipt of the call he emphasized that Col. Lindbergh definitely was ready and eager to pay the ransom demanded.

The invitation to send a representative to Gov. Moore's conference reached President Hoover a short time after his Cabinet had concluded an hour's meeting at which affairs of state were shunted aside while the Lindbergh case was discussed.

The Cabinet agreed every aid of the Federal Government should be placed at the disposal of the investigators.

A few hours later David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Charge of Aeronautics, telegraphed Col. Lindbergh offering him "any of our naval aviation facilities" in the search.

Myriad Leads Traced.

President Hoover delegated J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Justice Department, to leave at once to attend the Trenton conference.

The invitations to officials in ten cities had been out only a few hours when acceptances began to pour in.

No story appeared too fantastic for inquiry, and no suspected place was too remote for search. A small army of investigators pursued tales of suspicious-looking cars, mysteriously parked on lonely roads, and endless theories.

To onlookers it seemed that every constable between Mexico and Canada was engaged in searching automobiles at bridgeheads and ferries, and the number of women and babies who came under their suspicions was staggering.

From Newark, Ohio, to as far away as Cambridge, Mass., there came bits of information for fruitless police scrutiny.

Betty Gow, nurse of the stolen child, was questioned for hours, but police late in the day said they had no reason to believe at that time there was any possible connection between her and the kidnapers.

It was announced at the governor's office, in Trenton, late today that the appeal of the Lindberghs had thus far failed to draw any word from the kidnapers.

Police Inspector Harry W. Walsh reported from here to the governor's office that authorities were no nearer a solution than they were yesterday.

It was announced 300 persons had been questioned at the Lindbergh home and 800 outside of the home. Of the total, 270 were women.

Near nightfall five men were being examined at the Lindbergh home, but their identities and the purpose of the questioning were withheld.

Asked if police were seeking definite men or had definite clews, Walsh said, "We are not in position to say."

Yesterday Gov. Moore said the police consensus was that two persons carried out the kidnaping, but today authorities asserted they did not know how many there were involved.

Prosecution Compulsory.

Police said women's footprints had been found, but these may have been the tracks of members of the family.

Erwin R. Marshall, prosecutor of Mercer County, in which a small section of the Lindbergh estate is situated, was reported to have announced that "as far as it lay in his power he would close his official eyes" if only the infant were returned safe and well.

The main portion of the Lindbergh estate, including the house, lies in Hunterdon County, for which Johnson B. Aller is acting prosecutor. Attorney General William A. Stevens sought to confer with Aller late in the day, but could not locate him. However, it was said at the attorney general's office he had no intention of offering immunity. Authorities on New Jersey constitutional law described such an offer as impossible.

In New York, Marie Cummings, a nurse, who attended Mrs. Lindbergh before the child was born, and remained with the family as the baby's nurse until it was 10 months old, was questioned at length by police. Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan told reporters there was "nothing to it yet," but refused to explain why the woman had been questioned.

De Valera Is Leading In Irish District Vote

Dublin, Irish Free State, March 4 (A.P.).—First election returns from Sligo-Leitrim, where the voting was postponed because a local candidate was shot before the general election, showed tonight that the Fianna Fail party of Eamon de Valera had won two seats and the government party one. Four seats remained to be filled and the counting was proceeding under the proportional representation system.

The new returns made the parties stand thus: Fianna Fail, 70; government, 54; independents and farmers, 15, and Labor, 9. This gave Mr. De Valera and his Labor allies a lead of 10.

Woman Loses Battle Against Rare Disease

Chicago, March 4 (A.P.).—Medical science's six months' battle against Addison's disease, one of the most infrequent of human ailments, ended in failure today with the death of Mrs. Andrew Nelson, 44, mother of six children.

Mrs. Nelson was stricken with the disease last September and removed to a hospital. Then began a hunt for a sufficient supply of cortin, a rare and valuable gland extract, with which to treat her. A supply was found at the University of Buffalo and rushed here by airplane. For a time Mrs. Nelson's condition improved under the treatment. Several weeks ago she began to fail rapidly and hope for her recovery was abandoned.

$50,000 in Little Bills Would Be Serious Load

New York, March 4 (U.P.).—Some intricate calculating shows that the Lindbergh kidnapers would have their hands full if they get $50,000 in small bills.

In $10 bills, a package containing $50,000 would measure 2¼ cubic feet and would weigh about 10 pounds.

In an equal number of $10 and $20 bills, the package would be just under 2 cubic feet and weigh more than 7 pounds.

MOTHER'S COURAGE GIVES OTHERS HOPE

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (A.P.).—Anne Lindbergh, her thoughts focused on an empty crib, is setting an example in Spartan fortitude for those who await the return of her stolen son.

On the third night since her first-born was snatched from his nursery room she still maintains a tight lip and a dry eye, no criteria of the emotions surging within her.

If anything, she is bolstering up her flying husband, who knows how to deal with the terror of dark oceans but is baffled by a foe with which he can not grapple. Both are suffering from heavy colds.

"Anne is remarkable"—such is the consensus of the household and of the few intimates that visit it. Mrs. Dwight Morrow, her mother; Col. and Mrs. Henry Breckinridge, the family lawyer and his wife, and the servants all take their cue from her—"if she can stand it, so can we."

Mrs. Lindbergh appeared a trifle fresher today after her first protracted sleep since the night before the kidnaping. She was attired in a sports costume of white flannel skirt and black crocheted sweater with a band of white Angora about the neck. It gave her an air of pertness that her features belied.

Friends said it was the colonel's wife who requested the radio appeal to the abductors, and that she has persistently put the baby's safety before material considerations or punishment of the criminals.

In her suffering the mothers of the surrounding countryside share to the full, and because of her misfortune they adopt unusual precautions for the safety of their own broods.

Lindbergh's Mother Still Maintains Calm

Detroit, March 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh maintained her Spartan calm today, conducting her chemistry classes at Cass Technical High School with few outward signs of the three days of intense mental suffering she has undergone since her grandchild was kidnaped.

Tonight it was said at her home in Grosse Pointe that she has received no direct word from the home of her son in New Jersey. All callers were told that she had no direct information of the progress of the search not shared with newspaper readers the world over.

Senator Caraway Favors Death for Kidnapers

Nashville, Tenn., March 4 (A.P.).—Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, "would gladly support a measure making kidnaping a capital offense," she said here today while inquiring for news of the Lindbergh baby.

"There is no punishment that could be devised that would be commensurate with such a crime," she said. Senator Caraway stopped in Nashville en route to Jonesboro, Ark.

Driver Is Arrested As Man Is Injured

Victim Is Hit by One Car and Thrown in Path of Another.

A man was in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night after being struck by one automobile and thrown in front of another machine which passed over his body. A man is being held on charges of reckless driving and driving with bad brakes in connection with the accident, which happened at Pennsylvania avenue and John Marshall place northwest.

Police said he was crossing Pennsylvania avenue when he was struck by the automobile of Vance Watts, 24 years old, of 812 Howard road southeast, west bound on the avenue. He was thrown under a machine operated by Merrell L. Clements, 20 years old, of 207 Thirteenth street northeast. Clements' machine passed over his body. Watts was arrested.

Hoover Signs Certificate Making Cardozo Justice

(Associated Press.)

Only a new oath of office remains between Benjamin N. Cardozo and the title and robes of a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

President Hoover yesterday morning signed his commission to succeed Oliver Wendell Holmes. White House officials were not informed when Judge Cardozo would take his new seat.

Lack of Funds Closes 7 Schools in Chicago

Chicago, March 4 (A.P.).—Three thousand children, of Berwyn, one of Chicago's largest suburbs, were locked out of their classrooms today. Seven schools were closed indefinitely pending the sale of tax anticipation warrants to pay teachers' salaries.

Ninety-nine teachers, unpaid for two months, were thrown out of work. A house-to-house canvass was planned to sell $120,000 worth of tax warrants. Schools of the northern district of the city were not affected.

3 of 4 Entombed Men Saved From Coal Mine

Pottsville, Pa., March 4 (A.P.).—Three of four miners who were trapped in the Ellen Gowan Colliery, at Mahanoy City, were rescued today by workers who dug their way to the entombed men after two hours of intensive work.

The fourth man, Joseph Alexenos, 46, Mahanoy City, was crushed to death by the fall of rock and coal.

Baby Reunion Suggested As Kidnapers' Solution

Here is one of the dozens of solutions tips received by The Post relative to the Lindbergh baby:

Have all the mothers living within a 10-mile radius of Hopewell take their children in arms and journey to the Lindbergh home.

Then when the host of mothers and babes have arrived, let them be viewed by the Lindberghs. In this way, the kidnapers of the baby could gather in the throng, and, unobserved by police, deliver the child to his parents.

MEXICO-TO-MAINE SEARCH IS PUSHED

(Associated Press.)

From Mexico, where every train, automobile, airplane and steamship entering the country is being searched, to far-away Maine, where a suspicious car is being sought, echoes of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping reverberate.

Hopewell, N. J.—Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh offered to deal personally and confidentially with the kidnapers and pledged themselves not to "try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child." An anonymous telephone call was received at the Lindbergh home from a man who wanted to know if immunity would be granted the kidnapers upon return of the small boy.

Trenton, N. J.—Gov. A. Harry Moore issued a call for a conference here tomorrow to coordinate the Nation-wide manhunt. Representatives of President Hoover and police officials of ten cities were invited. Acceptances poured in almost immediately.

Washington — President Hoover's Cabinet agreed every possible resource of the Federal Government should be invoked in the search for the baby. The naval aviation force offered the use of any of its facilities. A letter demanding $50,000 ransom was taken from the mail.

New York—The famous "Secret Service" police squad set to work on the case. Police Commissioner Mulrooney was working himself on an angle of the hunt. Bishop William T. Manning sent a prayer to Episcopal clergy to be used in connection with the kidnaping. Cardinal Hayes said prayers would be offered in St. Patrick's Cathedral Sunday for the return of the child. Compulsory fingerprinting of children at birth and periodically thereafter was recommended by a magistrate as a kidnaping preventive. Police searched in vain for a "white bundle" reported seen in a clump of bushes.

Detroit—Police sought "Scotty" Gow, said to have been a member of the once-powerful Purple gang of kidnapers and extortionists, on a tip from New Jersey.

Boston—Officials said Edward Scott Gow (alias "Scotty") was being held in the East Cambridge Jail on a theft charge.

Buffalo—Police said "tips" on the Lindbergh case were coming in at the rate of one every 30 minutes.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—A postal card mailed here to Col. Lindbergh read: "Will kill your baby if you don't keep your mouth shut."

Pottsville, Pa.—A letter to Col. Lindbergh mailed here directed him to concentrate the search 8 miles west of Hopewell.

White Plains, N. Y.—Boy Scouts haedquarters announced 1,100 Scouts will spend the week-end searching Westchester County for the child.

Philadelphia—The national commander of the American Legion said Col. Lindbergh could call on the legion "to a man" to aid him.

Portland, Me.—Police throughout the State were ordered to search for a large sedan with drawn curtains bearing New York license plates. The occupants were said to "look suspicious."

Springfield, Ill.—Police received a note from Burlington, Iowa, saying the baby was hidden there.

Cranks and False Tips Feature Epochal Search

(Associated Press.)

A New York preacher, another man and woman waited all day yesterday at the barrier of the Lindbergh estate. The State troopers on guard barred them. The preacher said the woman was a clairvoyant and he wanted her to "lay hands" on the crib of the kidnaped baby so that she could establish clairvoyant contact with the abductors.

Two women in Centralia, Ill., dreamed that they witnessed the kidnaping; one even observed the street and the house number to which the baby was "taken" in Newark, N. J. They communicated the dreams to New Jersey police.

A woman in Boston mailed a letter to Col. Lindbergh: "If I were to attempt to explain to you how this information came into my possession you probably would be skeptical and not act upon it. I urge you to do so. The information is that your son is held by two men and a woman at 123 Temple street, Provincetown, N. J." A self-styled clairvoyant is said to have admitted writing it.

A man arrested for an alleged holdup at Paterson, N. J., told deputy sheriffs he had been in a Yonkers, N. Y., speakeasy and heard a man say, "We'll get the girl and she can take care of the Eaglet."

A young woman of Brooklyn recalled that on last Saturday evening, before the kidnaping, she overheard two men and a woman talking on a Lexington avenue subway, one saying, "The baby sleeps on the second floor."

A telephone operator in Rochester, N. Y., had a wholesale confectioner arrested because he put in a call for Col. Lindbergh. The man only wanted to help.

A cigar store proprietor of Jersey City, N. J., called the police because he heard a man in a telephone booth say, "I see the papers are full of it. Let me know if I can do anything for you. Don't worry."

RADIO PROVING HELP IN SEARCH FOR BABY

Television Also Being Used in an Effort to Speed Child's Return.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

It was the ambition of the late Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, first chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, to establish a radio network which could be utilized to broadcast country-wide alarms during a national crisis, a great catastrophe or for the apprehension of outstanding criminals.

Admiral Bullard got the idea from the S O S distress signal, resulting in an almost instant mobilization of rescue forces for those endangered at sea. Although there is no single directing head, the admiral's dream has been realized to some extent in the manner in which radio officials have responded in the Nation-wide search for the Lindbergh baby.

For the first time in history, although the art is still in a highly experimental stage, television has been utilized, too. Beginning with a station in New York City, pictures of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., were flashed at short intervals throughout the day and far into the night.

Television Aids Search.

Television is not, as yet, a network proposition, but other visual stations throughout the country are joining in the picture broadcasts. By this means, though the present range of television with the most powerful transmitter does not exceed 1,000 miles, considerable territory is being covered.

In addition to the two great networks, hundreds of independent stations throughout the United States are continually broadcasting descriptions of the child.

A powerful short-wave transmitter has been installed in the country home of Col. Lindbergh by means of which the New Jersey State police, in a few seconds, may communicate not only with their own motor patrols but those of nearby States. Also with cities such as New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington, D. C., which, in turn, have their own short-wave police systems.

24-Hour Service Used.

Something never done before has been the radio stations keeping their carrier waves on constantly so that no time will be lost in warming up transmitters. An example of this was Station WRC, in Washington, which announced that their carrier wave would be kept on all night.

A special appeal from Col. Lindbergh addressed to the kidnapers was broadcast by the NBC at intervals Thursday night. Columbia likewise has placed its facilities at the disposal of the stricken parents. Both networks carried the pathetic immunity plea from the Lindberghs last night.

Radio was used also, it is believed for the first time for this purpose, by Representative John J. Cochran, of Missouri, to get to the people of the country quickly with an explanation of the bill, of which he is coauthor, designed to give the Federal Government jurisdiction in interstate kidnaping cases. This bill is now pending in Congress and provides for imposition of the death sentence in certain instances.

Mellon Recovers Strength in South

Ambassador Throws Off Effects of Eleven Years' Arduous Labor.

Augusta, Ga., March 4 (A.P.).—A stronger, healthier Andrew W. Mellon than the work-weary man who left the Treasury a few days ago will go to the Court of St. James to take up ambassadorial duties where Charles G. Dawes left off.

Eleven years of worry over national finances had left a mark on the former Secretary of the Treasury when he arrived here soon after leaving that post for a short rest. Exercise, relaxation and the lifting of a load of care have practically erased that mark.

"I'm feeling better and better every day now," the ambassador said during his brisk morning walk in quest of fresh air and sunshine today.

Ambassador Mellon said the date of his departure has not been set, but he expected to stay here about a week longer before returning to Washington.

Law Stills Voice Of Radio Station

(Associated Press.)

The law has stilled the voice of the radio station at Sheffield, Ala., which its operator, a Negro pastor, described as the "90,000 horsepower voice of Muscle Shoals."

Department of Commerce officials investigating the claims of the Rev. L. W. Michael that his station had power approximating that generated by the turbines around the Wilson Dam found that he had neglected to get a license. They also found that his power amounted to 7.5 watts, rather than the 90,000 hrosepower claimed, but because the Rev. Mr. Michael broadcast all over the dial this caused serious interference.

Since the operator of the station apparently did not know that he was violating the law, it was indicated there probably will be no further action.

JAPANESE CROESUS MURDERED IN TOKYO

Instead of saying "as rich as Rockefeller" the Japanese say "as rich as a Mitsui."

The assassination of the baron is the second similar crime in the last month. On February 10, Junnosuke Inouye, also an outstanding financial figure and the leader of the Minseito political party, was slain by a youthful assassin.

M. Inouye's slayer came from the Ibaraki Prefecture. He said he was motivated by hatred of the political leader because he considered him responsible for the desperate plight of Japan's farmers.

FOURTEEN HUNDRED AND NINE H STREET

U.S. CRIME EXPERTS CALLED IN KIDNAPING

Unprecedented Meeting Set for Today to Solve Lindbergh Case.

Trenton, N. J., today will be the scene of an unprecedented gathering when criminology experts from every large Eastern city and Federal sleuths will attempt to formulate a successful plan for solving the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

The conference was initiated by Gov. Harry Moore of New Jersey, who late yesterday afternoon telegraphed an appeal to police chiefs of Washington, New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Jersey City, Buffalo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis and Boston. He received immediate responses.

At the gathering will be many of the greatest investigators of American police circles. J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, and Pat Roche, who broke the Lingle murder case in Chicago, are en route.

Glassford to Attend.

Washington's superintendent of police, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford and Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, will take a train early this morning.

Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, of Pittsburgh; Lieut. Thomas Cusack, head of the Chicago narcotic squad, and E. J. Conley, of the New York office of the Bureau of Investigation, will also attend.

It is thought that the chief purpose of the meeting will be to devise a method of securing the safe return of the child, and not so much for the determination of the identities of the criminals.

Move Sets Record.

Never before have police authorities been called together in such a manner, and never before have the law enforcement machines of so many jurisdictions been placed in positive activity toward the solution of a single crime.

The telegram from the New Jersey governor received here read:

"Entire country shocked at kidnaping Lindbergh baby. Essential that we coordinate efforts be made apprehend abductors and restore baby.

"I have called conference at my office in Statehouse in Trenton tomorrow eleven, police officers of leading American cities. Regard it as plain duty of everyone to cooperate. I earnestly urge you to send representative best qualified to assist."

50 Lindbergh Baby Tips Followed Here in Vain

Scores of purported clews to the whereabouts of the abductors of the Lindbergh baby poured into police headquarters yesterday and detectives and uniformed policemen spent a busy day running them down.

Approximately 50 tips were run out to fruitless ends. Most of the information dealt with the sighting of cars bearing New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania tags.

Mystery Veils "Doctor" Promising Revelations

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (A.P.).—A "Dr. Warnoff, of Philadelphia," who told police he knew something about the Lindbergh kidnaping and said he would be at a certain place in Hopewell at 4 o'clock to be questioned either failed to keep the rendezvous or was whisked away by police before reporters could identify him.

Great excitement prevailed at the appointed place at 4 o'clock. An auto, driven by State troopers, drew up, stopped for a moment and sped away with two men in plain clothes in the rear seat, one of whom may have been "Dr. Warnoff."

RESCUE HERO DIES AS HIS HOME BURNS

Cause of the fire is unknown, but a lighted oil lamp and a stove in the house are both suspected. The interior of the house was completely destroyed.

Reynolds was unmarried, but is survived by his father, Joseph R. Reynolds, three brothers, Charles, Clarence and Henry, and two sisters, Mrs. Eva Curry, of Rosslyn, Va., and Mrs. Mary Bauer. He was 40 years old, and had been on the river since 1897. Lately he has managed the boathouse, although it is still owned by his father.

"Cap'n" Reynolds was first on the scene at nearly all drownings on the upper river, and many more were prevented by his promptness in setting out in a rescue boat. Hardly a sudden summer storm sprang up that a canoe did not overturn, leaving its occupants to be pulled out of the water by the veteran riverman. He was adept at finding bodies which had sunk, and his skill often reinforced the efforts of the Harbor Police.

Last night's tragedy was the fifth in the family in the last year. The eldet Reynolds' two brothers, his sister, and his granddaughter have all died in that time. They were William, Albert, Mrs. William Progleton, and Mrs. Curry's daughter, 8 months old.

Florida Abduction Admitted by Two

Confess Auto Theft and Tying of Man to Tree; Other Crimes Studied.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 4 (A.P.).—Two men giving the names of Joe E. Johnson and Stickman Herndon confessed to officers here tonight that they stole an automobile belonging to W. A. McRae, of this city, and that they held up Anthony Moreland, of Chicago, at Lake City last night, kidnaping him and leaving him tied to a tree.

H. Haltiwanger, city detective, said the men declined to answer questions regarding robbery of the Lincoln National Bank at Lincoln, Nebr., in 1927.

The men were arrested in Valdosta and taken to Lake City today. Jacksonville authorities brought them here tonight.

Both Haltiwanger and McRae, who identified the men, said they appeared to want to give the impression they are "bad criminals."

Johnson was quoted in Valdosta today as saying he had participated in the Lincoln bank robbery and in numerous other criminal activities. He told officers there he had escaped from prison in San Quentin, Calif., and other places.

Ingalls Offers Colonel Naval Flying Facilities

Cleveland, March 4 (A.P.).—David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Charge of Aeronautics, today wired Col. Charles Lindbergh offering him "any of our naval aviation facilities" in the search for the Lindbergh baby.

Secretary Ingalls and Col. Lindbergh are close friends. When Col. Lindbergh attended the national air races here last summer he was a guest at the Ingalls home.

KIDNAPING RACKET'S FAST SPREAD SHOWN

Survey Reveals 285 Cases in 3 Years; Need for New Laws Stressed.

Kidnaping of Col. Lindbergh's 20-month-old son has focused attention on the need for more stringent laws to cover a growing crime which in the past three years has broken out in 285 cases in widely separated parts of the country, according to the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, citing a survey made by the police department of that city.

The chamber is sponsor of two bills recently introduced in Congress by Senator Patterson and Representative Cochran, of Missouri, to curb the kidnaping racket.

The St. Louis Police Department sent a questionnaire to 948 cities asking reports on the number of kidnapings in their communities in the last three years. Replies have been received from 502 to date, covering 285 cases. Reports were not obtained from rural territories, so the cases reported by no means represent the full number of kidnapings.

Geographical locations of the 285 cases, shown by a map made in connection with the survey, reveal that the highly profitable crime is widespread. In 13 of the cases reported the victims were murdered, and in 46 cases the victims were transported to another State. In only 70, or 24 per cent, of the 285 cases were convictions of the criminals obtained.

The bill of Senator Patterson would provide stringent penalties for transportation of a kidnaped person from one State to another, while Representative Cochran's bill seeks to make it a crime to demand ransom by mail. The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce holds that it will be impossible to cope with kidnaping under State laws and that the crime will increase until effectual Federal legislation is provided.

Under the proposed Senate bill, it is maintained, kidnapers would hesitate to cross State lines if the offense were punishable by Federal statute. In the event they did cross them, local officers could obtain cooperation of Federal men in trailing the kidnapers and extradition from foreign countries would be easier.

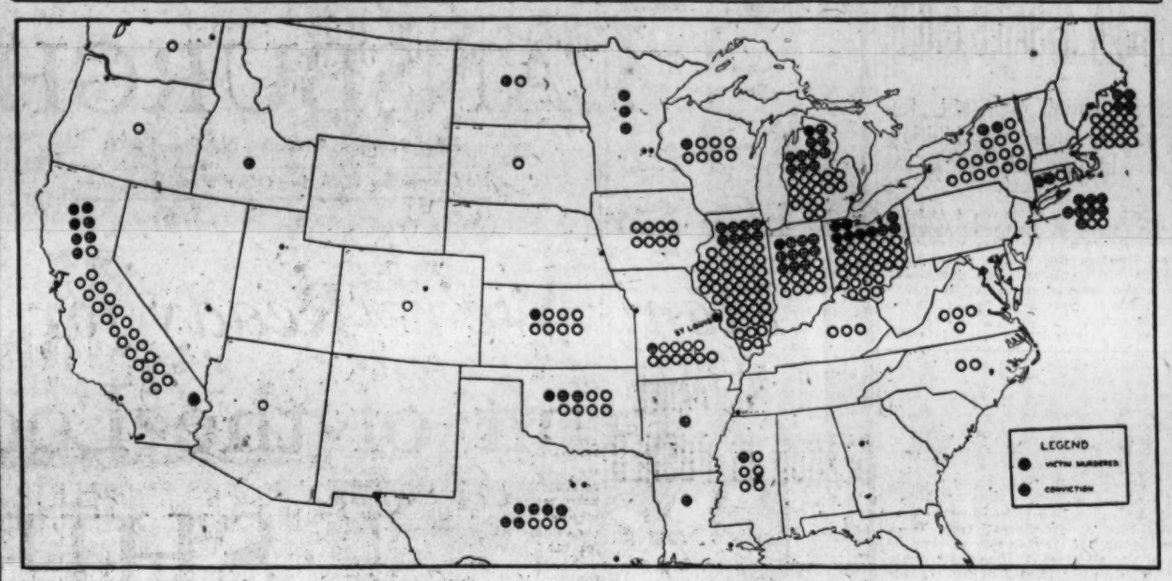
FEW SECTIONS SPARED BY KIDNAP RACKET OPERATORS



This map prepared by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce gives a graphic representation of the number and geographical distribution of kidnaping cases in the last three years. It should be remembered, however, that these cases are only a part of those crimes committed. These 285 kidnapings were reported through a survey of the St. Louis Police Department. They are mapped from 502 replies received from 948 queries sent out by the department. The center of the kidnaping racket appears to be in the Middle West, although there have been a number on the Eastern Seaboard, and few sections are free of them.

KIDNAPING IS TOPIC AT CABINET SESSION

Mitchell Explains Federal Cooperation Given Lindbergh Family.

(Associated Press.)

In common with America's millions, the President at the White House and Mrs. Hoover in the South waited prayerfully last night to hear that the tiny son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh had been found unharmed.

The anxiety felt everywhere reached into yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet, where a report was made of the aid volunteered by the Federal departments to State authorities seeking to solve the kidnaping. In a brief informal discussion, expressions of concern were exchanged while official business waited.

An offer of help also was volunteered in the search for James De Jute, jr., aged 12, who was kidnaped near his home in Niles, Ohio, on Wednesday—the day after the infant Lindbergh disappeared. H. H. Reinecke, head of the Detroit office of the Justice Department, was instructed to get in touch with Charles Nicholas, police chief at Niles.

Tells Danger of Overlapping.

Attorney General Mitchell remained with President Hoover for a time after the lengthly Cabinet meeting. Questioned on leaving, he explained that Government operatives are turning over to State officials any information they feel might be of value.

To date nothing has been uncovered to place the case within Federal jurisdiction. The Attorney General said "we have this to look out for; also, that with so many agencies, both State and Federal, at work, they do not get in each other's way and impede progress."

No definite information on the Lindbergh case was available to the Cabinet meeting, but there were indications that certain things were going on that only Col. Lindbergh knew about.

New Antikidnaping Bill.

A $50,000 fine and 40 years' imprisonment would be meted out to the kidnaper of any child under 18 under a bill introduced yesterday by Representative McLeod (Republican), Michigan.

Where ransom is demanded, he would make the fine $50,000; the imprisonment, life

Should kidnaping result in bodily harm or death of the child, death by hanging would be provided.

Use of the United States mails for kidnaping threats would be penalized by $50,000 fine or life imprisonment, or both.

Bond Set for Trio Taken in Dry Raid

Three Seized With Still and Boat Held for U. S. Court Action.

Three men who were arrested when a still and a boat were seized by Federal dry agents in southern Maryland were held in bond of $1,000 each yesterday for action of the Federal Court in Baltimore.

They are Gilbert Edwards, Eugene Boyce, and his brother Mervin Boyce, and their hearing was held before U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Parran, in upper Marlboro. The trio lives in Virginia and the prohibition agents charge that they made liquor in St. Marys County, and transported it into Virginia in the 36-foot motor boat.

According to the agents, a group of hijackers was at the still the day of the raid, and was operating it. The three Virginia men crossed the river in their boat and drove off the hijackers just before the Federal men swooped down on it, it is said. In addition to the still, of 200-gallon capacity, 2,500 gallons of mash were found.

Hopewell Views Kidnaping With Mingled Emotions

Indignation Over Crime Runs High, for Lindberghs Have Won Regard of Rustic Neighbors, but Boom Possibilities Are Not Overlooked.

Hopewell, N. J., March 4 (A.P.).—This sleepy village of revolutionary days, nestling in a valley below the Lindbergh Manor, has been recreated in its urge to recover Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr.

Feeling runs high as the town folk and farmers from around about gather on street corners, in stores and in homes to discuss the only major crime in local memory. It is taken as a personal injury to men and women whose children are their dearest possession.

"I'd like to get my hands on that fellow," is the sentiment most often expressed toward the criminal.

Hopewell's anger is not based on a generalized antipathy toward kidnapers. Its citizens have grown to like the Lindberghs in the months since they have come and lack of familiarity has not lessened that admiration. The Colonel and his wife have been neighborly, kind, courteous—if somewhat reserved.

Many are the tales told of their thoughtfulness. The chief among them concerns the time Mrs. Lindbergh and a woman friend were driving home one night and they found a man badly injured by the roadside from an automobile accident. They lifted him, bloody and battered, into their car and took him to a hospital.

"A lot of people in her position wouldn't have done that," one person commented. "They might have gone for help, but they wouldn't have moved the man to the hospital in their own car."

As an illustration of the affection in which the world-famous flier is held, A. J. Hausenbauer, a farmer living just across the road, was asked by the Lindberghs to evacuate newspapermen and their cars from his premises in order to relieve congestion in the area. He was on his own property and was being well paid for his trouble, but he agreed willingly.

"I'm doing this because Col. Lindbergh is my neighbor and I know that if I went up to his home and knocked on the door and told him I needed help he would do anything he could for me."

The fact is that Hopewell has never been the same rural center that it was before the Lindberghs came and the events of the last few days have revolutionized its existence. Every house in this village of 1,600 persons has its quota of strangers and the three-story wooden Gebhart Hotel is crowded to the eaves, its lobby pulsing with curious humanity.

There are between 300 and 400 newspapermen, newsreel men, radio technicians, law enforcement officers and hangers-on in the town. A sound movie truck is on the ground and the National Broadcasting Co. has set up a temporary radio station. The automobiles of thousands constantly circulate through the streets.

The merchants have one eye on the monetary possibilities in the situation, too, and Hopewell is having its first boom. Hotel rooms come at $5 the night, the barest meal at $1, and other essentials are in like proportion. Even the local bootleggers are having their fling at high finance.

Fleeing Robbers Of Bank Captured

One of Three in Illinois Holdup Is Former Police Official.

Lawrenceville, Ill., March 4 (A.P.).—Three bank robbers, one identified as a former police lieutenant at South Bend, Ind., robbed the Flat Rock State Bank at Flat Rock, Ill., of $4,900 today and were captured on the Wabash River Bridge an hour later. The money was recovered.

Two of the fobbers, who gave their names as Grover Griffith and J. J. Stevens, South Bend, entered the bank while the third, Tom Clark, of Scotia, Calif., remained outside. They forced Don Taylor, president of the bank, and his brother, Grant, cashier, into the vault and escaped in a sedan with the money.

They were captured by F. E. Milan and Kenneth Snapp, of the Vincennes police, an hour later. The thieves made no resistance. Griffith was later identified by Chief of Police Tom Martin of Vincennes as a former police lieutenant at South Bend. The men were taken to the Robinson, Ill., jail.

Extortionists Threaten Rochester Realty Man

Rochester, N. Y., March 4 (A.P.).—Three notes demanding payment of $2,000 and threatening dire consequences if he failed to pay have been received by Alvar Griffin Strong, real estate operator, police revealed today.

The last of the notes, sent Saturday, threatened that Strong would be put "on the spot" as an example, so that others would "pay up more promptly." Strong, his wife and their three daughters are under close guard. Strong is widely known in America and England as an exhibitor of Hackney ponies.

Former Professor Steals Silver to Obtain Food

Berkeley, Calif., March 4 (A.P.).—William G. Kensington, 39, who told police he was formerly a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, was arrested today for robbing a Berkeley home of a silver set. Police said he admitted the robbery, saying, "I did it to obtain food for my wife and myself. It was my first burglary and I'll never do it again." He had been out of work. The silver was bought by a pawn shop for $1.50.

Kensington told authorities he was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania with a doctor of philosophy degree, and of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville.

8 Accused of Murder Plot Plead Not Guilty

Rio Grande City, Tex., March 4 (A.P.).—Not guilty pleas were entered today by eight prominent men of Donna, Texas, charged with conspiracy to murder six of their political enemies.

The defendants were bound over to the Starr County grand jury after a preliminary hearing at which the prosecution presented an alleged confession by three of the men that two Mexicans had been hired for the killings. The statement said the purpose of the asserted plot was to gain control of the administration of the Donna irrigation district, the men involved in the alleged conspiracy having been defeated at the polls.

Father Indicted Here As Own Son's Kidnaper

A father who allegedly kidnaped his own son was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury. He is William Silas Barr, a Postoffice Department clerk, who is said to have taken his 5-year-old son from the custody of his mother, Mrs. Dorothy W. Barr, of 1457 Park road northwest, who had been awarded temporary custody by an order of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, of the District Supreme Court.

Barr, according to the records, took the child from its home Christmas night, last, and went to Paris, France, with him. Post cards from that city to Mrs. Barr kept the mother informed of the child's welfare. An attempt will be made to extradite Barr for trial here.

Virginian's Report Links Abduction

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 4.—John S. Martin, 21, of this city, reported to police today that he was stopped shortly before last midnight by the driver of an automobile who asked the highway to Baltimore. When Martin, giving the information, happened to peer into the rear of the car, he saw another man and a woman, the latter apparently carrying a baby, he said.

When the second man noted Martin looking into the rear, Martin said the man drew a revolver and ordered him to get into the car. He fled instead and the car pulled away. Martin ran several blocks to the police station and reported the incident.

A traffic officer gave chase but did not overtake the car. Authorities in Winchester were advised. Martin told officers he would be able to recognize the driver of the car but did not see the others distinctly enough to recognize them again.

A process server, who boarded the ship in time to hand Carroll a subpena in a $60,000 rental action involving his new theater, was not kissed. Carroll said he would spend four weeks in Europe gathering new material for a production.

MANCHURIAN REBELS AIM IN TOKYO DRIVE

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Tokyo, March 4.—A Japanese brigade in northeast Manchuria left Imienpo today over the Chinese Eastern Railway and arrived in Hailin. The brigade, under Gen. Amano, was en route northward for the express purpose of putting down insurgents against the new federated Manchuria.

On February 28 Russia granted Japan permission to use the Chinese Eastern Railway for a limited number of troops, at the same time closely questioning the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow as to the purpose of their movement.

Pledge to Respect Rights.

The Japanese envoy at that time said Soviet rights would be respected and that the Japanese government did not wish to transport troops beyond Imienpo or Hailin at the utmost. This apparently explains why the Japanese brigade today planned to proceed from Hailin afoot.

Reports from Hailin today said insurgents there had fled before the Japanese arrived and that the Japanese prepared to advance to Ninguta.

Meanwhile there came other reports of insurrection against the Manchurian federation formed under Japanese auspices during February.

Two Towns Reported Seized.

A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Manchuli, Manchuria, said that a revolt against Gen. Mah Chan-Shan's Heilungkiang regime had occurred and that Manchuli and Hailar in that southern province had been seized by the rebels. Gen. Mah only recently agreed to join the new federation.

Mukden, Manchuria, dispatches today said that Henri Pu-Yi, one-time boy emperor of China, who was selected to head the new independent Manchuria, had declined the office for a second time.

It was added, however, that he was merely complying with the old Manchu custom of twice refusing high honors with self-depreciation before accepting them when offered a third time.

NEW CLASH BREAKS BRIEF CHINESE LULL

wounded Chinese soldiers. These are receiving two meals a day and other care from settlement people through Chinese relief organizations. Besides all this thousands of orphaned and homeless babies were on the hands of the settlement.

The Chapei-Woosung battle line presented a frightful sight. Abandoned automobiles, stark corpses and rifled buildings marked the line of retreat of the Chinese Nineteenth Route Army.

The looting and the hasty withdrawal were evident in the jewelry, blankets and food left behind by the Chinese soldiers. Abandoned motor trucks and automobiles indicated that there was a concerted rush to escape from the relentless Japanese. The Chinese also failed to destroy many of their bridges.

Chapei presented a pitiful picture. Not a single building had escaped the more than a month of bombardment and streets that once teemed with life were littered with the debris of a fallen city.

Mongrel dogs skulked where bodies lay, until the crowds of returning refugees drove them off. When the crowds became too large a Japanese military order checked the influx, and Japanese sentries paced their posts with a silent display of force.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Geneva, March 4.—The assembly of the League of Nations unanimously called on China and Japan tonight to negotiate a cessation of hostilities around Shanghai, including withdrawal of Japanese forces.

The assembly spoke in the form of a three-point resolution which also provided for assistance in the negotiations from representatives of the great powers.

Faced with certain defeat by a determined concert of 50 states, Naotake Sato, the Japanese representative, joined in supporting the resolution and smilingly abandoned an effort to put the movements of Chinese forces within the terms of the proposed negotiations.

Follows Chinese Appeal.

The assembly's action came after the Chinese delegate, W. W. Yen, had delivered an impassioned appeal for measures to halt the Japanese military advance around Shanghai, which he declared was continuing.

Obviously stirred by the Chinese patriot's description, the assembly leaders proceeded to draft and press through its resolution, which was designed to clarify the foggy situation as to the truth or falsity of an armistice report and to institute proceedings leading to the retirement of the Japanese forces.

The resolution read:

"This assembly, recalling suggestions made by the council on February 29, and without prejudice to other measures envisaged therein—

"1. Calls upon the governments of China and Japan immediately to take the measures necessary to insure that orders which, as it has been informed, have been issued by the military commanders on both sides for cessation of hostilities shall be made effective.

"2. Requests that other powers which have special interests in the Shanghai area inform the assembly of the manner in which the invitation set out in the previous paragraph has been executed.

"3. Recommends that negotiations be entered into by Chinese and Japanese representatives with the assistance of the military, naval and civilian authorities of the powers mentioned above for conclusion of arrangements which shall make definite the cessation of hostilities, and regulate withdrawal of the Japanese forces.

U. S. Delegates Look On.

"The assembly will be glad to be kept informed by the powers mentioned above as to the development of these negotiations."

The assembly will meet again Saturday to consider the situation further.

The American delegation to the World Disarmament Conference sat as close spectators to tonight's events.

Paul Humans, the Belgian chairman, whose country has known invasion, directed proceedings with great vigor. He denounced the Japanese attempt to modify the resolution and insisted that "the time has come for the assembly to speak."

SENATOR HALE OF MAINE.

WHEN Frederick Hale, of Portland, Me., came to the United States Senate, in 1917, he was not only following in the footsteps of his father, but in those of his grandfather as well.

The grandfather was Zachariah Chandler, that picturesque old statesman of the Civil War period. Chandler represented the State of Michigan in the Senate from 1857 to 1879, when he died. He began as a Whig, but in 1854 helped organize the Republican party, and to that party his descendants have been faithful.

Chandler's daughter, Mary Douglas Chandler, married Eugene Hale, of Portland. Hale came to the Senate in 1881, two years after the death of his father-in-law, and served until 1911. Six years later his son, the present Senator Hale, took the oath in the same body.

Frederick Hale prepared for college at the fashionable Lawrenceville and Groton schools, and then went on to Harvard, which gave him his degree in 1896. Leaving school he emulated his father by practicing law in Portland.

There is a comforting regularity about Hale. In a State which is supposed to be a political barometer, he gets elected regularly by big majorities, thus comforting the Republican party. As chairman of the naval affairs committee, he regularly makes a speech demanding a big, or, at least, an adequate Navy. There seems to be a regularity even about his hair. It is cut close to the scalp, and always appears to be the same length. The same is true of his close-cropped moustache.

Also he is regular in another thing: He came to Washington as a bachelor, and he has consistently remained one.

FINNISH INSURGENTS DRIVEN FROM TOWN

Fascist Control of Jyvaskyla Is Cut Short by Sortie of Civil Guards.

Helsingfors, Finland, March 4 (A.P.).—Members of the Lapua Fascist organization revolting against the government seized the town of Jyvaskyla today, but didn't succeed in holding it very long.

This evening the local civil guards chased them out and took over control. It was reported that the rebels numbered less than 200.

The rebels continued to hold Mantsala, 25 miles from the capital, where the uprising began nearly a week ago and sent emissaries to President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud, but nothing came of their trip.

The government announced that elsewhere the rebellion appeared to have collapsed, adding that there was considerable agitation among the students in Helsingfors, but that few had left the capital for Lapua headquarters.

The rebels at Jyvaskyla issued a proclamation to the "white party" of Finland declaring that the president had been misled by the cabinet and was unacquainted with the real state of feeling in the country.

As a result it was said that many followers of the Lapua who had intended to obey the president's orders to disband, had changed their minds and now were adhering to the revolution.

The revolution began last Saturday at Mantsala and had for its purpose the elimination of Marxism and socialism or communism from the government of Finland. The government has maintained that it has similar aims, but objects to the Lapuan military methods.

Japanese Boycott Pledge Circulated

Sponsors of Petition Say It Will Not Embarrass Government.

Petitions whose signers pledge themselves not to buy silk or other Japanese goods are being circulated in Washington by the Association for a Boycott of Imports from Japan, which is headed by Mrs. Gertrude Healy Shorb, president, and Mrs. Eilene Marie Galloway, secretary.

The petitions call attention to the Japanese military activities in China, and their signers state they are convinced that these violate the Kellogg pact and the nine-power treaty. The petitions express regret that the "military party in Japan" has paid no attention to the protests of the League of Nations or this Government, but affirms its friendliness to the Japanese people.

Accompanying the petitions is an opinion by Raymond Leslie Buell, research director of the Foreign Policy Association, in which he says that the boycott will not lead to war. It will not affect Japanese women and children, he says, nor embarrass our Government.

Plenty Coos, 85, Chief Of Crow Indians, Dies

Billings, Mont., March 4 (A.P.).—Plenty Coos, chief of the Crow tribe, who represented the American Indians at the burial of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington Cemetery, died today at his Reservation home at Pryor, south of here. For many months Chief Plenty Coos had been ill, blind and crippled. He was 85 years old.

Known as a chieftain particularly skillful in negotiations with the Government, Plenty Coos was often the central figure in ceremonies honoring celebrities coming to this section. Among the notables he inducted into the Crow tribe were Marshal Foch, Vice President Curtis, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, and Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord.

ITALO-FRENCH TRADE ACCORD IS REACHED

Temporary Pact to Function Pending Writing of New Commercial Treaty.

Rome, March 4 (A.P.).—France and Italy today signed an operating agreement for the regulation of commerce pending the completion of a new treaty, and simultaneously Italy and Austria signed a convention facilitating the transportation of credits and other phases of their commercial relations.

The Italo-French accord will replace a commercial treaty of 1922, which was denounced by France December 17, 1931. Representatives of the two nations will meet at a date still unfixed for the purpose of formulating a new permanent treaty.

Variation in the exchange rate and the changing economic situation in both countries were understood to be reasons for the denunciation of the old pact.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and the ambassadors of France and Austria put their signatures to the two accords.

The Austrian convention laid the groundwork for an Italo-Austrian commission to regulate rail shipments and for the creation of a permanent credit organization of mixed Austro-Italian capital to aid exports. The organization will maintain administrative offices at Milan and Vienna.

The organization functions as a clearing house, advancing payments to exporters on exports and thus eliminating the necessity of collections at the place of delivery and in the currency of the point of delivery.

The accord stipulates use by the clearing house of common paper negotiable in both countries and issued to exporters against funds paid to the organization in the national currency of importers. The system has been functioning on a trial basis for two months.

Firecrackers Provide New Scare in Shanghai

Shanghai, March 4 (A.P.).—Gunshots popping in the streets today sent harried citizens scurrying for shelter, but it was only a bombardment of firecrackers.

It seems hundreds of Chinese had stored up their New Year's fireworks because there was a battle going on when the day of celebration came, and today they brought them out all at once and shot them off until curfew time at 10 o'clock.

Jahncke Attacks Army-Navy Plan

(Associated Press.)

The proposed consolidation of the Army and Navy, sponsored by the Democratic House leadership, was attacked last night by Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Speaking over the radio, Mr. Jahncke denied the consolidation would increase efficiency and said it would likely result in an increased expenditure instead of "saving a mythical $100,000,000."

"It is an old political custom to stage a sham battle for a hopeless—and frequently worthless—cause in order that the champions may in the future claim that their potentially beneficial measures were destroyed by their opponents," Mr. Jahncke said.

RITCHIE, IN CAROLINA, AGAIN ASSAILS G.O.P.

Presidential Aspirant Renews Attack on Prohibition in Two Addresses.

Columbia, S. C., March 4 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland renewed his attack upon national prohibition, delivered a sharp criticism of the Republican party, and pleaded for a decentralization of governmental powers in two addresses here today.

The Marylander, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, spoke this morning to the South Carolina Legislature, and tonight he delivered an address at a George Washington Bicentennial meeting.

Advocating return to the States of the functions of government, Gov. Ritchie said:

"If the political mind and ingenuity of one State conceives of this or that possible change, it can put it to the test of experiment and others can copy. If they do not all copy or can not all agree, that is their right. Not to respect it and to force it on them through the medium of a central government is a nullification of their rights."

Diversified Conditions.

Referring specifically to national prohibition, he said: "My concern is not at all whether the country is to be wet or dry, but how, in this land of diversified peoples and conditions, can Government best deal with the problem.

"My observation is that our greatest progress toward temperance was made before we mixed morals, politics and legislation all up together."

Gov. Ritchie charged that the Republican administration "promised an early recovery when the worst was still to come, erected tariff barriers which heightened the collapse, resorted to the 'world-wide' alibi" and "blamed our troubles on peoples across the sea."

The speaker assailed the tariff, declaring it had "destroyed America's export trade" and "encouraged American manufacturers to migrate abroad, there to employ foreign labor when home labor was out of a job."

Opposes Debts Cancellation.

He opposed cancellation of foreign war debts, saying such action would transfer the cost of the war, so far as represented by Liberty bonds, from the foreign people "who owe the money to the shoulders of the already overtaxed American people."

Problems of unemployment, depression, agriculture, industry, tariff and foreign affairs, Gov. Ritchie declared, must be faced with policies intelligible to the American people and justifying their confidence and respect.

He urged a policy of governmental economies instead of "eternally looking for sources of new revenue."

SALES TAX RATE SET IN NEW REVENUE BILL

tax also applies to all imported articles ready for marketing.

Will Consider Oil Imports Tax.

The committee will consider today the levying of a tax on petroleum imports along with other recommended excise levies on electricity, gasoline and industrial alcohol. Proponents of the tax are advocating levies from 25 to 84 cents a barrel.

In connection with his announcement that the bill would be ready for House action next week, Mr. Crisp said Secretary Mills was planning to issue Treasury bonds soon for refinancing purposes.

"The people of the country ought to know that we are planning a tax bill that will balance the budget," the Georgia Democrat said. "The balancing of the budget through this revenue bill will do more to restore confidence and normal business conditions and provide employment than any one thing Congress can do."

The rate of 2¼ per cent was recommended by the sales tax subcommittee. It had made an exhaustive study of the Canadian sales levy with the cooperation of Secretary Mills and Treasury experts.

Two Per Cent Rate Rejected.

The proposed flat 2 per cent rate was rejected when revised estimates, making allowances for exemptions, showed the prospective yield would reach only $517,000,000.

Taking the sales tax as a basis for the remainder of the bill, the committee expects to complete its two months of labor probably by tonight.

Although it has not determined what specific articles shall be exempted from the levy, it has generally agreed that plain and raw foodstuffs, school books, Bibles and bare necessities of life would be excluded.

Acting Chairman Crisp said that as soon as the exemptions were determined, it could then be ascertained how much revenue would have to be obtained by levying excise taxes. Gasoline, imported petroleum, electricity, industrial alcohol and household gas have been suggested for excise levies. Automobiles are to bear the sales tax.

Recommendations from a subcommittee for modification of the capital gains and loss provision and for other administrative exchanges expected to bring in about $100,000,000 in additional revenue were received by the whole committee yesterday. Mr. Crisp said, however, it had not approved them.

Rate Increases Are Planned.

Increases in corporate taxes from 12 to 13 per cent and higher rates on individual income and estate levies are expected to yield about $200,000,000 on the basis of latest estimates.

The committee expects about $150,000,000 to be shaved by Congress from President Hoover's budget estimates for next year and does not plan to make the bill yield the entire amount of the expected deficit.

The first attack on the new sales tax in the House was made yesterday by Representative Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, who said it "puts it on the poor man, laborer and consumer."

"It is a tax on prosperity," he said. "Whenever you increase the cost of articles you decrease consumption. The sales tax will slow down economic recovery of the country."

Representative Strong (Republican), Kansas, said in reply that "if you put on a 2 per cent sales tax, you will raise immense revenue and the man who has the most money to spend will pay the most money in taxes."

Many people would not even know there was a tax, he said.

CONDITION OF SHAW CALLED UNIMPROVED

Former Treasury Secretary Is Critically Ill of Pneumonia.

The condition of Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury during the administration of President Roosevelt, who is critically ill in his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel, was discribed last night as "unimproved."

Mr. Shaw, who is 83 years old, disregarded a severe cold two weeks ago and left Washington on a business trip to New York. Complications set in, and he developed pneumonia. He returned here with his daughter, Mrs. John McMillin, who is in constant attendance at his bedside.

A native of Vermont, Mr. Shaw graduated from Cornell and Drake Universities, and for a number of years practiced law and conducted a banking business in Iowa. He served as governor of that State for two terms, and was Secretary of the Treasury from 1902 to 1907. He has made his home in Washington and New York since that time.

Mr. Shaw is a member of the board of directors of the Cities Service Co., and it was to attend a meeting of the board that he went to New York. He is also widely known as an author and lecturer.

Taking an active part in the litigation that involved the ownership of Wardman Park Hotel, Mr. Shaw instituted the suit that attacked Halsey Stuart & Co., for its part in refinancing the property.

He has one son, Earl B. Shaw, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Mrs. E. G. Mitchell Dies of Pneumonia

Widow of Washington Newspaperman to Be Buried Monday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gertrude Mitchell, widow of Capt. J. Walter Mitchell, who was known for many years as "the dean of Washington newspapermen," died of pneumonia yesterday in Emergency Hospital. She had been ill only a few days. A son, Frank Noble Mitchell, is at the hospital with pneumonia, and his condition is serious.

Mrs. Mitchell, whose husband was employed on Washington newspapers for more than twenty years, was an author and poetess in her own right. She had obtained prominence in the Capital for her poetry. She lived at 4344 River road northwest.

She is survived, besides her son, by a daughter, Mrs. May G. Griffith, and a sister, Mrs. Lantz Huff. Funeral services will be held at the W. W. Chambers funeral parlors on Monday, at an hour to be named later. She will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery beside her husband, who was founder of Miles Camp, United Spanish War Veterans.

Change Proposed In Dependency Act

Welfare Board Would Double Home Care Period for Children.

A Board of Public Welfare proposal to double the residential requirement in the act providing home care for dependent children was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners and will be sent to Congress today as a proposed amendment to the law.

The welfare board suggested that the residential period be increased from one to two years.

"It has become increasingly apparent that because of the comparatively short period of residence required by the act," the board said, "persons who are eligible to this assistance, except in the matter of residence, are coming to the District of Columbia, establishing their residence of one year and immediately thereafter making their application. It is felt that this practice should be deterred."

Reduction of Alimony Won by Paul Llewellyn

Chicago, March 4 (A.P.).—Paul Llewellyn, of Rectortown, Va., former vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation, today was granted a petition asking that alimony of his divorced wife be reduced from $900 to $300 a month.

Mrs. Mary O. Llewellyn agreed to the new alimony schedule. Llewellyn said his former income of $25,000 a year had been reduced to about $10,000 last year because of mortgages. A daughter, Mary Belle, 15, will continue to receive $200 a month from her father. The Llewellyns were married in 1909 and divorced in 1924.

HOUSE GROUP VOTES NEW FILIPINO BILL

Act Approved Would Give Islands Liberty in From 7 to 9 Years.

(Associated Press.)

The House insular affairs committee yesterday approved a bill intended to give the Philippine Islands complete independence in seven to nine years.

Chairman Hare explained the measure as finally accepted by the committee would require the United States to maintain sovereignty over the Philippines five years after they had established a new government.

"They tell us it would take from two to four years to get the new government in operation," Hare said. "That would let the islands become independent in from seven to nine years."

Hare said the committee's vote, in executive session, had been "practically unanimous in approval of the measure. He probably will ask the rules committee to grant right-of-way to the bill so it can be brought up in the House shortly.

The committee fixed 40,000 tons of refined sugars and 800,000 tons of unrefined sugars as the amount to be admitted to the United States duty free during the period of limitation.

The Philippine mission received a message from Manuel Quezon yesterday before the bill was reported out, asking that the mission seek to have United States consumption taken as a basis for computing the 20 per cent exports which the islands wish to be guaranteed during the period of limitation.

Several weeks ago the mission asked that the Filipinos be assured 20 per cent of United States sugar imports, based upon official import figures. The consumption basis would give the Philippines a larger quota.

Manuel Roxas, member of the Philippine mission, said the committee had fixed a definite tonnage, cutting down the amount that would be guaranteed by using the import figures by about 150,000 tons annually. He said nothing would be done further on this.

Shot in Back Costs 25-Year Sentence

Victim of Holdup Man Is Hopelessly Crippled by Bullet.

A 25-year sentence in the penitentiary was imposed upon Thurston Hunt, colored, yesterday by Justice James M. Proctor, in the District Supreme Court. Hunt was convicted early in the week of shooting Vernon Renshaw, taxicab driver, in the back. Renshaw is now a hopeless cripple, confined to the Emergency Hospital.

Testimony was to the effect that Hunt "stuck-up" Renshaw, and after ejecting him from the cab and robbing him, at Ninth and N streets northwest, told him to run down an adjacent alley. As Renshaw started to do as he was ordered, the colored man fired at his retreating figure.

The bullet shattered Renshaw's back bone. When he was called as a witness, he identified Hunt in the courtroom. A wheel chair was brought into use to get Renshaw into court. Assistant United States Attorney John J. Sirica prosecuted the case.

Sidewalk Assessment Arranged.

Property owners on the north side of College avenue, in College Park, Md., will be assessed about $1,000 for the construction of 1,900 feet of 5-foot sidewalk on this street. The concrete walk will begin at the Baltimore boulevard and extend in the direction of the railroad tracks. Total cost of the walk will be about $1,500, but a third of this will be raised by local subscription.

NINE-BILLION VALUE PUT ON RAIL LINES

I. C. C. Tosses Estimate Into Hearings on Merger of Eastern Carriers.

(Associated Press.)

A nine-billion-dollar figure—the estimated value of the railroads which seek to merge under the four system plan for the East—was tossed into the consolidation hearing yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

As the commission sees it, the properties involved are worth more than a third of all railroads in the United States, the entire value of the lines being placed at approximately $26,000,000,000.

In the event, however, that the application to group the Eastern lines into four systems—the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate—is approved the railroads probably will tell the commission they disagree with the figures placed in the record yesterday.

Ideas of Worth Differ.

The commission's ideas of what the railroads are worth and the ideas of the railroads themselves have been at variance almost since the commission began its work.

The figures yesterday were brought to January 1, 1931, by taking the valuations arrived at in the years from 1915 to 1920, adding net additions, betterments and retirements, and subtracting accrued depreciation.

On that basis the value of the thirteen roads included in the New York Central system was fixed at $2,502,719,622. This, however, and the other estimates did not include roads assigned to two or more systems under the grouping plan.

Pennsylvania System.

The value of the 15 lines in the Pennsylvania system was estimated at $3,143,084,636; the 16 roads in the Baltimore & Ohio, $1,639,049,245 and the 22 in the Chesapeake & Ohio, $1,581,791,290.

Among lines jointly assigned, the Virginian, which would go to the Pennsylvania and Chesapeake & Ohio, was given a valuation of $108,643,942 and the Delaware & Hudson, which would go jointly to all four systems, was valued at $106,941,022.

If the railroads accept the commission's figures, they would probably be used as a basis for rate making and the issuance of securities. If the railroads object, as they usually do, the courts would have the final say.

Famous O'Fallon Case.

There is only one Supreme Court decision on railroad valuation in recent years. That came in the famous O'Fallon case. The verdict did not settle the question, although it overturned the commission's estimate of the worth of the Missouri road.

In the decision, the court said the commission must allow for reproduction value of the railroads. Most of the figures presented yesterday were arrived at through methods similar to those used in the O'Fallon case.

After a recess, oral argument on the consolidation proposals will begin probably on April 25. The commission then will take the question under consideration for its final verdict.

Southern Counsel Protests.

Allotment of both the Western Maryland and Virginian railroads to the New York Central System in the proposed four-trunk line rail consolidation was asked yesterday by western Pennsylvania coal operators.

A statement by A. S. Boden, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, before the Interstate Commerce Commission that such a disposition would provide "a fair balance" of coal traffic in the East was assailed by counsel for Southern coal operators as an attempt to have Northern carriers control rates in the South.

Under the four-party plan of the carriers, the Western Maryland would go to the Baltimore & Ohio and the Virginian jointly to the Pennsylvania and Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate System.

Another claim by Mr. Boden that his plan would increase the tonnage of the New York Central for the Northwest drew criticism from J. V. Norman, attorney for Southern operators.

LaGuardia and Blanton Will Debate Prohibition

(Associated Press.)

Whether the eighteenth amendment should be repealed will be debated over the radio tonight by Representatives LaGuardia and Blanton.

Mr. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, will speak for 11 minutes against repeal; Mr. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, 13 minutes for repeal, and the Texan will have two minutes rebuttal. The debate will be over the Columbia Broadcasting System from 10 to 10:30 p. m., Eastern standard time.

HOUSE STRIKES FROM BILL BAN ON SALARY INCREASES

rol L. Beedy (Republican), of Maine. It passed by a vote of 81 to 41.

None of the proposed amendments came as a surprise. Both Representative LaGuardia and Representative Mead had served notice they intended to offer them. The favorable vote, however, was unexpected, as the restrictive clause already has been applied to three bills passed by the House, including Agriculture, Interior Department, and State, Justice, Commerce and Labor supply measures.

It was made part of the last supply bill reported, the independent offices appropriations measure. The Senate, on the other hand, refused to incorporate either the ban on pay increases or the provision against filling of vacancies without presidential order in bills reported this year. The Senate appropriation committee said the item was discarded "without prejudice" to further consideration in conference.

Chairman Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, of the House District committee; Representatives Philip D. Swing (Republican) California; Robert E. Thomason (Democrat), Texas; Frank Oliver (Democrat), New York, and David Hogg (Republican), Indiana, joined Representatives LaGuardia, Mead and Beedy in the floor battle on the section.

Representative Byrns alone took the floor to oppose them. When the opposition lined up to pass before the tellers, Speaker John N. Garner, who during the committee of the whole relinquished his seat to Representative Edgar Howard (Democrat), Nebraska, was among those who voted against the LaGuardia amendment.

Mr. LaGuardia, who had made his same speech before in vain efforts to strike the provision from previous bills, cited the Senate's course in failing to approve the pay increase restriction. He charged that Congress in refusing advancement was violating the "sacred contract" it made with Federal employes in the reclassification act. Savings under the section would never compensate for the "breakdown in morale" that would result, he told the House.

Representative Swing declared the course "poor psychology," particularly in view of the Government's aid to banks and business through enactment of the reconstruction and Glass-Steagall measures.

Representative Mead held the section unfair to all Government workers, especially to Postoffice substitutes, who have labored years at low salaries in the hope of getting increase in pay and permanent berths.

Mrs. Norton told the House "this is the wrong time to economize." She said her office had been flooded with letters detailing suffering that would be inflicted by the provision.

Mr. Byrns alone called on the House to support the Pou rule, making the restrictive provisions applicable to every appropriation bill.

"Remember, this means no reduction in salaries," he said. "And the restriction on pay increases applies only to a few."

FEDERAL RAIL LOANS TOTAL 24 MILLIONS

Less Than Third of Amount Drawn by Finance Fund Goes to Carriers.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation to date has loaned to the railroads of the country a total of $24,979,850.77 out of $83,973,081.70 drawn from the Treasury.

The largest of these loans, $7,500,000, was extended to the Southern Railway Co. on March 2, for the payment of maturing principal installments of equipment trust obligations and toward meeting interest and rental requirements.

The second largest went to a railroad in the hands of receivers—the Wabash. This loan, in the amount of $7,173,800, was extended to meet principal obligations maturing on February 15.

The interest rate on all the railroad loans so far made by the corporation has been 6 per cent, and the terms have been variously arranged to meet the needs of the companies and the restrictions of the act creating the corporation.

Policy on Rail Loans.

Under the law, the corporation has authority to aid in temporary financing of railroads and railways engaged in interstate commerce, the right to lend to railroads in process of construction, and to receivers of railroads.

A definite policy on railroad loans includes the following eight definite requirements:

The board of directors must be of the opinion that the roads are unable to obtain funds upon reasonable terms through banking channels, or from the general public, and that the corporation will be adequately secured.

Loans must have the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the form of obligation and terms and security, therefore, must comply with the requirements of the commission and of the corporation.

The maturity of the loans may not exceed three years.

Loans can not be made for the purpose of initiating of financing any enterprise not undertaken prior to January 22, 1932.

Loans to any one corporation and its subsidiary or affiliated organizations may not exceed at any one time $100,000,000.

No fee or commission shall be paid by any applicant for a loan under the provisions of the act.

The receiver of a loan must consent to such examinations as the corporation may require, and reports of examinations by the Interstate Commerce Commission or other constituted authorities may be requested by the corporation.

Statements and valuations of securities offered by an applicant for a loan are subject to all the covering provisions of the finance corporation act and these provisions must be studied thoroughly by all railroads applying for loans.

Additional Loans.

In addition to the loans made to the Southern and to the Wabash, the corporation has made the following extensions:

To the Alabama, Tennessee & Northern Railroad Co., $274,550.77; Western & Pacific Railroad Co., $2,102,000; Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway Co., $3,629,500; Missouri Pacific Railroad, $4,300,000.

The corporation has steadily maintained a policy of declining to announce the amount of loans made to banks. A full report to Congress of all loans is required under the law on April 1.

3 Railways Announce Loans Are Not Needed

Omaha, Nebr., March 4 (A.P.).—Presidents of the Burlington, Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads announced here today that their roads have not applied for loans from the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation and did not intend to do so this year.

President Ralph Bull of the Burlington saw encouraging promises of large grain movements as a result of well-soaked soil in Iowa and Nebraska.

Operation on N'Gi Is Called Success

Marked Improvement Is Noted in Condition of Baby Gorilla.

The emergency operation performed Thursday night on N'Gi, the baby gorilla at the Zoo, was pronounced a success last night. The little fellow rallied considerably and seemed to take an interest in his surroundings.

The operation, the first of its kind in medical history, was performed by Dr. Charles Stanley White, prominent Washington surgeon. With a score of white-coated attendants grouped about the motionless body of the little creature, a tube was inserted in his side and more than a quart of fluid, which by degrees was stopping N'Gi's breathing, was drawn from his left lung.

Reed Measure Similar to Bowman's "Blue Sky" House Proposal.

A companion bill to Representative Frank L. Bowman's measure to regulate sale of securities in the District, was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator David A. Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania.

The bill would deny licenses to security dealers found guilty of fraud. Other "blue sky" bills have been introduced in the House and Senate by Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, and Representative Adolph J. Sabath (Democrat), Illinois.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, yesterday introduced a bill to authorize the District Commissioners to close certain alleys in the District. REVOLT BREAKS OUT IN SOUTHERN BRAZIL

Numerous Political Leaders Resign Capital Positions, Papers Announce.

Rivera, Uruguay, March 4 (A.P.).—Newspapers at Santa Ana, across the Brazilian border, announced through loud speakers today that a revolt was in progress in Porto Alegre and Sao Paulo, capitals of the important southern Brazilian states of Rio Grande do Sul and Sao Paulo.

The announcement said that numerous political leaders had resigned their federal posts, among them being Asais Brazil, Baptista Luzardo and Lindolfo Collor, Buenos Aires agent of the rebels in the 1930 revolution and later minister of labor in the Vargas government.

Federal and provincial troops at Santa Ana were held under orders and there was considerable excitement.

Luzardo has served as federal chief of police and Brazil as minister of agriculture.

Rio de Janeiro, March 4 (A.P.).—Provisional President Getulio Vargas received a delegation of the revolutionary party "Third of October" Club at the summer palace at Petropolis today.

Pedro Ernesto, federal district interventor, reaffirmed the party's solidarity with the provisional government and the president replied that with the convening of the National Assembly he desired to reorganize the nation in conformity with the desires of the people.

El Salvador Suspends Payments.

San Salvador, El Salvador, March 4 (A.P.).—The government today temporarily suspended payments on El Salvador's foreign debt due to decreased revenue and the necessity to attend first to maintaining forces to "combat Communism." The country's debt to the United States is $12,900,000 and to Great Britain $4,469,000. Dr. Miguel Tomas, the new minister of finance, said he intended to resume payment of the debt shortly.

Pilot Loses Way Over Sea.

Havana, Cuba, March 4 (A.P.).—Fog and hampering winds caused William Knox, American pilot under contract to the Dominican government, to lose his way today while flying from Miami to Havana. An extensive search was under way when Knox, who had found it necessary to land in Pinar Del Rio Province, Cuba, in order to get his bearings, brought his ship down late this afternoon at General Machado Airport here.

Marked Notes Irk Uruguay.

Montevideo, Uruguay, March 4 (A.P.).—Somebody—the Governmnet says it's the Communists—has been writing "Down with Terra's Fascist government" on Uruguayan banknotes. The directorate of the Bank of the Republic announced today that any note so marked would be without value. Dr. Gabriel Terra is the president of Uruguay.

Air Passenger Rate Cut.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 4 (A.P.).—Pan-American Airways today announced a reduction of $75 in the passenger fare between here and Miami, Fla., over both the Atlantic and Pacific routes. This brings the fare, which originally was more than $1,000, to less than $670.

Result of Girls and Boys Debate Brings New Debate

By JOHN J. DALY

THREE girls in a Syracuse oratorical society, debating against a trio of boys, took the affirmative side of the proposition: "Resolved, That boys are better debaters than girls."

Guess who won?

So, when the judges by unanimous decision awarded the forensic laurel wreaths to the young ladies, who had proved beyond doubt that the boys were better debaters, a series of serious questions arose:

If boys are better debaters than girls, the girls having proved so, why did the boys not win?

Or, if girls, having proved that boys are better debaters, failed to follow up the advantage, how could they have won the debate, letting the boys lose?

Or, if boys are actually better debaters than girls the boys would have won the debate, thus proving that the girls were wrong and boys not better debaters than girls.

Or, if girls were better debaters than boys they would have lost, to prove their point, winning their case but losing their laurels.

* * * *

CERTAINLY, this happening in Syracuse can not be attributed to chivalry on the part of the boys, for the boys set out to prove the negative of the question, "Boys are better debaters than girls." The boys wanted to prove, beyond peradventure of doubt, that they are not better debaters than girls, that girls are beter debaters than boys. All the boys had to do was sit back and listen—as men have done from time immemorial in any debate between the sexes.

The boys were smart. They let the girls work themselves into a fury proving boys are better debaters. The boys, proving themselves to be no debaters at all, and infinitely worse than the girls at forensic oratory, let the girls win to prove the point both ways.

By winning, the girls proved the boys were better debaters. By losing, the boys checked and double-checked on the result, which was to prove themselves poorer debaters than the girls who had proved the boys better debaters than girls.

* * * *

THE debate now comes down to the point, and the question: Who are really the better debaters, the boys or the girls? Or was the whole affair a frame-up?

The girls won, but the boys also won their point—which was that they are poorer debaters than the girls, who have proved them better debaters than their winning rivals. Had the boys lost, by winning, they would have let the girls win, by losing.

The point seems to be that the boys were better debaters than the girls, when not debating, and the girls better debaters than the boys, when debating.

Now, it's your turn.

GUNS QUIET, BUT NO PEACE.

The sudden peace which has settled over Shanghai is deceptive. There is no indication that hostilities in the Far East are at an end. For the moment Japan has gained her objective, and is content to hold the position she has won. But China seems to be gathering strength for a greater effort to thrust the invaders from her shores.

Both sides have a special reason for being passive at the present moment. The League of Nations assembly is in session at Geneva to pass judgment upon their dispute. Neither side wishes to appear unreasonably hostile while under surveillance. China is anxious to enlist the aid of the league in bringing the invaders to terms, and Japan is making every effort to uphold her flimsy contention that she is acting in "self-defense."

Outward protestations of peace and conciliation can be expected during the next few days, even though the troops continue to engage in minor combat. But underneath this pretense the deep-seated conflict between China and Japan is as serious as it ever was. Japan has offered China impossible terms as the basis of a peace parley. China has rejected them as a matter of course. If China were willing to negotiate with the invaders while they still occupy her territory that fact would indicate a weakness which might encourage the Japanese to proceed with their aggressive campaign. Japan will not withdraw so long as China remains actively hostile, and China can not suppress hostility so long as the Japanese army is entrenched about Shanghai.

The declaration in Tokyo that "the war is over" springs more from an ardent Japanese desire than from the facts of the situation. Japan will make an effort to bring about an international conference, with or without the participation of China, for the purpose of enlarging the International Settlement and arranging new guarantees to protect the interests of that country in China. The Tokyo government has nothing to gain from further fighting. It would be a great victory for Japan if the other nations would now step in and authorize her to keep the spoils she has thus far won. But there is no indication that any such thing will happen.

China has been aroused. This vast, unorganized country must necessarily move slowly. But it has acquired a new objective. Steps are being taken to send an army into Manchuria to upset the puppet government established by the Japanese and bring that rich area back into the Chinese republic. The Nineteenth Route Army in its defense of Shanghai gave the Chinese a new perspective on their potential power. There are many indications that China is preparing to match her strength on the battlefield with Japan rather than submit to the loss of Manchuria and to humility at Shanghai.

Extensive peace machinery is at work on the problem of averting further hostilities. But the controversy is not one that will easily yield to arbitration. Japanese imperialism has collided with the rising spirit of Chinese nationalism. It is doubtful whether they can be reconciled. A truce may be arranged and a makeshift peace might be forced upon China for the present. But the elemental conflict will remain. China's resentment and hostility against Japan can not be assuaged until the invasion in both Manchuria and Shanghai has been repulsed.

BRITISH FINANCES IMPROVE.

Repayment of the major part of the recent American credit to the Bank of England before it was due and the lifting of restrictions on foreign exchange were bold strokes that have promptly bolstered British credit throughout the world. Sterling has been in such demand that an abnormal rise in the value of the pound has only been avoided through heavy selling by official sources, while credits that were precipitately withdrawn following suspension of the gold standard are returning to London.

With renewed strength of the pound many British interests are comparing the temporary advantages to be gained from a depreciated currency with the permanent benefits that flow from a stable gold standard. Since the pound has risen to $3.50, and is ready to go higher as soon as official pressure is removed, a restored gold standard and a resumption of British domination of the financial markets of the world are envisioned.

Heavy buying of sterling exchange has been seen during the week in various parts of the world. Just before and following the stoppage of gold redemption last fall London credits held all over Europe were hastily withdrawn to the extent of nearly $1,000,000,000. With England's pronounced confidence in her own financial situation these funds are once more flowing back to London. They have been held on the continent, but there is limited opportunity there today for safe and profitable investment, and with the improved outlook for British finances they again seek an established center of deposit and investment.

If foreign purchases of sterling exchange continue, the Bank of England will eventually draw an inflow of gold that will relieve the difficult position it has occupied. Various factors are contributing to this stabilization. The flow of gold from India and Arabia is now materially aided by the sale of sovereigns and gold ornaments in England. Private sales of gold in England have been averaging 100,000 pounds a day, and the Indian shipments continue to arrive at the rate of 1,000,000 pounds a week.

This improvement in British credit gives hope that Europe as well as the United States is on the road to recovery.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE PROBE.

The Senate inquiry into stock exchange transactions and practices promises to bring sensational developments. Names of alleged market raiders are already bandied about, both in Washington and Wall street. These men are to be required to give details of their transactions during the last few months. Investigation has revealed suspiciously heavy sales of stock after every constructive move for national business recovery, beginning with President Hoover's proposal last June to suspend intergovernmental payments for one year. Bear raids occurred after the banking finance pool had been organized, and after the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was set on foot. The information in possession of the Senate investigators as to the identity of the raiders has not been revealed, and there is intense curiosity concerning the possibility of disclosing large concerted operations involving both Americans and foreigners.

The inquiry may bring out facts which would warrant legislation regulating certain stock market practices for the protection of the public, but it is generally expected that Congress will not go further. The prohibition of short selling has been demanded in some quarters. This would be highly questionable legislation from a constitutional viewpoint, even if it were deemed advisable in the public interest. The right to sell for future delivery seems to be as logical as the right to make any other contract contingent upon future action. The contract itself exacts such a penalty for nonperformance that no other precaution in the public interest is necessary. But the practice of short selling lends itself to the temptation to depress prices by combinations and by the circulation of false rumors, especially in uneasy times. It is the abuse, and not the use, of the short-selling right which the Senate resolution aims to ventilate and then possibly penalize by regulatory legislation.

TAXES IN EASTERN EUROPE.

The situation in eastern Europe between governments and their taxpayers has reached a crisis due essentially to the low price of agricultural products. While prices stay at their present low levels all concerned will face serious difficulties. For over a year the empty exchequers of six governments have forced tax collectors to try to raise money from 55,000,000 impoverished farmers. This has resulted in occasional outbreaks like the one last week when gendarmes in a small Hungarian village fired into the crowd of peasants who had gathered to demonstrate against the auction of cattle seized for tax delinquency.

The lot of the peasant in this section has never been easy. Serfdom was abolished but a few generations ago and virtual feudalism continued until after the World War. Land reforms and high post-war prices seemed to usher in a new and better order for the small landholder. The institution of universal suffrage offered him for the first time a direct voice in politics, and farm parties came into existence in Austria, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria. Although the National Peasant party of Julius Maniu is out of office in Roumania, the farmers still remain the most important single unit politically.

The Hungarian farmer, in that grain-growing land, probably has less voice in the government than in the neighboring countries. Though Count Bethlen's party includes the words "Farmers' Party" in its official title the system of open ballot has retarded the formation of a strong and independent farm group. In all the countries, however, the situation is similar. The governments need money and try to collect it from farmers who can not pay.

Taxpayers in Roumania hardly dare to appear in the villages. As a result the government has introduced a bill to relieve the peasant by converting taxes into long-term interest-bearing obligations to the state. Bulgaria has granted long-term facilities for debts up to $1,000 to farmers and has suspended forced sales for taxes until November 1. Tax collections in Czechoslovakia have been suspended in the notorious Carpatho-Ruthenia district where for years the peasants fled to the woods with their cattle when the tax collector came through. The Pacsa shooting in Hungary forced the government to introduce a milder form of collection, although laxity in collection had already caused arrears amounting to $15,000,000 and Hungary needs every cent it can get to meet its foreign obligations. These measures may ease the lot of the eastern European peasant sufficiently to allow him to regain a measure of independence.

MODERN HOBBIES.

Time was when golf and bridge were considered the fashionable hobbies of American men and women, but that day seems to have passed. Golf depends upon weather and bridge depends upon unlimited prosperity, and both fads, for these or other reasons, have very definitely given ground in recent years to other pastimes. Of the new fads, philately or stamp-collecting and autograph-hunting appear to be especially fashionable.

An amazing increase in interest in stamps is evidenced by the crowds at postoffices whenever a new issue goes on sale. At Yorktown in October, at Lake Placid in early February, and at Mount Vernon on February 22 hundreds of thousands of stamps were sold to collectors, amateur and professional. Extraordinary arrangements had to be made by the Postoffice Department to care for the business; the customary machinery was altogether inadequate in the circumstances. Naturally, the department believes that it is worth while to cater to the wishes of collectors, for they buy stamps in quantities and ask little in actual postal service. The profits from the sale of Bicentennial stamps, it has been estimated, will go far toward paying all the expenses of the celebration.

The gentle art of gathering autographs receives less publicity, but enjoys a degree of popularity but little, if any, less vigorous than its philatelic rival. Thousands of individuals are autograph fans. They pursue celebrities of every sort with passion and cunning. Presidents, Cabinet officers, senators, representatives, Army and Navy officers, editors and writers share with criminals, movie actors and pugilists the doubtful privilege of receiving unnumbered applications for "a sentiment and a signature." In illustration of the fad, a story is told of Henry Ford.

Mr. Ford, so the anecdote recounts, had built in his home at Dearborn, Mich., a fine new organ of the approved residence type. When the installation had been completed, Mr. Ford was so highly pleased with the instrument that he asked the names of all the workmen who had participated in the labor and within a few days mailed to each man a personal check for $100 as a symbol of his satisfaction and appreciation. Several months passed, and only a very few of the checks came back to Mr. Ford through his bank. He waited a litlte longer, and then asked his secretary to communicate with the objects of his beneficence. The secretary's letters remained unanswered. Finally, Mr. Ford himself wrote to the organ builders, begging them to help him to balance his books by depositing the checks for collection. The obvious explanation was at last forthcoming. The men very frankly confessed that they preferred Mr. Ford's autograph to his money. They had framed his checks to hang in their respective parlors, well knowing that in time to come the signature would be worth far more than a mere $100.

The tax bill now being drafted by a House committee is expected to prove one of the most effective means yet advanced to stop hoarding.

CODFISH AND OTHER BIRDS

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Massachusetts, one of the six States which has not yet selected a "State bird," took time out the other day to choose between the golden-throated "veery" and the palatable "codfish." Probably the codfish might never have risen to such inordinate heights as to be considered in the same category with the veery had not a legislator, at a hearing, confessed that all along he had supposed Massachusetts already had a State bird and that it was the codfish.

One can easily imagine how the legislator was misled. For a codfish in effigy floats suspended from the dome over the heads of the legislators at their work in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. A few years ago a portrait of a codfish was implanted on the Bay State's automobile registration plates, and the subject of this portrait has since continued to soar, at least in popular estimation. A leading member of the Audubon Society conceded that if the codfish, by some phenomenal process, could sprout wings, he, for one, would indorse it for the State-bird championship. Another legislator, to support his stand, declared that even though the codfish was seldom seen beyond the boundaries of the dinner table, it is far better known to the average citizen than the veery.

It was the contention of women's club members that since the veery seemed to be so little known, its selection as State bird would form an important part of an educational campaign to familiarize the public (and the Legislature, if necessary) with the value of birds. For instance, did they know that the veery's food was composed of destructive insects? Did they know that it had a voice with the sweetness and wildness of the forests? Ah, no! But they did know that the codfish tasted mighty good and was found in large quantities along Massachusetts shores.

Finally, however, it was agreed that if there was no complaint filed in the Legislature by the other birds, the veery stood a fine chance of winning the contest. It is doubtful, however, if the codfish, having seen a chance to rise to a more honorable position than the dining room table, will permit his candidacy to lapse without at least a disconcerting wriggle. Indeed, if he can trace his lineage back to some branch of the flying fish family, he may yet attain as secure a place in ornithology as the burro, which Coloradoans dub the "Rocky Mountain canary."

PAUL HUDSON.

BIRD LONGEVITY.

Authentic records of the ages attained by our birds are sadly lacking with many of the species, according to Albert Stoll, jr., in the Detroit News. We are told wild geese, swans, eagles and parrots very often pass the century mark before departing this life. Old World storks have 70 years set as the span of their lives, while canaries consider 24 years as the limit of old age. Blackbirds normally carry on for 18 years, and the common barnyard fowl for from 15 to 20.

Nineteen years ago South Dakota released its first Chinese ring-necked pheasants in its game covers. The birds, numbering 200, were brought from New York State, and before liberation each one was given a dated metal leg band. This past winter one of these birds, a male, was picked up during a snowstorm on the verge of starvation. It was given shelter and food, and later liberated. This is evidence that the pheasant does reach 20 years of age, and this perhaps holds true of most of our upland game birds.

JUST FOLKS

THE WAITRESS.

There is a little lad in school
Whose mother in a large hotel
Attends the whims of sage and fool
That he may learn to write and spell.

He never sees the loaded tray
Of dishes which she has to bear
Or hears the silly things men say
In jest while she is toiling there.

He is too young to understand
Why nightly to the town she goes
And passes food to people grand
In banquet rooms that never close.

In years to come that boy may grow
To sit at banquet tables trim,
And seeing the waitresses, he'll know
All that his mother braved for him.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE—As every normal boy, at some period in his teens, suddenly and unaccountably becomes aware of dirt, so every tom-boy girl at some mysterious turning point in her life becomes noise-conscious.

She no longer feels a desire to whoop; she smiles more and giggles less; and she can greet a friend across the street without seeming to strive for first honors in a hog-calling contest.

She has become a "young lady." But her voice, alas! remains the voice of Jacob. Long and careless usage, without other ambition than the achievement of noise, has given her the voice of a crow.

Fortunately the fault is easily corrected. A voice is what you make it.

When motion pictures became vocal, devotees of canned drama were horrified to discover that many of their idols talked in the tone of voice peculiar to kitchen maids and fish mongers.

The only stars who survived without a season of training were those who had learned their art on the stage and the few who had absorbed good manners in homes of culture and refinement.

The "mike" revealed family history and early environment with the heartless frankness of a back-fence gossip.

But tone isn't everything. A voice that is naturally soft and sweet may seem unpleasant still if it isn't trained in articulation.

Ann Harding learned before she became an actress. She had won success in the business world, and one of her duties as a private secretary was the making of dictophone records for other secretaries who did the typing. She learned to pronounce her words clearly, one joint at a time, to lighten the labors of the other girls. And now her voice is half of her charm.

Many a girl who seems to have a fortune in her face and figure is revealed as a bankrupt when she opens her mouth.

Speech reveals far more than the meaning of words. It reveals home influence, early environment, breeding, character. It is a window you open to show strangers your history.

Please, my dear, don't be too careless or too lazy to keep the window clean. Love, DAD.

That Prohibition Poll.

Jewell (Kans.) Republican.

Jewell has received two batches of Literary Digest prohibition ballots. In the last consignment there were 50 letters by actual count which could not be delivered at this postoffice because the addressees no longer receive their mail here, or were entirely unknown. As there is no provision for returning these circulars or forwarding them, they were burned. Some of the addressees had left Jewell five or six years ago. The Digest must be using an antiquated mailing list. In view of the fact that so many nondeliverable ballots came to a third-class postoffice, it is reasonable that many thousands of nondeliverable ballots would pile up in the postoffices of the larger cities, and the presence of such ballots scattered over the country is enough to impeach the accuracy of the poll.

A Big Job for the Voters.

Kansas City Star.

A constituent of Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, writes in to say that "the public is convinced that politicians at Washington and elsewhere are being paid salaries out of all proportion to their abilities or compared with what they could make in any other position." The senator replies if the members of Congress "are paid more than they could earn in private life," then "the fault rests with the voters and not with those whom the voters elect."

The plain implication is that the voters ought to select representatives at Washington who would be sure to earn their full pay. But isn't that placing too big a burden upon the voters?

Enigma.

Chicago Tribune.

The first returns in a national straw vote on prohibition that is being taken by a weekly magazine shows that 87 per cent of the voters are against the sacred amendment. Wonder what becomes of those birds on election day?

Congress Has Tried Before.

Boston Transcript.

We have little doubt that the taxpayers of the United States prefer a practical to a political reorganization of the Federal departments; as little, also, that in the controversy between the President and the House over this subject the House will win—that is, to the extent of formulating its own plan. How far the measure will get beyond that is in the lap of the gods, for the Senate may resist the House plan and the whole worthy movement fall down between the two. The Senate is only nominally Republican, nevertheless it is Republican enough for the purposes of this reorganization to suggest the thought that it will not yield to the House on political points when so doing may weaken Republican members, of whatever stripe, in their own States.

It is Speaker Garner, not the President, that has insisted upon making the reorganization a partisan matter, and once Congress starts to entangle itself in the complexities of departmental reorganization it may find itself in a snarl from which it will be difficult to extricate itself. As the President tartly remarks, Congress has tried for 25 years to simplify the processes of the executive departments and each time has been compelled to abandon its attempt.

But Who Got the Money?

New Bedford Standard.

Because Sheriff Farley, of New York County, has more money than he could plausibly account for, Gov. Roosevelt has removed him. The governor is being praised for his action, and rightly so; and it is conceivable that he will reap some reward for his virtue in the good opinion people in other parts of the country will have for him as a consequence of his ousting a Tammany official. Meanwhile, it should not be forgotten that it was Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstader committee, who turned up the evidence that led to Farley's downfall.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Praise for Navy's Friends and Protest Against Navy's Decline—Unfortified Philippines a Weak Spot.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American people should thank their lucky stars that they have such men as Senators Hale and Reed and Representative Vinson to wage a valiant fight against the practicing of false economy measures on the American Navy.

Why is it that the Navy is always hit first in economy measures, when, as the Nation's first line of defense, it should be hit last? At the end of the World War the American Navy, composed of new and modern ships, was the dominating sea power of the world, but upon pressure from Europe the Washington naval conference was held, in which not only was our Navy limited, but we agreed not to fortify Guam or the Philippines.

The decision not to fortify Guam or the Philippines is one of the most foolish in the history of the world. These island lie at Japan's very doorstep and would fall an easy prey to that nation should we ever have war with Japan, as we probably shall in view of developments of the past few years.

Once Japan gained possession of these islands all she would have to do would be to wait until the United States brought the war to her in an attempt to regain the islands. Thus the United States would be placed in a very disadvantageous position before war had really started.

Only by maintaining an adequate Navy could this Nation ever retain the Philippines. Japan would think twice before warring with a United States possessing the greatest navy in the world.

And if any one is foolish enough to believe Japan is "our friend," let him or her read two books now immensely popular in Japan: "Japan Need Not Fear the United States" and "A War With the United States Is Coming."

A. B.

Quotation From a Washington Epistle in the British Museum a Timely Pronouncement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am taking the privilege of mailing to you a paragraph taken from a letter written in George Washington's own handwriting, addressed to the Earl of Buchan. I had the privilege of recently reading this letter, which is at present in the files of the British Museum. The paragraph reads:

"I believe it is the wish of the United States of America to have nothing to do with the political intrigues or the squabbles of European peoples, but, on the contrary, to exchange commodities and live in peace and amity with all the inhabitants of the earth. This I am persuaded they will do if rightfully it can be done."

It may be that this letter, written in Philadelphia on April 29, 1798, has been published in full in some of the writings dealing with Washington's biography, but I have not had the privilege of reading it in print. The sentiment in this letter as expressed by him is apparently so aptly put and so applicable to the sentiments of many people at the present time I thought it worth while to call your attention to it again.

Reader Approves Dr. Smith's Insistence on Police Pursuit of Major Criminals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I believe your readers will give general approval to the communication from one of your contributors protesting against Gen. Glassford's announced intention of centering his efforts on prohibition enforcement in the face of the existing unprecedented crime wave in this city. This protest does not come from the "brewery interests," as Clarence True Wilson loves to call all those who disagree with his dry views, but from a highly esteemed minister of the gospel, who knows the local situation.

If Gen. Glassford is under any obligation to the dry leaders in return for his appointment he had better forget them, for the citizens of this District are aroused by the numerous serious crimes now being committed here and going unpunished. Lives and property are more important than half pints of liquor.

Correspondent, Not Discouraged by Congressional Committee Meeting, Finds Life Worth Living.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you please give my compliments to the writer of the editorial, "Washington at Dawn?" I don't know when I have read anything that really thrilled me more than that editorial.

I was at the Capitol and to a committee meeting this morning and while waiting in one of the corridors I had my beloved Washington Post to read. After the committee meeting, which was as usual largely "blah," I walked out on the terrace and looked over our city. The view of Washington in the mist, the wide stretch of river, the trees just coming into leaf, renewed my faith and made me feel that indeed life is worth while.

Mr. Weathers Joins in Plea for Revision of Traffic Rules.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We are at the beginning of a great Bicentennial celebration. Beyond doubt millions of people from different part of our Nation will visit the Capital this year. If traffic conditions are not corrected this city will be in danger of becoming a veritable slaughter-pen. I would suggest an increase of the police force, a cutting down of the speed rate, and the abolishment of the left turn granted recently to traffic. This turn is a deadly danger to pedestrians.

COMMITTEE WOULD UNSEAT BANKHEAD

Republicans of Senate Elections Subgroup Hold Vote Fraudulent.

(Associated Press.)

The contest against the election of Senator John H. Bankhead, Alabama Democrat, culminated yesterday in a recommendation from a Senate elections subcommittee that his seat be vacated.

Voting along strictly party lines, the contest subcommittee adopted a report drafted by Chairman Hastings (Republican), Delaware, that widespread violation of election laws made the election fraudulent, and that Bankhead's nomination was invalid because of an illegal primary.

Democratic members of the committee will submit a minority report to the full committee along with the majority report next week.

Heflin ran against Bankhead as a "Jeffersonian Democrat" and was defeated by about 50,000 votes. He had been barred from the Democratic primary because of his opposition in 1928 to the Democratic presidential candidate, Al Smith.

Would Not Seat Heflin.

Adoption of the committee's report by the Senate would not seat Heflin, but would leave the seat vacant to be filled by appointment.

The subcommittee's report must be acted upon by the full committee before reaching the Senate floor, but it assures a bitter interparty conflict there.

It has been many years since a contest against a Democratic senator reached the Senate floor. All of the recent contests have been against Republicans, with Democrats voting to exclude them. This time the tables will be reversed.

Hastings, in his majority report, listed 25 varieties of law violation which he said he considered important, and then concluded:

"I realize that it is a serious matter for the United States Senate to decree that there was no election in Alabama in 1930. I do not see, however, how it can be avoided without approving the shocking facts disclosed by this record."

Senators Watson, of Indiana, and Glenn, of Illinois, both Republicans, concurred in the Hastings report.

Democrats Hold Opposite View.

The Democrats, Senators Bratton, of New Mexico, and George, of Georgia, said they would take a "directly contrary position."

"We take the position," Bratton said, "that the irregularities do not affect the result of the election, but that they were mere irregularities and that Bankhead received a majority of the legal votes cast."

The Democrats said they also would hold that the primary was legal, but that even if it wasn't, the Senate had no jurisdiction over it.

Hastings based his conclusion that the primary which chose Bankhead was illegal upon the resolution adopted by the Democratic State committee barring Heflin from the primary.

He contended the committee had adopted different qualifications for candidates than for voters, which he said was a violation of Alabama law.

Gov. Murray Plans Florida Vote Tour

Tells Dakotans He Is Only Candidate Who Has Platform.

Jamestown, N. Dak., March 4 (A.P.).—Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma said today he had tentative plans for touring Florida. No dates have been set, said Murray, who today made his third address in North Dakota in an effort to win support of the Democrats in this State's presidential preference primaries March 15. He has accepted invitations to speak at Tampa, Miami and Jacksonville, and may add towns in other Southern States to his projected itinerary, he told guests at a luncheon in his honor.

"I'm running for President because I think the people want me, that is, the plain people," the governor said. "The politicians don't. I'm the only man with a platform. If you can find any other with one I would be glad to hear about it."

From the luncheon he went to the courthouse to address a capacity audience, many of whom were unable to find standing room in the space accommodating about 300 persons.

Republican Group Seeks Wet Plank

Chicago, March 4 (A.P.).—A group of Republican wets today called upon their party to "break from the bondage of prohibition" and adopt a repeal plank in the 1932 platform.

Completing their organization as the "Republican citizens committee against national prohibition," the group, headed by Raymond Pitcairn, of Philadelphia, recommended that Republicans withhold contributions "until a repeal plank has been placed in the platform."

"We believe," read the resolution adopted by the committee, "that the Republican party has the virility and should have the courage to beat back the tidal wave of prohibition hysteria, which now threatens to submerge States' rights, property rights and individual rights, and to this end and for this purpose we dedicate our best endeavors."

France Enters Primary Race in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., March 4 (A.P.).—Former Senator Joseph Irwin France, of Maryland, today filed petitions to have his name placed on the Republican presidential preference ballot.

Nearly a month ago similar petitions were filed to have the name of Gov. Roosevelt of New York on the Democratic ballot. The primary will be held April 26. Under Pennsylvania law, the preference vote for presidential candidates is not binding on national delegates.

SENATE TOLD HYDE MISUSED U. S. FUNDS IN UTILIZING FRANK

cent to use money appropriated by the Treasury for partisan political purposes. It can not be justified by any one—Democrat or Republican."

Defenders Fail to Rise.

"But when a member of the President's Cabinet uses trust funds that have been amassed from 20-cent wheat and 5-cent cotton, or from whatever source, he puts himself in a position that no one in this body dare rise to defend, unless he wants to mark himself with the brand of indelible infamy."

Nobody did rise to defend Secretary Hyde, and the Senate then proceeded to other business.

Earlier in the day three Democrats —Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi; Senator Clarence Dill, of Washington, and Representative Loring Black, of New York— had predicted that President Hoover would leave the White House for good on March 4, 1933.

Hoover Promises Recalled.

Senator Harrison recalled the rosy prosperity statements made by President Hoover and other Republicans in 1928, and then cited the misfortunes that followed.

Senator Dill put into the Record a statement by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, dealing with the public utilities question, and predicted that Mr. Roosevelt "will be inaugurated as President a year from today."

Representative Black said:

"Three years of Hoover's term have expired, and nearly everything else in the country has as well. The Republican tom-toms are not beating—instead, the Old Guard has muffled the drums, while Hoover's giddy Cabinet playboys are dancing with tears in their eyes. Even the most incorrigible ballyhooerits have given up the ghost."

Fess Alone Defends.

Save for a few brief interruptions by Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, while Senator Harrison was talking, the Republicans made no attempt to defend the President yesterday. This was regarded as significant.

It gave substance to reports that the Republicans are now convinced that repeated Democratic attacks on President Hoover are helpful rather than harmful; that they are relieving rather than increasing the unpopularity of the President; that in the end they are reflecting on the Democrats themselves.

At any rate, only Senator Fess arose yesterday when Senator Harrison challenged any Republican to review and exploit President Hoover's three years in the White House. Even then Senator Fess did not accept the challenge. He simply reminded the Senate that Senator Harrison, after much bold talk about cutting down appropriations, had voted to increase the Department of Agriculture appropriation bill.

Administration Is Reviewed.

"If no Republican senator will dare do it," Senator Harrison said, "I am going to call the attention of the country to what has been done during the past three years. I want to be fair about it, and if I make any misstatements I want senators on the other side to rise and correct me, and when I shall have finished I want them to have courage enough to rise here upon the floor and discuss the greatness and the achievements of the present administration.

"It will be remembered that the last campaign was known as a whispering campaign; it has now been transformed into a whimpering campaign, and before November next it is going to be a weeping campaign, and the Republican party is going to get exactly what is coming to it."

"Is the senator sure," interrupted Senator Fess, "that it will not be a gnashing of teeth campaign among the Democrats?"

Gnashing of Teeth Scouted.

"The Republicans," replied Senator Harrison, "look too hungry for a Democrat ever to gnash his teeth when he looks at them. No, there will be no gnashing of teeth among the Democrats. The American people are pretty much aroused, and they will attend to the Republican party at the proper time."

Senator Harrison then began his "review." He recalled the unfavorable statements that Fess, Vice President Curtis and others made about President Hoover years ago; he recalled their prosperity statements of 1928; he pictured the gloomy interval, and then, he got down to the recent speeches by Republican orators.

Commenting on the speech of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, in which that official said that President Hoover's leadership had made the Democrats "dizzy," Senator Harrison observed:

"Some Democrats may have gone to drink over Mr. Hoover's 'leadership' and 'constructive administration,' and some of them may have been thrown into the very pit of disaster; but you do not get dizzy from what this gentleman in the White House has done. He has taken us in merry-go-rounds, it is true; he has taken us down the slides, so to speak, and we have become a little bit dizzy from that; but not from any qualities of leadership that he has shown."

Norris Makes Sally.

While Senator Harrison was waxing satirical over the comparing of "Superman" Hoover to Abraham Lincoln and George Washington on the birthdays of those two patriots, Senator George Norris (Republican), Nebraska, a bitter foe of the President, interrupted to say:

"There is still another birthday coming, and I think the country will wait with almost breathless interest the coming of that other birthday, when another comparison will be made and greater laurels will be laid upon Mr. Hoover's brow.

"Wait until the twenty-fifth of December, Christmas Day, and listen to the comparisons then." Norris' sally was met with laughter.

STOCK MARKET DEALS PROBE QUICKLY ORDERED BY SENATE

bers that the list of 1931 and 1932 bears would contain the names of some of the 1928 and 1929 bulls.

In other words, the committee believes and is going to try and determine whether a small group of big time speculators has been "rigging" the market at the expense of public welfare.

No prohibition of short selling, the bear's method of driving down prices, or of the regular and legal practices of the stock exchanges is intended. The resolution of inquiry however, does carry the threat of possible taxation of stock exchange operations as a means of regulation.

There is some dispute over the authority of the Senate to inquire into a State corporation such as the New York Stock Exchange, but Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, incorporated in the resolution of inquiry a statement that it proposed to determine the effect of stock market transaction upon interstate and foreign commerce and upon the National Banking and Federal Reserve systems.

At the other end of the Capitol, a House judiciary subcommittee heard testimony defending the practice of short selling and received a statement from Frank P. Parish, president of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co., charging raids have been engineered "with the express purpose of destroying competition by bankrupting a rival company."

Statement Put Into Record.

The Parish statement, put into the Record, by Representative Gregory (Democrat), Kentucky, said a bear raid had occurred after his company began construction of a 1,200-mile natural gas pipe line system between the Texas Panhandle and Indiana, and was endeavoring to secure the necessary financing through common stock.

It said that L. E. Fischer, vice president of the North American Light & Power Co., told him in Chicago on June 14, 1930, that unless the proposed line was abandoned, the stock would be raided on June 16.

"Mr. Fischer said that unless I would abandon the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. project and cause that company to sell all of its gas reserves to the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and all of our pipe lines and pipe contracts and construction contracts to H. L. Doherty & Co., the market on Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. stock would be attacked and raided on June 16; that I would be bankrupt and thoroughly discredited and that if I showed opposition I would even be attacked personally and slandered and my family atatcked;* * * that I was not capable of bucking such powerful interests as Standard Oil of New Jersey and Doherty."

Learned Stock Already Attacked.

"The following day I proceeded to New York. Upon my arrival, however, I learned that our stock market had already been attacked and was under heavy pressure. All my supporting bids, approximately 100,000 shares * * * were filled before I could possibly withdraw them.

"I would not have allowed these large orders to remain in the market in the face of an attack by Standard Oil and Doherty."

The statement said details of the Fischer visit and subsequent events had been furnished the Justice Department, and continued:

"I trust that the story of my company's experience with bear raiders will impress upon the committee the need for strong protection against particularly that type of bear raiding which is committed in direct defiance of the Sherman antitrust act."

The statement said Mr. Fischer offered certain interests in other lines and stated "that before he could offer any more he would have to consult Mr. Christy Payne, vice president of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, in charge of its natural gas projects."

Mr. Parish was not present at the hearing. His statement was presented by Representative Gregory as a member of the committee holding hearings on legislation to control short selling.

Charges Gas Companies Afraid.

It said further:

"Certain other natural gas pipe line and utility interests seemingly deny Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. a right to exist, fearing the invasion of natural gas at a fair price and the consequent demoralization of their own exorbitant rates for gas heat. This may be a strong statement, but we stand prepared to prove these assertions before any committee that may be appointed."

Chicago, March 4 (A.P.).—L. E. Fischer, vice president of the North American Light & Power Co., said today that the statement of Frank P. Parish to a House judiciary subcommittee was "so foreign to my recollection of the facts that it amuses me."

"That fellow is certainly giving his imagination full play," Mr. Fischer said. "I'll try to reconstruct that conversation from my office records and determine exactly what I did say to him."

Pets From Abyssinia On Way to White House

(Associated Press.)

A few pet pets are expected at the White House within the next several weeks. A special diplomatic mission is coming from Abyssinia to call on President Hoover with the respects of Emperor Haile Selassie. The emperor and his predecessor normally have sent such gifts as lions, giraffes, zebras along with the missions. One shipment of giraffes to the President of France had to be tied down on flat cars to get through the railway tunnels.

Luckily, the White House doesn't have to keep the pets in the back yard, as the National Zoo always has room for a few more.

Senate Favors U. S. Aid For Bridge Approaches

(Associated Press.)

A change in existing laws to permit use of Federal aid funds on approaches to State-owned toll bridges was agreed to by the Senate yesterday as an amendment to the Agricultural Department appropriation bill.

The amendment was by Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, who argued that the present law was intended to prevent use of Federal funds for approaches to privately-owned toll bridges, and not to those built by State highway commissions.

ROAD FIRM INDICTED ON U. S. TAX CHARGE

(Associated Press.)

Utilizing a section of the Internal Revenue law never before invoked, the Government yesterday attacked income tax irregularity from a new standpoint.

It secured the indictment of W. L. Pearson, of Houston, Tex., and W. L. Pearson & Co., of Corpus Christi, Tex., for omitting to report payments made to Texas county officials and politicians.

Charging Pearson and his company with violating section 148 of the 1928 revenue law the Internal Revenue Bureau succeeded in having them indicted on sixteen counts.

They are alleged to have neglected to report payments to eleven officials of Hidalgo and Duval Counties made as "commissions" by the company and its president in securing road building contracts. Pearson and an employe of his company, a politician, a contractor, an accountant and the officials, were alleged to have been paid $1,593,372.

The 1928 revenue act requires that any person or firm paying any person $1,500 or more in any year must file a true and accurate account of the payments with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in Washington.

Handled by Intelligence Unit.

Agents of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, the division that secured the conviction of Al Capone and some of his Chicago gangster companions, worked up the Pearson case.

The Government alleges that neither Pearson nor his firm filed such an accounting. Conviction for omitting to file, upon information, is punishable with a year's imprisonment or a $10,000 fine, or both. Violation is classified as a misdemeanor.

The persons who received the payments were not indicted. Two of them have died since the money was alleged to have been paid in 1928. A. Y. Baker, who was sheriff of Hidalgo County in 1928, and who died in 1930, was alleged to have been paid $668,000 while Archie Parr, a Texas State senator, was alleged to have received $100,000, and Thomas Y. Pickett, a Dallas accountant, $103,144. Pearson was charged with having received $369,097, and it was alleged smaller amounts went to five county commissioners of Hidalgo County, a county judge of Duval County, a county judge of Hidalgo County, and lesser officials. O. B. Archer, a Hidalgo County politician, who died in 1928, was said to have been paid $37,500.

Pearson Wealthy Contractor.

Houston, Tex., March 4 (A.P.).—W. L. Pearson, indicted today in Washington for alleged failure to inform the Internal Revenue Bureau of certain payments to sixteen persons, is a wealthy south Texas road contractor.

Pearson and his associates built many of the roads in Hidalgo County, in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas, and the contractor often was involved in the bitter political factionalism that gripped Hidalgo County for years prior to the death of Sheriff A. Y. Baker, who described himself as the leader of the "regular Democrats" in the county.

Senator Archie Parr, of Benavides, mentioned as a recipient of funds from the W. L. Pearson Co., has been a Texas political power for many years.

(Associated Press.)

A constitutional amendment to give Congress absolute powers to fix prices in war time will be asked by the War Policies Commission in its report to President Hoover and Congress.

The recommendation for such an amendment was decided upon after Attorney General Mitchell had ruled that without it price-fixing either by Congress or the Executive in war time would be subject to judicial review.

Until the amendment becomes a part of the Constitution, temporary price-fixing legislation under existing laws will be recommended for the interim.

Hoover Congratulated And Reelection Forecast

Charleston, W. Va., March 4 (A.P.). Congratulations upon the third anniversary of his inauguration were wired to President Hoover today by Walter S. Hallahan, Republican national committeeman for West Virginia, with a prediction that he would again be inaugurated for a second term next year.

"Three years through which you have passed in the Presidency have been fraught with many perilous situations of world-wide proportions," the telegram said. "Through it all you have accepted your great responsibilities in a way that has enshrined you in the hearts of the American people. There is abundant evidence that the clouds are rolling by and the skies are clearing."

Campaign Slur Apology Made to Maj. Herridge

Ottawa, March 4 (A.P.).—G. H. Gordon, of Peterboro, today apologized before a parliamentary committee for statements he made at a political meeting in Hamilton January 6 charging that Maj. W. D. Herridge, brother-in-law of Premier Bennett, had been in the pay of the Canadian government as legal adviser and was appealing a case for the Canadian government while abroad on his honeymoon.

He explained that he had been misled by information which came to him from a source which he had considered reliable.

Bishop Calls Christian Love Mightiest Force in World

"From the worldly standpoint, to talk about love as a practical force is a visionary and futile thing to do," the Right Rev. Robert E. L. Strider, Bishop Coadjutor of West Virginia, said yesterday from the pulpit of the Church of the Epiphany, at the noonday Lenten service before his departure for his diocese.

"Nevertheless Christian truth has very often sounded like foolishness to the world," the bishop said. "Christian love does not mean an unquestioning affection for everybody. Even Jesus discriminated in his love. Love has sometimes been thought a weak, effeminate thing, but in reality it is the mightiest force in the world. The love of God expressed in the Cross is the only force which can destroy human sin.

"Christian love consists of two elements, faith in the divinity of man and the disinterested service of man. This conception finds expression in the Cross of Christ because that Cross indicates that God deathlessly believes in us and is willing to serve us to the uttermost.

"Christian love finding its place in the hearts of modern people is the only solution of the world's problems. The driving power of human motion must cease to be self-enrichment or self-advertisement, and must become faith in God and man plus disinterested service."

George Washington Essay Contest News

109 Theses Received in One Mail; Theater Party Tickets Ready.

One hundred and nine essays came in on the first mail yesterday to The Post Essay Editor from entrants in The Post George Washington Essay Contest eager to get their contributions in the hands of the judges as soon as possible.

The flood of essays is now reaching its height and many of the schools where practically all the students are participating in this essay contest are sending in their entries en masse, so to speak. From the Park View School yesterday came an interesting group of essays, all neatly written and properly attested by the teachers in charge of the young competitors. While the entrants have until midnight of March 14 to submit their essays, yet The Post Essay Editor urges that all essays now prepared be turned in at once in order that the sorting into age groups may go forward as fast as possible.

In this way the work of judging the essays may be reached sooner and therefore the announcement of the prize winners be made earlier.

As the contest nears its close The Post Essay Editors and others permitted to view the essays submitted are more and more impressed by the general excellence of the entries. The judges will have quite a task in selecting the 108 prize winning essays. The Post Essay Editor is happy to report also that more neatness and care is being taken in the preparation of the essays.

Today the distribution will begin to entrants in The Post Essay Contest of tickets to the big show to be given at the Rialto Theater next Saturday morning at 9:45 o'clock, in honor of the Essay Contest through the courtesy of the Rialto Theater management.

These tickets are distributed free of charge to entrants in The Post George Washington Essay Contest and members of The Junior Post clubs.

Distribution of the tickets will begin today at 9 a. m. and will last until 1 p. m. in the office of The Junior Post, on the fifth floor of The Washington Post Building.

Boys and girls unable to call in person for their tickets are requested to send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for them.

Children under 10 years of age may bring an escort with them.

Among the splendid films to be seen at the big show one is called "Racing Youth," and portrays a thrilling automobile race. There will be comedies and other feature films as well.

An additional feature of the Rialto Theater program next Saturday will be the music of the Elks Boys Band. This organization is sponsored by Washington Lodge, No. 15, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and numbers approximately 75 uniformed boys, who are all accomplished musicians. Their services have been donated by the Elks as a tribute to the memory of George Washington and in recognition of the efforts of The Washington Post to induce study of his life and accomplishments through The Post's original Essay Contest.

GREAT REVIVAL DUE, GLAZEBROOK STATES

The Church Editor of The Post has received the following letter from Dr. Larkin W. Glazebrook, 3022 P street northwest, called forth by an article on the church page last Saturday concerning the activities of laymen in active religious work:

"I have just read your article entitled 'Laymen Preaching' in this morning's paper. I am just home from a month's missions all over western and northern Texas, and was impressed with what you said. I am the lay evangelist of the Protestant Episcopal Church, having given up my career as a surgeon and physician here four years ago. Since that time I have traveled more than 80,000 miles all over this country, speaking to men and women in more than 700 churches; also to civic groups, colleges, high schools, men's and women's clubs, as well as in groups of other denominations.

Feshioned Religion Needed.

"I am absolutely convinced that nothing is more necessary, compelling and needed today, by all people, than the old-fashioned religion, taught by Jesus of Nazareth 1,900 years ago. The world is not only hungry for it, but is demanding something which will encourage them at such a time as this. Too long we have left testifying for Him to a comparative small group of ordinary bishops and clergy. His final command was not given alone to such a group, but to His lay followers as well. It is, therefore, time that we laymen and women realize that His program is equally a challenge to us.

"A great revival is due, and will come when this fact is better understood. I am thankful to say that already many like those mentioned by you are doing such valiant service for their Master. More, many more, however, are needed to bring His kingdom on earth as it is in heaven. We are not thinking in terms of emotionalism or an easy, insipid, effeminate, you shant-do-this-and-that repressed religion, but one that will challenge the heroic in the men and women today to whom the heroic appeals.

Must Exercise Choice.

"A great laymen 4,000 years ago, addressing a great assembly of God's chosen people, who were lukewarm, frankly stood up before them and said this: 'How long halt ye between two opinions; if the Lord be God, serve him; if Baal (the world), serve him.' This is the inquiry which those who profess and call themselves Christians should be willing to ask enthusiastically today. Men and women today are demanding a workable religion, exemplified on Monday and Saturday as well as on Sunday, by those who profess and call themselves Christians.

"Ask my friends, those fine golf players and contract bridge players, if I am not right. With such a group ready to follow sane religious leadership, the world can be brought to His feet by love of Him. He was not a namby pandy, sissy, but a man who went about doing good, eating and dining with sinners (they were as prevalent in His day as they are now), who when they realized the genuineness of His life forsook all and followed Him. They will do the same today. He does not expect us to be too good, but simply try to be better after contact in His presence (today He can be seen and felt in the lives of many of His real followers)"

The Rev. F. Alan Parsons, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, will preach the Lenten sermon at St. Columba's Episcopal Church Wednesday evening.

Tomorrow evening the rector, the Rev. E. A. LeMoine, will give the fourth of a series of talks on the Prodigal Son.

Churches Tomorrow Hold Services to Create Work

Tomorrow will be "Work Creation Sunday" in the churches of Washington. In every Catholic and Protestant church in the city there will be made appeals for cooperation on the part of the congregation with the work creation committee, of which Col. E. G. Bliss is chairman, for the purpose of putting unemployed Washington wage earners to work. The work creation committee is a branch of the District of Columbia employment committee.

Leaders in every religious denomination, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, have promised to aid, and the synagogue leaders have already taken an active part, speaking at their meetings last night and distributing the special church literature prepared by the committee.

E. C. Graham, chairman of the unemployment committee, has stated that funds on hand are barely sufficient to carry on the program of "made" work until April. Col. Bliss pointed out, and stated that Washington has already been thoroughly combed for funds for this purpose. The only other method, Col. Bliss says, is for Washingtonians to rally to the support of their less fortunate brothers by doing now the odd jobs that would normally be done in the course of the year and thus creating work for Washingtonians.

"Churchmen are natural leaders in any campaign looking toward the betterment of conditions for the community," Col. Bliss said, "and that is why we have called upon them to open the campaign, in a sense. We are sending literature outlining just what can be done by the people of Washington, to every church in the city and we are hopeful of excellent results from this distribution Sunday."

A number of sermons, based on this movement, will be given tomorrow.

RELIGIOUS PARLEY TO BEGIN MONDAY

500 Protestants, Catholics and Jews Will Confer on Prejudices.

A conference of 500 outstanding men and women of the Jewish, Catholic and Protestant faiths will begin here Monday morning for a three days' session, to be held at the Willard Hotel. Religious prejudices and ways to allay them will be the subject under general discussion.

Prejudices in textbooks, religious discrimination against job seekers, harmful missionary tactics and other religious "rubs" will be frankly discussed in an effort to bring about mutual understanding among faiths.

Roger W. Straus, of New York; Newton D. Baker and Prof. Carlton J. H. Hayes, of Columbia University, are sponsoring the conference, which is being held under the auspices of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, with headquarters in New York.

Radio will play an important role in the deliberations, the opening session being largely devoted to broadcast addresses by Bishop James E. Freeman of Washington Cathedral, the Rev. Dr. Francis J. Haas, director of the National Catholic School of Social Service at Washington, and Rabbi Abram Simon of the Washington Hebrew Congregation. The intensive three-day program will reach a climax Wednesday night when Newton D. Baker gives a radio address over a Nation-wide hook-up.

"U-table" discussions, similar to those at Geneva, will be held Wednesday. Participating will be such religious leaders as Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches; the Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, director of the National Catholic Welfare Council, and Rabbi Louis Mann, of Chicago.

Other speakers and discussion leaders include Prof. William H. Kilpatrick, of Columbia Teachers College, who will preside over the U-table sessions; C. E. Silcox, of the Institute of Social and Religious Research, Toronto; Prof. Hayes, Prof. Evarts B. Greene, of Columbia University; Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of the American Jewish Committee and the Jewish Theological Seminary, and State Senator Alfred M. Cohen, of Ohio, international president of B'Nai B'Rith.

Altars Crowded With Converts

Revival Spirit Is Reported Growing at National Crusade.

The Rev. Harry L. Collier, in charge of the National Revival Crusade at the Masonic Auditorium, Thirteenth street and New York avenue, announces that the revival spirit is rapidly growing, and that nearly 100 conversions have been reported already, while the altars are crowded nightly. Delegations are coming from nearby States, and it seems certain that standing room only will be the order by tomorrow night.

Evangelist Watson Argue, of Canada, who is conducting the campaign, assisted by his wife, Hazel Argue, will preach nightly next week at the auditorium at 7:45. His subject tomorrow night at 7:30 has attracted wide interest and will be entitled, "Where Are the Dead."

The Wednesday evening services will be broadcast from the auditorium from 8:30 to 9 p. m. over WJSV. Divine healing service will be held Thursdays at 7:45. The "Sunshine Choir" of 150 voices will sing Friday night at the young people's meeting.

99 Men Will Sing Noted Church Song

Dr. William A. Shelton, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church South, will preach tomorrow evening on the subject: "What Must I Do to be Lost?" There will be special music by the large choir at both services. A unique service is announced for Sunday evening, March 20, when Dr. Shelton will preach on "The Ninety and Nine." The choir for that service will be composed of ninety-nine men, who will sing the familiar hymn that bears the title of the sermon. Arrangements are being made to have this a very impressive service.

Dr. Shelton's Bible class meets every Monday evening at the church, and is open to the public. On each Thursday evening in this month he will lead a class in mission study.

The choir of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church will fill a concert engagement Tuesday evening at Annapolis. The music department of the church is also sponsoring a concert to be given by the George Washington University combined glee clubs next Wednesday evening in the church auditorium.

New York Rector Chevy Chase Speaker

The Rev. W. Russell Bowie, rector of the Grace Protestant Episcopal Church of New York City, will be the special preacher at the Chevy Chase Union Lenten service on Thursday evening, March 10, at 8 o'clock in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, of All Saints Episcopal Church, will preside. Ministers of the other participating churches will have part in the service.

Christian Science Churches

"Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Daniel, x:19: "O man greatly beloved, fear not: peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." (II Corinthians, v:1.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The calm, strong currents of true spirituality, the manifestations of which are health, purity and self-immolation, must deepen human experience, until the beliefs of material existence are seen to be a bald imposition, and sin, disease and death give everlasting place to the scientific demonstration of divine Spirit and to God's spiritual, perfect man." (Page 99.)

Popular New York Rector Lenten Speaker

Dr. W. Russell Bowie, well known rector of Grace Episcopal Church, New York City, will be the guest preacher at the lenten services next week in New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. These are held daily, at 12:20, under the auspices of the Federation of Churches.

Dr. Bowie is said to be a popular speaker, both spiritual and dynamic in presentation. He was in a large parish at Richmond, Va., before going to New York seven or eight years ago. There he has made a name for himself as one of the ablest of the city's younger clergymen.

THE SATURDAY FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS PAGE

Appearing Each Week in The Washington Post

ECONOMY IS FOUND IN LENTEN MENUS

Inexpensive Fares Provided From Eggs Which Are Now Very Cheap.

The simplicity of Lenten fare leaves leeway for economy homemakers are discovering in the 40 days of penitence. But while inexpensive, the Lenten fare need not be unattractive.

On all sides The Washington Post is awarded commendation for its Saturday Food Page and the helpful hints to its readers in the important matter of "What shall I give to my family at their meals?"

GOOD HEALTH SANDWICHES.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

One part Schindler's peanut butter
One part honey

Pour hot syrup over stiffly beaten egg whites to which salt has been added, beating constantly. Continue beating as mixture cools. Add egg yolks, which have been beaten until light and lemon colored. Fold in flour gradually, add extract. Pour into ungreased tube pan and bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) 60 minutes. Remove from oven and invert pan one hour or until cold.

(Honorable Mention.)

2 heaping tablespoons Hershey's cocoa
2 heaping tablespoons cornstarch
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs (Rockingham fresh)
Little salt
2 cups milk; vanilla.

Methods—Mix the cocoa and sugar well, make a paste of cocoa, sugar and little of the milk; beat. When warm add cornstarch dissolved in a little water. Then add eggs slightly beaten. Add this slowly. If cooked over flame, stir constantly. Cook until thick enough to hold shape; take off fire. Add vanilla; mix well. Pour into a baked pastry shell. When ready to serve, top with cream beaten stiff and sweetened to taste. The cream is really tastier used with this pie than meringue.

SPECIAL DRESSING FOR POTATO SALAD.

THAT "funny" potato-salad dressing that "has potatoes in it" must be our special dressing just for potato salad, Mrs. Eckerson. It is the only one of which I know, but ours does not call for chives. Ours calls for cream, but I dare say the chives may be added if you wish, since theirs is a mild and pleasant flavor of onion. Now this dressing, then our Sunday-dinner recipes, and, if in any way possible, several requested recipes which need no explanation.

Special Dressing for Potato Salad.
(For Mrs. Eckerson.)

1 tablespoonful mashed potatoes
4 tablespoonfuls thick cream
3 teaspoonfuls vinegar
¼ teaspoonful sugar
¼ teaspoonful paprika
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix the potatoes, sugar and seasoning. Stir in the cream gradually, as you would oil in mayonnaise. Stir until smooth and creamy. Lastly add the vinegar.

Okra Gumbo.

Cut a half pound of beef and a quarter pound of ham in 1-inch pieces and fry until brown, in one tablespoonful of hot fat. Add to two crabs cut up and a half pound of peeled shrimp. Add two dozen small okra pods, one small onion, a dash of red pepper and salt to taste. Simmer over a slow fire for about 20 minutes, then add warm water to cover well. Let boil for two hours. If too thick, add as much water as desired. May be made with chicken instead of beef.

Rib Roast of Beef.

Either a rolled or standing roast of beef may be governed by the following directions: Wipe meat well, dredge with flour and place in a roasting pan. Place in a very hot oven for first 20 minutes, and then reduce the heat a little. Allow from 8 to 10 minutes to a pound for a standing roast and from 10 to 12 minutes for a rolled roast, if desired rare; more time depends on how well done the meat is preferred. If desired, a clove of garlic may be placed in the folds of the meat. Do not pierce the meat while cooking, as to do so causes loss of valuable juices. Season either after searing or at the end of the cooking period.

French Coffee Cake.
(For Mrs. L. M. Larson.)

1 cupful scalded milk
1 yeast cake
4½ cupfuls flour
1 teaspoonful sugar
2-3 cupful butter
4 eggs
½ cupful sugar
¼ teaspoonful lemon rind, grated

Filling.

¼ cupful creamed butter
2 tablespoonfuls powdered sugar

Dissolve the yeast cake in the lukewarm milk and add the sugar. Allow it to stand 30 minutes. Cream the two-thirds cupful of butter and add the half cupful sugar, eggs, flour and lemon rind. Mix in the dissolved yeast, and beat the mixture hard for 10 minutes. Put in warm place to rise for 6 hours. Then place in the refrigerator overnight to chill and prevent further rising. Roll to one-quarter inch in thickness, spread with the creamed butter to which the powdered sugar has been added, and cut dough into any desired shape. Bake 20 minutes in a 375 to 400 degree oven.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: I am 48 years old, 5 feet 5½ inches tall and weigh 165 pounds. A friend told me not to eat 6 o'clock dinner, that that would reduce me. What do you think about it? I am hungry all day and am very fond of meat. Is cocoa fattening? Aslo is homemade salad dressing, made with vinegar instead of oil, fattening? MRS. BLUE.

For your age and height you should weigh about 148 pounds, Mrs. Blue, and if you should like, I will be very glad to send you our suggestions for reducing. I think that will be very much better than to attempt a drastic diet such as your friend has suggested. Not just because they are our suggestions, but because it is never wise to try to lose weight too rapidly—by too rigidly restricting the diet. If you are hungry all day it would be almost impossible, to say nothing of foolish, to omit your evening meal altogether. It would be very much better, unless otherwise advised by your physician, to eat three regular meals daily, watching your calories and selecting foods healthful and at the same time best for reducing.

While you are reducing, skimmed milk or buttermilk will be better for you than milk with a high cream content. You will secure all the butter fat you need on bread, vegetables, &c. Be careful, above all, to watch your calories. Only in that way will you be able to judge whether or not you are really overfueling that bodily furnace of yours.

One cupful of cocoa, half milk and half water, contains 150 calories; one cupful, all milk, contains 200 calories. One tablespoonful of the cocoa powder itself contains 40 calories.

Salad dressings made with vinegar are much less fattening than those containing oil. Dressing made with mineral oil are also recommended for reducing. Their laxative properties, together with an almost negligible caloric content, make them especially valuable.

If you should have any further questions or difficulties, let us hear from you.

Orange-Pineapple Pie Recipe Wins

MISS ELMA GEIGER.

In the creation of this culinary concoction which won The Post's $5 recipe award this week, a cake evolves, after considerable additions, into Orange-Pineapple Cream Pie.

The formula was submitted by Miss Elma Geiger, of 1511 Franklin street northeast. To be eligible for The Post's awards, recipes must include food materials advertised on the Food Page of the paper.

Read Miss Geiger's recipe and learn how to transform a cake into a pie:

Can pineapple tidbits (Sanitary Grocery)
1 large orange
1 cup milk
3 Rockingham eggs (Sanitary Grocery)
2 heaping teaspoons corn starch
1 tablespoon butter
¾ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon lemon extract
½ teaspoon salt

Heat milk to boiling point, add corn starch, mixed with little cold milk, add butter and salt, cook 10 minutes over slow fire, stirring constantly. Beat yolks of eggs, ½ cup sugar and juice of orange and pineapple. Add this to cooking milk and corn starch. Stirr constantly till thick. Add the white of 1 egg well beaten. Strain custard to remove all lumps of corn starch. Add the pineapple, finely cut. Pour into hollow cake. Bake 10 minutes. Make a meringue of the two remaining egg whites and ¼ cup sugar, add extract. Cover top of cake and bake till golden brown. Serve hot or cold.

Braised Breast of Veal.

Have a breast of veal boned. Stuff with seasoned crumbs, roll and tie into shape and gash the skin. Season with salt and pepper, allowing 1 teaspoon of salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper to the pound, dredge with flour, and put to roast with a sliced carrot and onion. Cook for an hour and a half, basting with the drippings. Remove the strings and serve with a gravy made of the drippings.

Lamb, as you know, is a favorite meat with Oriental peoples, so we are not surprised to find it in many Syrian dishes.

WAFFLE STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES.
(Honorable Mention.)

2 cups Washington self-rising flour
2 egg yolks
1¼ cups milk
4 tablespoon melted butter
1 quart strawberries crushed, sugared.

Mix the flour and salt and sift into a mixing bowl. Beat the egg yolks light and mix with the milk. Add slowly to the flour and beat into a smooth batter. Stir in the melted butter. This batter may be made in advance as convenient and kept in the refrigerator until wanted.

Bake the waffles crips and brown, butter with Land o'Lake butter and put two together with crushed and sweetened ripe strawberries.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Offering Here of Candy Which Only Royal Houses in Europe Can Afford to Buy Leads to Thoughts on Imported European Sweetmeats.

"Only the royal families and aristocrats can have this candy in Europe," a Spanish candy shop keeper on Connecticut avenue told the Meanderer. "This candy" meant high-class confections, imported from world-famous European dealers, each morsel fastidiously wrapped in metallic paper or in picture-covered papers carefully labeled.

"But why?" the Meanderer wanted to know, "are the candies so frightfully expensive?"

"About $1 a pound in Europe," she was told.

"Can't any one but kings and queens and dukes and duchesses buy dollar-a-pound candy in Europe?" the curious Meanderer insisted upon knowing, thinking of the millions of pounds of candy at a dollar a pound that are taken almost as birthright by Americans—for valentines, anniversaries, Christmas, Easter, even as casual gifts for no special time—just taken-for-granted boxes of chocolates.

"Not if they expect to live within their means," the candy merchant said. "The American has more money than the European, but no matter what money he has the American spends some of it now and then for good candy."

Whether or not Americans are as frugal as the Europeans about buying candy, there is excellent food value for the dollar in the candies the Meanderer found in this shop which offers sweets from nearly everywhere in the world, and there surely are interest, variety and toothsome adventure in food in a pound of candy from the Spaniard's imported stock. For instance, the French caramels, guaranteed to be made from pure cream, have high nutritive value as well as delicious taste. The Italian nougat is equally rich in food value with its fruits and nuts, and delectable to high degree. "Mille fiori" is printed on the end of some of the miniature boxes each piece of nougat is packed in, and the sides of the little boxes carry pictures of a great Italian institution of learning founded somewhere in the year 1400 and of its founder, a learned, be-wigged doctor.

The delights of this unique candy shop are so many that the Meanderer's remarks would be too saccharine should she dwell on them all. The English rum butter must be mentioned, though, as well as the Scotch toffee, the Belgian toffee, the quince paste, crayatallized ginger, candied melon slices from Spain and candied blackberries and raspberries from Vienna. Candy boxes in the shape of gay tambourines and castanets from Spain, of course, and carved wooden-animal candy boxes from Germany and a number of other interesting sweet containers and novelities make a fascinating array. The most elaborate offering probably is the lily pond made of a reflector surrounded by flowers made of chocolate drops.

Growing up in a family busy at making and selling candles, was the beginning of the Connecticut avenue Spanish candy man's training for his present business. He speaks of his many travels over the world in search of candy for American importers in New York City, before he opened his display of cosmopolitan candies in Washington.

Chocolate pigs wrapped in metallic green paper are among the tempting St. Patrick's suggestions the little candy shop offers. Also for St. Patrick's one can find realistic large and small bottles, foil wrapped and importantly labelled over their chocolate foundation. Easter egg holders, in the shape of egg shells, supported by clever, intricately made figurines, may be smartly used as cigarette containers after the candy eggs are gone. This is only one of numerous suggestions for Easter gifts one may find in this candy shop.

Remote from metropolitan Connecticut avenue was another place the meanderer visited this week, in the heart of Georgetown. This was an old market place, nearly abandoned. Only one marketer offers his wares there now, while through the years—many years, too, dating from pre-Civil War days—there were many market stalls in the old building. The lone occupant of the immense ramshackle structure has a modern little market, facing M street. He is authority for the statement that slaves were sold on the premises. Quaint circular windows, high in the sides of the building, give the old market an air of aloofness from its neighbors, the smaller modern shops, and the cobblestoned alley adjoining, lets one's imagination go back to when there were only horse or mule-drawn vehicles waiting outside for their cargo of food from the big red building * * * not a group of horseless vehicles, full of motor mysteries, one sees standing about today.

It was in the little Georgetown market that the meanderer noted that sirloin steak costs but 23 cents a pound and round steak but 20 cents. It seemed appropriate, somehow, that she found there, too, the new 5-cent loaf of bread named for George Washington, in a wrapper printed with his likeness. What an intensely practical bicentennial memorial!

York cabbage from Florida, selling for 5 cents a pound, is new on the Washington market this week. This price is another discovery in the big retail section of the market in Southwest Washington.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

D. J. CALLAHAN, supreme treasurer of the organization, is assisting in preparations for the Knights of Columbus golden anniversary program on Tuesday night, March 29, over a continental network, including Canada as well as all sections of the United States.

Approximately 75 stations will participate in the broadcast, including WRC in Washington. Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody will speak and it will be the first appearance of Anna Case, Metropolitan Opera star, over the radio since her marriage to Clarence H. Mackey.

Charles K. Hackett, principal tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera Co., who for many years has been a member of the Knights of Columbus, will likewise participate in the program.

Already the San Francisco Knights of Columbus council has announced that it will install special amplifiers and receiving sets for a mass meeting in connection with the broadcast. This plan will doubtless be followed in other cities. The program will be heard at 11:30 p. m. in Washington.

COULD anything show less consideration of the public than the two networks putting on exactly the same type of program at 11 o'clock each night when the N. B. C. presents Ludwig Laurier and the Slumber Music and Columbia Howard Barlow and his symphony orchestra?

This arrangement is maddening for those who are fond of high-grade orchestral music, because in listening to one program they are obliged to miss the other. It is equally provoking for those who do not care for that kind of music, because they have no alternative.

There is a similar conflict on Sunday nights between Ernest Hutcheson, pianist, from 10:30 to 11 o'clock, and Leo Ornstein, pianist, from 10:15 to 10:45 o'clock. The same listeners, naturally, are interested in these periods but can not tune in on both.

In the case of the 11 o'clock symphony orchestra, Columbia, being the late comer, ought to have its program precede or follow the Slumber Music. In the case of Hutcheson and Ornstein, the N. B. C. ought to present this program either before or after Hutcheson, who was there first.

Otherwise, the question will again be raised as to whether the networks are trying to meet each other's competition—a sort of "keeping up with Lizzie"—or whether they are really trying to please the public and endeavoring to secure the largest possible audiences for their program.

THE third and fourth acts of the opera, "Manon," by the French composer, Jules Massenet, will be broadcast from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, via WRC. Grace Moore, young American soprano, who rose from musical comedy to the Metropolitan Opera Co., will be heard for the first time in the Metropolitan opera series during this broadcast.

Singing the title role, she will head a cast including Beniamino Gigli, Giuseppe De Luca, George Cehanovsky, Leon Rothier, Aida Doninelli, Minnie Egener and Dorothea Flexer. Louis Hasselmans will conduct. Deems Taylor will be the narrator.

Showing that there is something radically wrong with radio advertising, was the fact that even a druggist tuned out the advertising talk following a popular toothpaste program the other night. A group of customers had gathered about the radio in the drugstore to listen to the nightly skit and among them, apparently as highly entertained as any of the others, was the drug proprietor himself.

As soon as the skit was over, those listening immediately left. As the advertising talk began, although there were numerous other customers in the store who may have been prospective buyers of the toothpaste, the druggist stepped up to the radio and turned it off in the middle of the advertising talk.

P. S. Since the above was written the writer has seen the druggist tune out this advertising not only once but several times. He apparently does it every night.

WHILE broadcasting from KDKA, Pittsburgh, some time ago, Joe and Harry, now heard twice daily over WJSV, noticed a man through the studio window who seemed to be getting quite a kick out of their efforts. After their broadcast he introduced himself, explaining that he was an Englishman on a world tour. He said that, in his opinion, the English people would get the same kick out of Joe and Harry's efforts to entertain that he did, and promised on his return to England to get in touch with the powers that be in the British Broadcasting Corporation in London. The boys thanked him for his interest in their act, and promptly forgot the matter.

However, they recently received a letter from the program director of the British Broadcasting Corporation asking them to send several gramophone recordings to England so that he might know at first-hand just what kind of offering had so interested his countryman.

O'Leary's Irish Minstrels, who are as much a part of Boston as baked beans or the Common, will be heard over the WEAF network at 7 o'clock tonight from the studios of WBEI, in Boston • • • Songs in waltz time, the tango and the blues will comprise "Music That Satisfies" in the program featuring Alex Gray, barytone, and Nat Shilkret's Orchestra tonight. Gray will sing "While We Were Waltzing" and "Here Is My Heart" • • • An old-time minstrel show may be tuned over the WJZ network at 9 o'clock tonight, when the WENR Minstrels, with Gene Arnold, Al Cameron and Pete Bontsema, is broadcast • • • The Lucky Strike Dance Hour will take its listeners to a dancing party sponsored by "The Green Key," a sophomore organization of Dartmouth College, on the campus at Hanover, N. H., tonight (WRC), 10 o'clock) • • • Howard Lanin, the orchestra conductor, comes from a musical family in Philadelphia. His father was a violinist, his mother a pianist and eight brothers play one kind of instrument or another.

APPARENTLY Senator Norbeck, of South Dakota, has gone to the rescue of "Lightning," the latest of the radio bridegrooms. At any rate, among the bills introduced into the Senate was one by Mr. Norbeck, the official description of which was:

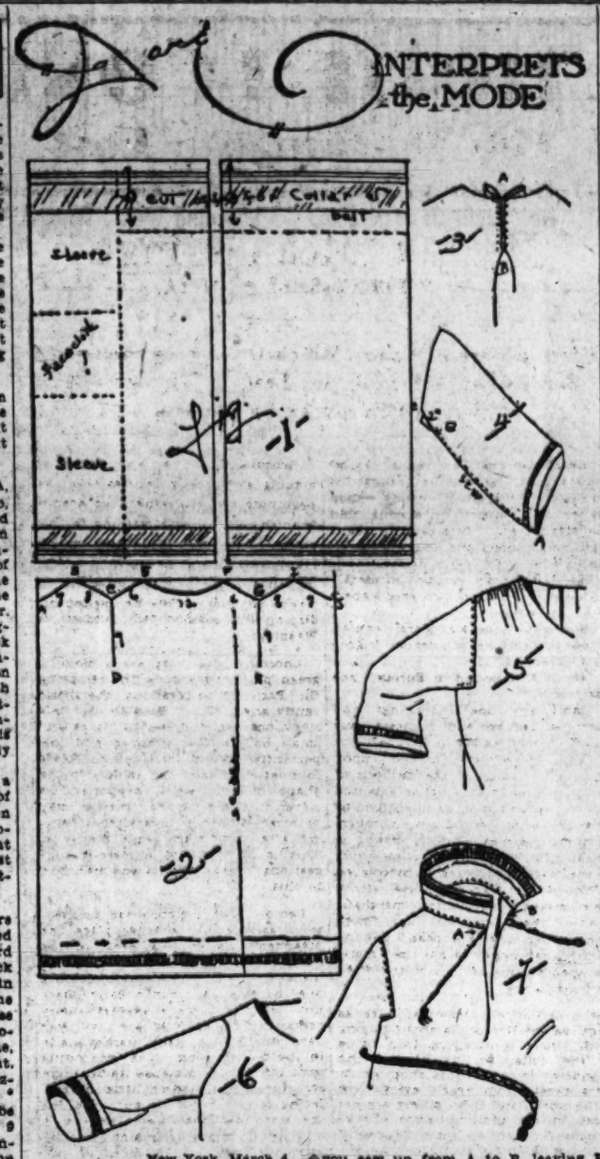
Jane Ord INTERPRETS the MODE



New York, March 4.

AND how useful and comfy these peignoirs are! Anyone who has been anywhere in Europe knows what they are and how comfy they are to slip into when one steps out of the tub—yes, you use them in place of bath towels, you see. They launder just like the bath towel, so why not? Or you use them just as a dressing robe if you prefer, or, of course, as a beach robe. Whatever you use them for, let's make them out of two of those lovely colored towels, taking advantage of the finished edges of the towels to make our peignoir chic.

Measure first from your shoulder to the length you want your robe to be, add 6 inches to whatever this amount is, and buy two towels this long, and from 28 to 38 inches wide—they come in different widths. So-o-o, now see Figure 1, and see how you cut 6 inches off the top of one towel and set it aside, then how you cut the other towel in half, and cut sleeves out of one-half of this. The other half, before you set aside, must have a 6-inch strip cut off the top, too.

Now let's sew the large towel to the half of the other, sewing one raw edge to the selvage of the other towel, of course, and remember that you use felled seams throughout.

Now for cutting. See Figure 2 and mark with pins or a pencil before you cut. So, and start from A, measure over 7 inches to Z; 8 inches to C; now down 9 inches to D, then back up to C again.

Now 6 inches to E, then 12 to F, and so on down, repeating for this side measurements you have just made made on the other side.

Next we must make an inverted pleat in the back right at the neck where the collar is to be sewn on. Sew this down from A to B on Figure 3. Then when you are sewing this body of the garment together at the shoulder seams, which is the next move, you will note that the front has to be gathered on each side to the back shoulder seams, which is for the needed fullness of your garment.

Then Figure 4 are the sleeves, which you sew up from A to B, leaving B open 2 inches from the edges. C. Sew the sleeves to your garment as Figure 5, felled seams again. Cut out the material from underneath them on your unbleached muslin garment that you should make first, by all means, unless you are an expert seamstress. And when you go to cut your bath towels from this unbleached muslin model, you can cut these armholes right at the time instead of after the sleeves are sewn in, if you wish.

In case there are buttonholes on these towels, as there sometimes are, you will not be able to make a square arm-holed sleeve, but can make a regular sleeve and sew it on as in Figue 6. The buttonholes are on one side of the towels only, and do not matter in the end—just cut them off for the sleeves and use them for the front of the garment on the other towel.

Now all ready to sew the collar on, as Figure 7, using the finished towel edge for the top, just as you used it for the cuffs of the sleeve. This makes a nice finish to the peignoir.

And last, buy fine cords for closing the neck, sew to the garment as A and B on Figure 7; one for a belt, and there you are!

For the kiddies one bath towel is enough, or two small ones. Use the finished border of the towel for hem, cuff edges and collar edges of your garments, that is all—and felled seams for a nice finish, both inside and out.

Now as to the cord girdle for either kiddies or grown-ups, if you have any trouble buying this—well, just make it out of the pieces of the bath robe. Make an inch wide and double one, and finish it nicely so you can tie it. A wider belt is all right, but too much trouble to wear. And there is a piece of material left for a face cloth, too.

Make these peignoirs for the whole family, use them for bath towels, for dressing robes and beach robes, and write and tell me how you like them.

Au revoir.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

ATHLETIC TYPES.

THE kind of athletic competition for which a man should prepare is determined by his type of body build. If he has a certain conformation he can hope to make himself a good football player provided he will work hard enough at the job.

Drs. F. A. Schmidt and C. B. Sputh have a valuable, highly scientific book on the subject, "Physiology and Exercise," in which they say that the bodily conformation of a given person will fall into one of six classes. There are some in-betweens, but observation and study can generally assign these to one of the six types.

After a man reaches about 17 years of age there is little he can do to change his bodily lines so as to shift from one type to another. Some change is possible if the process of training is begun in childhood, but not even that possibility is great. As a rule the type of body build is fixed when the child is born and no radical change can be brought about. However, a person of a body build of a type fitted to one athletic sport can acquire some proficiency in another, although he can never become a top-notcher or even a second-rater.

Furthermore, a person with a body build that does not belong to any type; that is, a poor specimen, while he can never become a topnotcher or a second-rater in anything can acquire proficiency enough to get pleasure out of play or to satisfy moderate expectations. The so-called all-round athletes who achieve reputation as such really excel in two sports, and occasionally in three, and are passably good in a few besides. There is never an all-round athlete in the sense that any one is a top-notcher, or even a good runner-up, in as many as a half dozen fields.

Drs. Schmidt and Sputh insist that a fine or even a superb physique of the right type for a given contest is not a sufficient equipment. For instance, a first-class prize fighter must be built right, but a prize fighter who is built right may be a dub. He must have the will to win, an appetite for competition, a willingness to take punishment, courage, a capacity for instantaneous decision and quick reaction, a good muscle sense, an eye for distance, time and harmony, good coordination and endurance and wind.

Some of the body types and the kind of athletics for which they are suited are given by these gentlemen as follows:

The short, heavy men are good shot putters and excel in other weight events. If they are good baseball players they excel as batters. They seldom field well, and they are slow on bases. Some good wrestlers are of this type. If they play football they play at guard or center.

The long distance runner is usually short, the middle distance runner is very tall and slender, and the sprinter is often a short man.

Boxers are usually of middle height, with good shoulders and back muscles best developed at the sixth thoracic vertebra, about the midchest, from top to bottom. The current opinion as to the best boxing type puts too much stress on the leg muscles. The heavy muscled prize fighter may have been all right 50 years ago, but he wins no fights under present-day rules.

RED PEPPER FEET.

T. F. K. writes: Your "Chilblains" noted. As a boy when I left my native "Sunny" California and went to my first snow in Oregon, my feet became chilled and I was in misery. An old Indian woman said to me: "Make your feet dry, shoe, too. Catch a little red pepper and put him inside your shoe. Pretty soon look, see how your feet." I have had great relief, even in France and Russia during the war, with this simple remedy.

COLD RESISTANCE.

Mrs. W. E. H. writes: 1. Please give some things to increase a child's resistance to colds.

2. What causes a child to perspire excessively when he is first put to bed? He is 5 years old and is just over a spell of scarlet fever. However, he perspired before his illness.

REPLY.

1. Life in the sunlight and open air is the best medicine for building up resistance. Cod liver oil, viosterol and radiated foods help.

2. I suspect that he is somewhat rickety. Susceptibility to colds and rickets go hand in hand. They have the same remedy.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Elsie's Hubby Answers!

DEAR Frances McDonald: It would be lacking in manners not to reply to C. W. I.'s letter to thank him for the amusement my wife and I derived from reading his comments on her expression of connubial felicity. He claims he never reads your column except when his eye is attracted to it. What I believe he really means is, when his wife calls his attention to the fact that there are some happily married couples in this world, which no doubt got under his skin, causing irritation. If he seldom reads your column, as he claims, my advice is not to miss it, for he will find plenty of good sound advice to cure his failings. No doubt he has made false moves during his married life, causing his being held beneath the thumb of the hand that rules the world.

If I am a moron, as you claim, Mr. C. W. I., you had better take a tip from me, learn to be one and happy, even if you have to make some sacrifices to make others happy first. I assure you, Mr. C. W. I., that we never, as you assert, bring up the subject of our happiness. Some one else usually does that, for in this day and age people don't walk around with the wool hanging over their eyes. It is found out sooner or later (as you say, you are not fooling anyone) and the only solution to avoid criticism is to treat your wife at home the same as you do among friends. I do help with the housework, thanks to my mother's teachings, and if my wife should be taken sick, she will not have to worry about getting out of a sick bed too soon because her neglectful husband has left the place untidy. If you, too, would don a little apron and pitch in, instead of making a servant out of your wife, you would be setting a good example to the children you claim to have and be received with a smile after your day's work.

It is true that most wives know how to cook, which is one of the many accomplishments of my wife, although I was not in search of a cook but a life companion when we married. If you want just a cook advertise for one and save yourself worry as to her other qualifications. If you want children, have them, is my advice, but do not regard the act as some unique and magnificent achievement, as is the case, we know.

While we are not living in a "parlor-bedroom and sink," we are not living in a mansion, as you would lead one to believe you are, but a very comfortable apartment within our moderate means, as we do not believe in trying to keep up with the Joneses. Besides, it doesn't take a mansion to enjoy love and happiness.

It is true that my wife never nags, never abuses, neither does she "lie around to be babied," although she gets the share which is rightfully due her (try a little some time; after all, what is a home without love and affection?) Oftentimes it is these seemingly little things that count in home congeniality. Try kissing your wife good-by in the morning and greeting her with a kiss in the evening, then sit back and watch the result. We enjoy each other's company to the extent that we are seldom apart, and when we are, neither one has to report to the other as to where were you and with whom. It is given voluntarily. All you have to do is tell the truth and don't do what you wouldn't want your wife to do, and you will be trusted out alone more frequently. Do not make liars out of each other when either comes in late, by asking questions. If you do wrong you will deny it; if either party is doing wrong, just give the suspected party enough rope and he or she will eventually hang. In conclusion, Mr. C. W. I., I wish to thank you once more for the pleasure. Come again. In the meantime, I suggest that you follow our example and learn to enjoy married life.

MR. ELSIE.

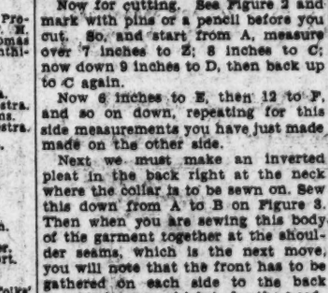
THE POTENT SIX SPOT

IT IS a matter of comparative ease to prepare hands which will bring about remarkable results and exemplify the element of time in the play of a hand at Contract Bridge. Time is, of course, the essence of all squeeze plays; that is, the fact that the side making the squeeze has the right to play first makes it necessary for the players who are squeezed to hopelessly discard cards which, were the lead in their hands, would be winners.

The hand below, which was played by Mr. Thomas G. Lyte, of Kane, Pa., afforded an interesting example of a six spot attaining a rank and dignity not usual when the suit to which it belonged was a plain suit. The hand and bidding were:

North and South vulnerable.



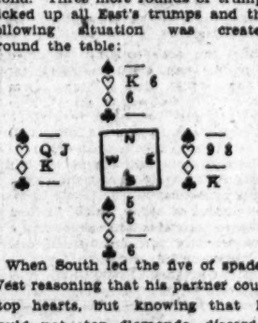
The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♡	3♠
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

In explaining the bidding, Mr. Lyte correctly says:

"My game bid was purely stretching my luck, but my partner had been ultra-conservative and I hoped that his hand contained two or three spades, perhaps the King and Queen of hearts and the Ace of diamonds."

A club was opened, won with the Ace and the suit returned. East, of course, winning. Now East could have prevented entirely the squeeze had he chosen to lead a trump. Instead, however, he led the Ace of diamonds and when his partner played the nine, he continued that suit. West won with the King and reasoning that East must have had some reason for failing to lead trumps, decided that it must be in a desire to have him lead through the heart King. South won with the Ace, led a small spade to the Knave and returned to his own hand by trumping a diamond. Three more rounds of trumps picked up all East's trumps and the following situation was created around the table:



When South led the five of spades. West reasoning that his partner could stop hearts, but knowing that he could not stop diamonds, discarded the heart Knave. North discarded the diamond six and East was forced to discard the club King. South now led the club six and took the final trick with the heart King in Dummy.

Today's Pointer.

In defending a hand, it does not always pay to cash the obvious tricks. The defending players must be alert to avoid the trap set for their feet by a wily Declarer.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

WHY does my Wandering Jew become so brown? I water it and keep it in the sun, but still at the end of a few months it is always brown and leggy with long leafless stems. MRS. CHARLES F. T.

Although this interesting little vine so soon becomes shabby, its beauty may soon be renewed by rooting the tips of shoots and throwing away the old plant. The tradescantia, or Wandering Jew, rarely retains its beauty longer than six months.

What can I do with an evergreen bush which is covered with white specks? The leaves are turning brown and falling off. This dwarf tree is five years old and up until this time it has always been healthy.

ALBERT F. H.

The specks to which you refer are likely scale insects or perhaps red spiders. Both of these insects may be routed if the plant is sprayed with a soap or miscible oil solution.

Helen D. P.—A moon vine is an annual and must, therefore, be grown from seed which is sown in the early spring.

Please tell me how to rid a collection of foliage plants of aphis (green fly or lice). I think the same insect is known by all three names.

MABEL H.

Daily spraying with cold water will usually rid a plant of aphis, or green flies. If spraying isn't practical, turn the plant upside down and immerse the tops in cold water. Where the insects are in epidemic form it may be necessary to use a weak solution of nicotine.

I have some pansies growing in a cold frame. I want to use these plants in the early spring in my windowboxes, which are attached to southern windows. When will it be safe to plant them outside?

MRS. HERBERT J. H.

You must wait until all danger of frost is over before planting blooming pansies outside. Pansies are cold-weather plants, but when in bloom they may be frozen.

Please give me the name of a rapid-growing vine which bears flowers. I have an exposed porch and I want a vine to protect it from the sun while I am waiting for a wistaria to develop.

WILLIAM McC.

Polygonum aubertf is a splendid vine for your purpose. It is perfectly hardy and is quite free from insects or disease. It makes a growth of twenty-five feet the first season. Its flowers are quite showy, being borne in long clusters which turn rose color with age.

When should I plant a Peruvian daffodil? I have had the bulb in a warm, dry place all winter.

MRS. HARRY G. T.

Plant your Peruvian daffodil in the open ground about the middle of May. It will soon show signs of growth and should begin to bloom about the first of July. Be sure to keep it well watered, also keep the dead flowers removed.

The women, under the direction of Miss Sarah E. Thomas, county home demonstration agent, have mailed hundreds of letters to the housewives of Alexandria and vicinity, listing the things that will be on sale.

For the past several weeks Miss Thomas has been giving lectures and demonstrations to the club members on what and how to select products according to market standards. The stand today will be under the supervision of Mrs. Harmon Roberts, of Woodlawn; Mrs. J. Eggleston and Mrs. Lawrence Leigh, of Andrew Chapel. Each Saturday a different demonstration club will have charge of the market.

DEMOCRATS LAUNCH VICTORY FUND DRIVE

By J. B. McDONNELL.

District Democrats launched their victory fund-raising campaign at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel last night to the tune of $4,106 in contributions and the predictions of Col. Arthur O'Brien, campaign chairman; Joseph P. Tumulty, and others, that one year from now a Democratic President would occupy the White House.

"Every dollar I contribute to this victory campaign," Col. O'Brien told the gathering, "I consider an investment to increase the value of the securities I own. The Republican party must nominate Mr. Hoover and I know that another four years of his experimental theories of economics and engineering will make of all of us a country of beggars. The one hope of recoupment of values and the restoration of America is a new administration."

Challenging Washingtonians who ask for greater control of local civic affairs to show their interest in the welfare of the Nation by participating in the activities of both political parties, Mr. Tumulty said "there never has been before a time when it is so important that the average man and woman should take an active interest in political affairs."

Will End Republican Party.

"The Republican party," Mr. Tumulty said, "is not going to be defeated in the coming election—it is going to be destroyed. It will be blotted out and disappear as did the Whig party. The Republican party thought that human beings had merely stomachs and no souls. The forthcoming election is going to see the resurrection of those great principles for which Woodrow Wilson fought. I might point out that after all the Republican criticism of Woodrow Wilson the Republican party changed only one thing he did 'in our foreign affairs and that one little thing had to do with the island of Yap.'"

Col. O'Brien said that President Hoover had gone St. Matthew and Aesop one better and had brought the wolf to the American people dressed in chicken feathers, and that the national welfare demanded the dismissal of the present occupant of the White House."

Rear Admiral Reginald Nicholson, retired, who piloted the battleship Oregon in its historic race half-round the world to participate in the battle of Manila Bay, asked widespread support of the fund-raising campaign.

Mrs. Harriman Organizes Women.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, District national committeewoman, organized, at the request of the chairman, a group of women to carry on a series of activities to aid in the victory campaign. Details of this will be discussed at a meeting to be held in the Mayflower Hotel at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

While the victory campaign meeting was progressing in the ballroom a Young People's Democratic Club was being formed in an adjoining room in the hotel. Organization of the District Young People's Club was a part of a national movement under the auspices of the Democratic national committee.

More than 30 States and the District, as well as several colleges and universities, are to be represented in a national gathering of Young People's party organizations to be held here tonight. Delegates to the gathering, the national committee announced, are paying their own expenses.

Indictments Name 10 in Taxi Holdups

Robbery Is Charged in True Bills Returned by Grand Jury.

Ten men were indicted by the District grand jury yesterday on robbery charges, all of them the outgrowth of holdups of taxicab drivers.

Willard Messick, William G. Duffy, and William E. McKinney, were indicted for allegedly holding up Ernest M. Morningstar and robbing him of his cab. Morningstar attracted the attention of a police car that drove up shortly after, and a short chase resulted in the capture of the three men.

George Taylor, Rudolph Brisco, Herbert Price, Lawrence Boston and Thomas Cleveland, all colored, were indicted for holding up a cab driver February 6. Taylor, Cleveland and Herbert Jones were named in a second indictment, and Taylor, Brisco and Herbert Jones were indicted in a third such paper.

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

FOX

By NELSON B. BELL.

This is preponderantly Ben Lyon's week at the Fox and it is distinctly to the credit of this articulate and personable young man that he is able to enlist the interested attention of his audience not only during the brief ten or twelve minutes he is on the stage in person, but for much longer than that afterward in the stellar role of "The Big Timer," a picture which, without him, wouldn't be one.

Mr. Lyon in his personal appearance neither attempts anything that he can not do nor prattles aimlessly about Hollywood and its palpitant populace. Instead, he talks upon a topic much closer to his own private concerns and obviously more agreeable to his hearers—"The Care and Raising of Children." The youthful father evidently is not without some personal experience in the daytime, nocturnal and matutinal requirements of babes in arms!

At the conclusion of his short but scintillant monologue at yesterday afternoon's first performance, the star of "Hell's Angels" and so many other diverting celluloids was somewhat put to it to find adequate means of acknowledging a volume of applause that demanded something beyond a casual "thank you." So he called Bebe Daniels, in private life Mrs. Lyon, out of her comfortable orchestra chair to the stage to take a joint bow with him—whereupon, of course, the applause was doubled and redoubled. After that, there was nothing that could be done about it but to go into the Fanchon & Marco "All at Sea" idea, one of the best stage shows the Fox has offered in months, thanks largely to the personality and finesse of Ben Bard, who combines the functions of star and master of ceremonies. Save in the vaguest of nautical suggestions in some of its settings, this unit completely belies its title. Its principals know very well what they are about. They are about as entertaining as any crew that has come along this season!

Mr. Bard is much in evidence much of the time and is amusingly assisted in much that he does by Matt Brooks, a comedian who also turns out to be a saxophonist of parts. He, Mr. Bard, introduces also Lester and Garson, a comedy team; Gregory and Raymon, comedy instrumentalists, who successfully extract melody from everything from saws to bicycle pumps and vacuum cleaners, and a group of Sunkist Beauties who are individually capable enough to increase the roster of principals by a round dozen. Here is a miniature revue that embodies most of the virtues of its big time counterparts and a considerable number of their risque skits.

When "The Big Timer" comes on the screen we encounter a Ben Lyon who is measurably better than his vehicle. As the young lunchwagon hash-slinger who becomes a small-time prize fighter and eventually a main event scrapper at Madison Square Garden, he gives a spirited and believable performance that is marked by a far greater degree of freshness than the story he is called upon to motivate. It is the old familiar tale of the box-fighter who outgrew the shrew advice of his sweetheart-manager, slipped from the heights back to the four-round preliminaries and was only reclaimed to greatness when friend wife again took an interest in his professional activities and once more spurred him on to victory.

Although Lyon is far and away the best thing in the picture, performances of merit are contributed by Constance Cummings, who is not always quite hard-boiled enough for the daughter of a promoter whose "stable" she inherited upon his death; Tom Dugan, as a helpful handler, and Thelma Todd, as the society girl who lured Cookey Bradford from the prize-ring to the primrose path.

An exhilarating program devoted to breezy action and brisk personalities is completed by a new issue of the Fox Movietone News, dedicated largely to the catastrophe that has overtaken the Lindbergh home; Mickey Mouse as "The Grocery Boy," and Wagner's "Tannhauser" overture, executed by the orchestra under the baton of Al Mitchell. If you are that unlucky, you may, too, at certain performances, run afoul of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Norworth in a rowdy reel or two called, "Spreading Sunshine."

Progress in Bird Protection Shown

The extensive work of bird lovers of America was described to members of the National Geographic Society at the Washington Auditorium last night by Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies.

Bird protection did not begin until approximately 60 years ago, Dr. Pearson pointed out. Even under the vigilance of representatives of the society many birds faced extinction until extensive reservations were established.

Motion pictures illustrated Dr. Pearson's remarks showed the Roosevelt Sanctuary in the shadow of the home of the late President at Oyster Bay; the extensive area of the Florida Everglades, where it is planned to establish a national park, and the Rainey Wild Life Sanctuary, of Louisiana on the Gulf of Mexico, where literally millions of birds find safe refuge.

The cormorant was extinct on the coast of Maine until sanctuaries were established, Dr. Pearson said, while the same fate awaited the pelicans of Florida. These birds now are increasing in great numbers under the protection of the society and its employes, some of whom have even faced the rifles of commercial hunters, who have ravaged wide areas by promiscuous hunting.

Sigall Finishes Portrait Of Lawrence Richey

The portrait of Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President of the United States, was completed yesterday by Prof. Joseph Sigall, in his studio at the Mayflower Hotel.

RIALTO

"IMPATIENT MAIDEN." Universal picturization of "The Impatient Virgin," by Donald Henderson Clarke, adapted to the screen by Richard Schayer and Winnifred Dunn, starring Lew Ayres and Mae Clarke. Directed by James Whale. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Whether this maiden was impatiently awaiting the arrival of That Certain Person or an appendectomy can not be stated, for these two events are the only ones about which there might be any impatience—and the lady of the title is but very slightly concerned with the advent of either one. Outside of this somewhat captious criticism, "Impatient Maiden" is a diverting drama of a doctor and the secretary of a divorce attorney.

Into a tenement house of the "Street Scene" type comes young Dr. Brown to revive a would-be suicide and discovers Ruby Robbins, the secretary of Divorce Lawyer Hartman, to be a very charming girl but with decided ideas on love and marriage engendered largely by the examples of mismating coming under her business eye. These ideas the doctor resents, and, peeved, Ruby accepts a ritzy apartment from her employer. This further adds to the mistaken ideas most of the company has acquired, and finally Ruby tells Hartman she is through.

When first Ruby met the doctor, he warned her that an appendectomy was imminent unless precautions were taken. But when things are darkest, the worst happens, an emergency operation is ordered and there is no one to perform it except Dr. Brown. He successfully performs his first "solo," and, though Ruby loses her appendix "just in time," she gains a husband.

At first appearance, Lew Ayres, as the young medico, seems too youthful even for an interne, but as the story progresses he warms up to his task, and in the last part of the picture more than atones for any previous shortcomings. Mae Clarke impersonates the worldly wise secretary in a very creditable manner. But the medical aspects of the story are of more concern than the erotic. Although the symptoms of acute appendicitis and the clinical representations of the operation are apt to lead to erroneous conclusions, they are worked well into the action. A little surgery, however, could be endured with no loss of entertainment value. John Halliday is the suave divorce attorney.

Giving the major complications of the narrative almost neck-and-neck competition is the humorous love story of Una Merkel, with her inimitable dumb Kentucky drawl, and Andy Devine, her "red-headed gentleman nurse." Among the others in well-played character parts are Arthur Hoyt, Cecil Cunningham, Bert Roach, Lorin Raker, Helen Jerome Eddy and Oscar Apfel.

George Herman ("Babe") Ruth heads the short subjects with "Just Pals," a discourse on the technique of batting, sugar-coated with a boy story. Another "Shadow" murder mystery, "Circus Show-Up," with Sally Blane and Russell Hopton, and a release of Universal News complete the bill.

METROPOLITAN

"THE BROKEN LULLABY." Paramount picturization of the play, "The Man I Killed," by Maurice Rostand, adapted to the screen by Reginald Berkeley, featuring Lionel Barrymore, Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes. Directed by Ernst Lubitsch. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

When the year's census of fine pictures is taken, "The Broken Lullaby" will be in the first ten if it does not head the list. All the ingredients for a powerful photoplay have here been taken by Ernst Lubitsch and carefully proportioned to yield a drama that holds its grip throughout.

New honors will come to Lionel Barrymore, to Nancy Carroll and to Phillips Holmes as the result of their performances. The stock of Louise Carter as a character actress will rise tremendously. A half dozen others will share in the reflected glory of the featured players. From which it may be gathered that the cast is well chosen, the members are convincing in their roles and utilize to the best advantage every opportunity given them by the lines of the story.

It is doubtful that three better choices for the principal parts could have been made. Lionel Barrymore is superb as the hating—then loving—father of a German boy killed in the war. Nancy Carroll's subdued performance as the fiancee of the slain youth, falling in love with the French boy who killed him, is appealing and convincing. And Phillips Holmes, as the Frenchman, tortured by the unseeing eyes of "the man I killed" seeking forgiveness from the loved ones of his foe, only to find love and a new interest in life, turns in a job that is amazingly correct in every detail.

There you have the gist of the story. Director Lubitsch has combined these splendid performances with expert build-ups and some splendid photography by Victor Milner to produce a picture that virtually sways its audience to the moods of the players themselves. There's a laugh here, a tear there. A tense situation for the moment, then a sudden relief from the strain. Through it all runs the slowly changing tide of public opinion. From the first harsh strains of hatred of a conquering foe to the final triumph of peace and love, the story moves steadily along its goal ever in sight and with each step designed to bring about the desired climax.

Louise Carter, as the mother of the German soldier, does a swell bit, particularly in the final scenes as she and Mr. Barrymore forget the past in the joy of a new love. Lucien Littlefield, as an unwanted suitor for the hand of Nancy Carroll, and creator of false rumors about the "invading" Frenchman, has a despicable role which he nevertheless handles faultlessly. Others who add to the strength of the play are Tom Douglas, SaZu Pitts, Frank Sheridan, George Bickel and Tully Marshall.

Keeping pace with the feature, the auxiliary film subjects are outstanding. "Subway Symphony," something new in the way of comedies, introduces a miniature revue of excellent caliber, thoroughly entertaining. A Looney Tune called "Bib-Hearted Bosko," has several side-splitting incidents, while the Paramount Sound News, in addition to carrying shots at the scene of the Lindbergh kidnaping, offered a startling camera report of the dangers of steeplechasing.

Black Sand Falls on Villages.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 4 (A.P.).—Showers of black sand fell from a clear sky over villages in the Province of Rio Negro, southwest of here, today, apparently originating from volcanic manifestations somewhere in the Andes.

COLUMBIA

"ARROWSMITH." Samuel Goldwyn's picturization for United Artists of the novel by Sinclair Lewis, adapted to the screen by Sidney Howard, starring Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes. Directed by John Ford. Previewed Tuesday midnight.

By NELSON B. BELL.

It is wholly understandable that Sinclair Lewis, winner of the Nobel prize for literature, should be elated over the treatment accorded his novel, "Arrowsmith," by Mr. Goldwyn and his associates. Of a book which by many is rated as its author's best, they have made a picture that must be ranked among the finest of the year.

"Arrowsmith" is the story of Martin Arrowsmith, a young medical student, who aspires to become a great scientist—and finally does. The path to achievement and renown, however, is thick beset by domestic difficulties and private tragedies, always ameliorated—until the last final blow that crystallizes his resolve to adjure the warm humanitarianisms for the chill isolation of a life of service to mankind—by the devotion and boundless solicitude of an heroic little wife who refuses ever to leave his side until death intervenes.

It is not always a pleasant or a cheerful tale. It balances a fine and inspiriting optimism, that ever sees triumph just ahead, by a somber touch of tragedy that writes the picture quickly off the list of the screen's frivolities and places it among the works of pith and purpose.

Ronald Colman, in the title role, and Helen Hayes, as his fragile and adoring wife, lend the film the superlative benefits of their matured and versatile talents and two sterling character actors—one making his long-deferred debut before the cameras—in the distinguished persons of Richard Bennett and A. E. Anson, by the excellence of their work would lift the pictured drama still further toward the rarified heights of histrionic supremacy even were Mr. Colman and Miss Hayes not so able. Bennett's Dr. Sondelius, Swedish scientist and citizen of the world, is a superb conception.

The climb to greatness, which Arrowsmith so tediously and tortuously pursues, is punctuated by glimpses of life in the tiny cities of the Middle West, among the marble and chromium skyscrapers that pierce New York's distant sky and in the plague-ridden jungles of the stricken West Indies, never ostentatiously or unnecessarily disclosed, but employed always as an essential element of plot development and dramatic climax. The plague sequences among the simple natives of a primitive land are executed with extraordinary realism.

Whether or not a subject so tinged with tragedy and so destitute of any leavening touch of comic relief appeals to the individual theatergoer as ideal entertainment, it will, at least, leave a deep imprint upon his memory as a camera drama that moves definitely in the direction of a mature and thoughtful cinema.

In addition to those mentioned, Claude King, Beulah Bondi, in the small role of Leora's mother; Myrna Loy, Alec B. Francis, Russell Hopton, T. De Witt Jennings, Bert Roach, Adele Watson and Lumsden Hare do much to strengthen "Arrowsmith's" claim to attention as a distinguished production.

The bill is completed by a "Flip, the Frog," cartoon comedy, "The Milk Man," and a flew release of the Paramount Sound News, which devotes much of its footage to the Lindberghs' overwhelming sorrow.

PALACE

"POLLY OF THE CIRCUS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of Margaret Mayo's play, starring Marion Davies and Clark Gable. Directed by Alfred Santell. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

"Polly of the Circus" alas shows her age. (The play, we mean, we wouldn't get so personal about a lady.) She's still entertaining with her twists and turns but her thrills are a bit archaic and not so surprising, her adventures somewhat more tried, and consequently less true, than in the days of her stage experience with Edith Taliaferro in the leading role. And she's a very sentimental Polly.

Stereotyped as is the story of the little circus girl who falls in love with a minister and then has to run away again, back to the circus to keep from ruining his life, it has considerable interest, a tense, even though overly drawn-out and anticipated, finish, a nicely turned handling of emotional scenes by Marion Davies, and a role for Clark Gable over which there will be much comment.

Personally, we like Gable in the part of the young minister, whom he makes thoroughly likable, sincere and believable. Others may not. It is a part very like that of Carl, of the Salvation Army, which he played in "Laughing Sinners," and its one discordant note is the same as that sounded in the earlier picture—the eternal consciousness of Gable's suppression and an attendant desire for him to burst loose just once and let all that bottled-up strength rip!

Marion Davies plays Polly with understanding and sympathy in the demanding scenes toward the end of the picture.

Good old Raymond Hatton does supremely well by Downey, who hates dust and women, and is about "30 cents missing." C. Aubrey Smith is his usual satisfactory self.

The stage portion of the bill more than holds its own; it seems to top the picture a little in entertainment value. Darline Walters twists and turns in the air without a trapeze as expertly as Polly does with one—and her dancing is graceful for all its acrobatics. Charlotte and her partner present a gem of a ballroom dance and then return with an adagio number that for grace and skill and beauty, is the daddy of them all. Hector heckles his dogs and they disobey him delightfully in his amusing act. Winnie Wayne shouts (and brethren and sisters, we means shout!) "Shout, sister," and then renders—not just sings—renders "Minnie the Moocher." Three skaters wind up the bill in a whirl or two of glory.

Al Wohlman is most pleasantly there every moment to keep things going, and then on his own, teases and taunts that old man river to keep away from his door.

500 HEAR MOTHER PLEAD FOR MOONEY

Two mothers appeared last night to appeal for the release of their sons from prison. Their appearance drew about 500 persons to the Arcade Auditorium at Fourteenth street and Park road northwest to hear appeals for Tom Mooney and the son of Viola Montgomery, colored, held in the Scottsboro, Ala., attack case.

The message of Mrs. Mary Mooney was not presented directly by her. It was read by a young woman companion, but the mother of the man who has served sixteen years in San Quentin Prison in connection with the San Francisco preparedness parade bombing, sat on the platform and listened attentively as her message was read.

"The only message I can bring you is the message of a mother," her companion read. "The fight is not a personal one, but against the entire frame-up system. I well remember the animosity of the big corporations because Tom tried to improve the conditions of workers for the big utility corporations.

"I depend on you, workers and sympathizers in Washington, to bring about the pardon of my boy. Only mighty and continuous protest will move the California authorities."

In introducing Mrs. Mooney, Carl Hacker, chairman of the International Labor Defense, said that when Mrs. Mooney started on her trip to the East her doctor had told her it was suicide, but that she had replied that when she found Gov. Rolph was again planning delay in the Mooney case she would go "if she dropped dead in the streets."

Viola Montgomery told the audience that "I have come here only in defense of my 17-year-old boy. I am not used to speaking, but I know he is innocent. I appeal to you for his release."

Her son, with four others, is under death sentence.

Ben Marsh, of the People's Lobby, said Mooney was in jail "for the same reason that millions of people don't know where their next meal is coming from." He declared that if the country elected either a Democratic or Republican candidate next year, the "citizens deserved to starve."

Al Smith and Roosevelt Hold Albany Conference

Albany, N. Y., March 4 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, both candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, had a half-hour talk in the executive's office today.

Also calling on the governor today were Mayor James J. Walker of New York and Surrogate James A. Foley. Foley, like Walker, is viewed as a power in Tammany Hall. Asked by newspapermen concerning the nature of today's talk with the former governor, Mr. Roosevelt said:

WASHINGTON READY TO BAIT IDLE DOLLAR

Banks to Cooperate in Anti-hoarding Week, Which Opens Monday.

Washington's hoarded dollars are expected to flock from their hiding places at the beck of the "baby bond" tune, with Uncle Sam as the Pied Piper, when "Antihoarding Week" begins Monday.

All Washington banks last night pledged their support to the campaign which will be managed by Newbold Noyes, chairman of the local area of the President's Citizens' Reconstruction Organization.

Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank, said that C. H. Pope, president of the District Bankers Association, had informed him of the willingness of all members of the association to cooperate in the bond sale.

All Washington banks will receive subscriptions for the one-year Treasury certificates of indebtedness, which are to be issued in denominations of $50, $100 and $500. They will be redeemable at par with accrued interest before maturity upon 60 days' notice to the Government.

It is not desired that these bonds be purchased with money withdrawn from banks for that purpose, it was emphasized by the committee. The securities are offered as the soundest kind of investment for money which has been withdrawn from normal credit channels.

The bonds were described as "interest bearing dollars" and will be a safe investment as long as the Government is sound. Persons who buy them will not only be benefiting from the interest, but will be playing their part in restoring employment and prosperity.

It was pointed out that "Antihoarding Week" is not to float an enormous issue of bonds nor to transfer funds from one sound investment to another, but is to put the idle dollar back in the stream of finance.

DR. C. F. LANGWORTHY DIES

Rites for Noted Chemist to Be at Old Home in Vermont.

Dr. Charles Ford Langworthy died here yesterday after a long illness. He will be buried Sunday in Middlebury, Vt., which was his family home. He was a chemist and was for many years one of the foremost workers in America on nutrition problems, being connected with the Department of Agriculture first as associate editor of the Experiment Station Record, and later chief of nutrition investigation and chief of the office of home economics.

He was graduated from Middlebury College in 1887 and took his Ph. D. in Strassburg in 1893. He received the honorary degree of D. Sc. from Middlebury in 1912. He was a member of many scientific societies, and of the Society of Colonial Wars and of the Cosmos and University Clubs.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THERE appears to be some doubt at the present moment as to whether Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will hie themselves to Hollywood upon the conclusion of their eminently successful season in Robert Emmett Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna" to make another picture.

When the unequivocal success of their first joint effort on the screen, "The Guardsman," had been made sure by swollen boxoffice receipts all over the country, it seemed a certainty that at the first opportunity these two favorite Drama Guild stars would seek to repeat their initial triumph before the cameras and microphones.

Now word comes out of New York, although through channels that are more or less subterranean, to the effect that instead of revisiting Hollywood, Lunt and Fontanne will revisit London to appear with Noel Coward in a new comedy he is writing. This, if it indeed eventuates, will be in the nature of a homecoming for Miss Fontanne, since she was born just at the edge of the British capital.

Mr. Coward is reported to be on his way to this country from South America and it is possible that rehearsals of his new play will be undertaken on this side before sailing for England.

Blanche Ring will soon return to the New York dramatic stage in a new play by Earle Crocker, bearing the title of "Intimate Relations."

It is in this play that Frances Rich, talented daughter of Irene Rich, screen star, who has just completed a week of personal appearances at the RKO-Keith Theater in this city, has been rehearsing since the closing of "Brief Moment," the Francine Larrimore vehicle in which she was seen at the Belasco earlier in the season. "Intimate Relations" will be Miss Rich's second production since graduating from Smith College last June. And is her charming mother proud!

Speaking of personal appearances, when Ben Lyon concluded his first at the Fox yesterday afternoon and called his wife, Bebe Daniels, out of the audience to take a bow with him on the stage, Washington was more honored than it knew. This is the first time Miss Daniels has stepped foot upon any stage with her husband since he has been on his present tour.

Word comes by direct wire to this desk that when the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, in twelfth annual convention assembled in the Hotel Mayflower, March 14, 15 and 16, toss their banquet on Tuesday evening, March 15, there will be in attendance a formidable group of screen stars, brought down especially for this occasion.

Among those who are definitely articled to be among those present are Conrad Nagel, June Collyer and her husband, Stuart Erwin, Jacqueline Logan, Winnie Lightner and Bert Lytell. The tentative guest of honor among the stars—although her presence has not been positively assured—is Mary Pickford.

With Eddie Dowling as master of ceremonies, aided and abetted by his own gang of stooges, what a night that will be!

The real guests of honor at the M. P. T. O. A., banquet will be the Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, and Mr. and Mrs. Gann, his brother-in-law and official hostess, respectively.

A new pairing of young romanticists is coming to the Fox screen next week—Charles Farrell and Marian Nixon in "After Tomorrow." From the snatches of the action revealed in the trailer currently on at the F street cathedral, I gather that Miss Nixon sings with a voice much like Janet Gaynor's. However, perhaps this is undue alarm!

Further report will be forthcoming after the entire footage of the picture has been previewed Monday morning.

And the Fox, by the way, is engineering another of those voting contests—or something of the sort—whereby the winner will be awarded an Easter vacation trip to Miami Beach, Fla., with railroad transportation in both directions and accommodations at the swanky Roney Plaza Hotel free, gratis for nothing.

In fact, the outlook is so entrancing that the excited gentleman who compiled the screen announcement in his ecstasy described the outing as "Sumptious." No kidding!

They make big pictures now and then these days, and occasionally something, like "Cimarron," for example, that deserves to be described as an "epic," but it has been a long time since any one has had the temerity to step out and attempt to match some of the "colossal superspecials" of the old days, like Griffith's "Intolerance," De Mille's "Ten Commandments," Niblo's "Ben-Hur," or even Tom Ince's long-forgotten "Civilization."

And who remembers when the French and the Italians used to send over spectacles that it was believed this country never would be able to match in magnitude and splendor? Not that it matters.

This will be found to be an unusual week in the motion picture theaters. Not only are the feature camera subjects uniformly good, but in the houses presenting stage shows in addition it will be found that the level of excellence of the vaudeville is considerably higher than usual.

The Earle, Palace, Fox and RKO-Keith's offer stage attractions that excel the best week ever known in the hey-heyday of the two-a-day—thus in a measure compensating for the continued darkness of the National through the obnoxious functioning of the District's indefensible—insofar as the theaters are concerned—child labor law.

And you must come over and see us some time!

Bankruptcy Plea Filed By Hollywood Writer

Los Angeles, March 4 (A.P.).—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed today by Patrick Kearney, Hollywood screen writer, listed among his liabilities $1,300 due the estate of the late Arnold Rothstein, New York gambler, and an unpaid $2,500 personal loan from Otto H. Kahn, New York banker.

FORT WASHINGTON RALLIES TO WIN IN TOURNEY

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Biloxi, Miss., March 4.

BILOXI'S first rainfall in two weeks failed to interrupt the practice of the Nats this morning, but it sent city officials scurrying about the premises in an effort to establish the owner of the rubber tarpaulin used to keep the diamond dry.

Oldest inhabitants declared it was the greatest excitement since Union gunboats steamed up the Mississippi Sound and laid siege to old Fort Massachusetts, so named probably because it was a Confederate fort and Massachusetts was not in the Confederacy.

President Clark Grimth, of the Washington Club, innocently started a to-do when he inquired casually if the old rubber tarpaulin, which was decrepit and leaky in spots, might not be cut up into two pieces which might serve to cover home plate and the pitcher's box in acceptable fashion.

Trainer Mike Martin told Grimth he thought it would be O.K. to shear the tarpaulin in half without further inquiry. Grimth declared he would do nothing in the matter until he was given the proper authority to proceed with the cutting. Who had the authority?

Anthony Ragusin, the executive secretary of the chamber of commerce whose negotiations brought the Washington club to Biloxi, suggested that John Swansy, commissioner of public works, be consulted on the matter. The commissioner of public works pleaded off and suggested that the question be referred to the mayor. In the meantime, the rain was raining and the diamond beginning to look like the backwash of the Johnstown flood. But Grifith would not proceed without authority.

The mayor was of no help in the matter, reporting that his office was unable to trace ownership of the tarpaulin and Griffith held to his guns in refusing to apply without the proper authority the shears which were being held ready. As a last resort the groundkeeper was appealed to in the hope that he might shed some light on the situation and at a late hour tonight Griffith was making slow recovery from the shock.

It seems that the groundkeeper remembered that Grifith himself had brought the tarpaulin down from Washington with him two years ago when he replaced it in Griffith Stadium with a newer and better covering. It was a matter of only a few minutes to alice off the desired portions of the tarpaulin after Griffith went into consultation with himself and gave himself the authority to proceed with the cutting of his own tarpaulin.

Griffith took one of his young pitchers to task today when he noticed the size of the cut of tobacco that protruded in the jaw of young Lynn Griffith, the Chattanooga recruit who is expected to earn a berth with the team this season.

"Why are you chewing that stuff?" the Nats' owner asked the rookie. "Don't you know you can't help swallowing some of that juice and it cuts down your wind? You'll need all the breath you've got when you start pitching out there. I ought to fine you."

Young Griffith spat out some of the amber juice and continued to chew. It wasn't exactly insubordination, because all pitchers are entitled to chew. It helps steady the nerves, like a cigarette to an habitue. The Nats' owner himself confessed that he liked his "cut" when he was pitching 30 years ago. But he maintains that it affects a player's wind.

◆

Speaking of fines, Griffith tells the story of enforcing a rule against Walter Johnson when the Nats' manager was in his prime as a pitcher. Of all his victims, Duffy Lewis, the old Red Sox left fielder, was the easiest for Johnson. He couldn't hit Johnson's fast ball with a paddle. He could slam Johnson's curve, however.

It was a close game in Boston one day when Walter slipped two fast balls past Lewis. Eddie Ainsmith signaled for another. Johnson balked and shook off the signal. Ainsmith insisted on a fast ball and Johnson gave him the "no." He pitched his curve and Lewis jammed it over the center field fence for a home run that won the game.

Griffith then issued the order that Johnson would be fined $100 every time he threw a curve ball to Duffy Lewis. It cured him.

College Stars Seek Track Crowns

Five Champions to Defend; Penn Relay Favorite.

NEW YORK, March 4 (A.P.).—Climaxing the Eastern college winter track season the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America will present its eleventh annual track and field extravaganza tomorrow night in the world's largest drill shed, the 258th Field Artillery Armory in the Bronx.

At least 300 of the leading college performers of this section and a few from the South and Middle West are sure to start in the eleven events on the program.

Five of last year's individual champions are back to defend their laurels, while the University of Pennsylvania, even without the great Barney Berlinger, again is a contender for the team title they ran away with last year.

The defending champions are Al Kelly, of Georgetown, in the 70-yard dash; Eugene (Red) Record, of Harvard, in the 70-yard high hurdles; Carl Coan, of Pennsylvania, in the mile; Joe McCluskey, of Fordham, in the 2 mile, and William B. O'Connor, of Columbia, in the high jump.

Pennsylvania is the favorite to retain its mile relay title, with New York University the closest contender, and Boston College has brought back another crack quartet of half-milers to defend its 2-mile relay crown.

Kelly, Kovalanak, Relay Represent Georgetown

A small but select group of Georgetown University trackmen are scheduled to leave this morning for New York, where they will compete in the indoor intercollegiate championship meet tonight. Only six Hilltoppers, in addition to Coach Jimmy Mulligan, will make the trip.

Mulligan plans to start Vic Burke, Jack Mara, Capt. Jim Kelly and "Chuck" Carlin in the one-mile relay. Artie Briggs had virtually clinched a berth on the team before he pulled a tendon in practice and was forced out of competition. Al Kelly, sprint ace of the locals, who has been beaten this season only by Emmett Toppino, sensational New Orleans youth, is conceded better than an even chance of retaining his title in the 50-yard event. Kelly will have a running mate in Walter Kovalanak, a sophomore, who will be running for the first time in a meet of major importance.

Last Rites for Morris At Home in Flomaton

Flomaton, Ala., March 4 (A.P.).—Scores of friends of Ed Morris, Boston Red Sox pitcher, came here today to pay tribute to his memory at funeral services in the Flomaton Baptist Church. Interment was in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Morris died in Century, Fla., Hospital yesterday from two stab wounds near the heart which were inflicted by Joe White, of Brewton, Ala., in an altercation at a fish fry given as a farewell party to the big Boston pitcher before he left for training camp.

White is charged with murder.

Judge Doubtful Of Leaving Today

Veteran Is Discouraged at Not Having Chance at Job; Still Unsigned.

It looks as though there will not be any second delegation of Washington players leaving here today for the Biloxi training base. Third Baseman Ossie Bluege left yesterday for a visit at High Point before heading to camp, while Joe Judge was undecided last night whether or not he would take the trip at this time.

"I don't know what to do," said Judge. "I haven't signed my contract and don't know whether or not President Clark Griffith will let me work out with the team until I do. Reports from Biloxi that I am out as a regular indicate that I won't get a 50-50 break in the fight with Kuhel for the regular job, and the way I'm feeling now, I don't know whether I'll leave tomorrow or not. I haven't even started packing up."

Joe added that his arm and legs are as good as they ever will be as a result of work at the Jewish Community Center and that all he needs is a little hitting practice to put him right at top form for the season's start.

Fields Outpointed In Indrisano Bout

Boston, March 4 (A.P.).—The jinx that pursues ring champions in Boston tonight fell on Jackie Fields, recrowned welterweight title holder, for the second time in three years, and he was decisively outpointed by Johnny Indrisano, a clever homebred, in the Boston Garden's ten-round feature. Both weighed over the limit, Fields scaling 148½ and his conqueror 151¼.

"Strangler" Lewis Seeks Londos Bout

St. Louis, March 4 (A.P.).—Ed "Strangler" Lewis wants to meet Jim Londos to decide the heavyweight wrestling championship.

"I do not consider myself in the role of a challenger," Lewis said. "I insist that my claim to the heavyweight title is quite as clear as his. But to settle all doubts, I am willing to meet him in the ring and let the better man win."

Lewis won from Hans Kampfer, of Germany, in a match here last night. He is recognized in some States as the champion, while Londos is recognized in other States.

Cards, Macks Renew Old Rivalry

Pepper Martin Again Magnet; Several Stars Absent.

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

MIAMI, Fla., March 4 (A.P.).—Picking up their rivalry for the first time since Pepper Martin made the last putout of the 1931 baseball championship, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Philadelphia Athletics open their spring "world series" here tomorrow.

Martin will be the headliner again as the pennant winners of the major leagues fire the first shots of the exhibition warfare in the Florida "grapefruit circuit." Two games will be played here, Saturday and Sunday, a third in Fort Myers, the A's camp, on Monday and a fourth on the home training grounds of the Cardinals at Bradenton, March 16.

Cards Gained Confidence Last Year.

At least part of the confidence that inspired the Cardinals to win the world championship last year was gained in beating the Athletics, then the rulers of all they surveyed, in the 1931 spring series. The Cards even went so far as to treat the great Robert Moses Grove roughly, meanwhile adding insult to injury by using rookie pitchers to check the mighty White Elephants.

Both clubs are anxious to win, even though it doesn't mean much, and they will be shy a number of their stars, including Grove, Earnshaw, Cochrane and Simmons, of the A's, and Haley, Bottomley, Frisch and Gelbert, of the Cards. The rookies view the impending battles as the first crucial test of the training season, particularly as they will do most of the pitching.

Dizzy Dean Faces Test.

The performances of Dizzy Dean, Ray Starr and Tex Carleton in the box for the world champions will be watched with special interest. Starr is due to work tomorrow, along with Bud Teachout, a southpaw obtained from the Cubs. Dean and Carleton probably will pitch Sunday. The A's have Ed Rommel and Roy Mahaffey, two seasoned flingers, on the squad coming here tomorrow, but Krausse, Bowman, Cainn and other recruit twirlers will get most of the work.

Pepper Martin came to town today with the Cardinal crew. The hero of the world series is eager to get on the bases again. His supporting cast includes Orsatti and Watkins, in the outfield; Collins, Ford, Delker and Adams in the infield.

Jimmy Foxx will be at third for the A's, as the forecast of a pending switch in Connie Mack's organization. Roettger will occupy first, with Jimmy Dykes on second and Dib Williams at short. Haas, Miller and Ed Coleman, recruit from Portland, Oreg., will be in the outfield.

French Record Holder Is Banned as Pro

Paris, March 4 (A.P.).—The name of Jules Ladoumegue, world's record holder in the mile, tonight was struck from the rolls of the French Amateur Athletic Federation on grounds of professionalism. Unless he is reinstated later Ladoumegue will not be eligible to represent France in the Olympic games at Los Angeles.

Ladoumegue's license was withdrawn on February 1, when the federation began an inquiry into a charge that the great French middle distance star had accepted payment, in disguised form, for a competitive appearance.

The federation's executive committee met tonight to hear Ladoumegue's appeal and removed his name from the rolls when he failed to appear.

Helen Hicks Bows To Mrs. Lake, 1 Up

Former Marion Turpie Wins on 19th Hole in Women's Fla. Play.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. R. C. Lake, who as Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, twice won the Southern golf title, today defeated Helen Hicks, national champion, in the semifinals of the Florida East Coast tournament, one up, in nineteen holes.

Mrs. Lake had Miss Hicks four down on the tenth, but the latter's game picked up and she made a brilliant comeback to even the match going to the eighteenth.

Soldiers Trailing by 27-14 Margin in Second Half.

Powhatans Win From Swann's, 20-18, in 130-Lb. Fray.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE burly buck privates of Fort Washington marched into Tech High Gymnasium last night, were at first put to rout, rallied, and then swept over the Logan A. C. Five with a pyrotechnical display of basket ball talent to win their initial game in The Post-District A. A. U. basket ball tournament, 39 to 34.

The game stood out in a night which was given over to close and thrill-packed basket ball games. The evening opened with the 20-to-18 victory of the Powhatans over the Swann's Service 130-pound team, and was concluded with a bangup 21-17 victory for the Clifton Barbers over Phi Delta Zeta.

The Y. M. C. A. Eagles showed a a high grade of sportsmanship last night by offering to postpone their scheduled game with the 130-pound Brightwood Indians, who were able to muster only four boys because of sickness within the team. If A. A. U. officials uphold the fine gesture on the part of the Eagles, the game will be played next Tuesday.

Soldiers Rally to Win Decision.

The Soldiers set a high mark for subsequent rivals to shoot at in their victory over the Logans. The Logan Club was ahead from the start until deep in the second half. At the half the Logans led, 23-13, boosted to that mark by the sterling play of Ben McCullough, former Eastern High all-around athlete, and the floor play of Forsythe, former George Washington University player.

The Logans started flashily and appeared able to spread their flash over the entire game, as McCullough, Forsythe and now Matthews continued their speed and accuracy in the second half. The score went out to 27-15.

Then commenced as bulldoggish a comeback as the tournament probably will see. The slow, steady, deep-shouldered offensive of the Soldiers began functioning, and before it the brittle and nimble play of the Logan team quickly collapsed. Privates Bernie Morriss and George "Horseneck" Uhrinak began to blossom out as outstanding basket ball players.

Morris Hits Loop Regularly.

Morris, who had managed to score 3 points in the first half, began flitting the middle of the loop with alarming regularity. Private George Deaton, who had not scored at all in the first half, scored 10 points in rapid succession. In three minutes the score was 27-23, and Deaton personally tied it up with two neat shots.

The whole situation turned at this point. The Logan team was still in the game, but the Soldiers could not be denied. It was Morriss, a barrel-chested demon with a pair of fireplug legs, who changed the whole complexion of the game. He was knocked off his feet in possession of the ball near the middle of the court. Without bothering to get up, he shot

SAKS PLAYS BROOKLAND TONIGHT

Unlimited Clash Is Feature in A. A. U. Tournament.

IT'S bargain night tonight at Tech High Gymnasium, as the big guns of the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament, under Post sponsorship, swing into action, beginning at 7 o'clock and winding up past 11 o'clock, all for the nominal sum of 25 cents.

Outstanding, in a night of outstanding attractions, is the first appearance in the tournament of the Saks Clothiers, one of the greatest independent teams ever developed in Washington. The Clothiers, out to avenge unaccountable setbacks suffered this year at the hands of teams it might have swamped last year, will meet the strong Brookland A. C. at 10 o'clock.

The Brookland Club is led by the clever Tom Evans, well known in local basket circles. Saks has a truly all-star aggregation—Bobby Lucas and Bernie Jones, forwards; Bill Noonan, center; John Sherman and Sammy Hooks, guards.

At 7 o'clock the St. John's Victors, in whose ranks are many of the boys who carried the Saints to undisputed championship of the prep schools of Washington, will meet the Arcadians, always a strong tournament contender.

Oakton High, with a splendid record of 24 wins out of 25 starts in their county, meets Christ Church at 8 o'clock, and the strong St. Martin's 145-pound team clashes with Fairlawn at 9 o'clock.

CLAIMS WORLD MARK.

Karachi, India, March 4 (U.P.).—Gulzar Ahmed, member of the Baluch Regiment, ran one mile today in the reported time of 4:08 4-10, to make an unofficial claim for the world's record. Ahmed is a prospective Olympic athlete.

Carl Fischer Holding Important Place In Manager Johnson's Pitching Plans

Speedy Southpaw Is Expected to Win Consistently.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

BILOXI, Miss., March 4.—The presence of Don Carlos Fischer, the southpaw sensation of the early weeks of the season last year, is an undeniable source of pleasure to Manager Walter Johnson and President Clark Griffith, who all but broke out into a joyful whistle this morning as Fischer unburdened himself of some speed in the Nats' batting practice at Biloxi field.

Fischer is destined to be an important figure in the early campaign of the Nats off his record of last year, when he started the season in whirlwind fashion, winning nine games and losing only one before he began to be rocked by the rough going in the West that engulfed the Nats' pennant hopes. He finished the season, however, with a respectable record of thirteen games won and nine lost in his first full season with the club.

Has Best Fast Ball of Any On Staff.

No less an authority than Johnson has gone on record with the statement that Fischer is possessed of the best fall ball among the pitching staff. It was as result of Johnson's personal observation of his work with Newark in 1928 when the Nats' pilot managed the Bears, that Fischer was bought by Washington for a reported price of $35,000.

"There is no reason why Fischer should not be able to pitch throughout the season the way he started off last year," said Johnson. "He is a big, strong boy and ought to be able to work just as hard in hot weather as in the spring. It wasn't overwork that cut him down last year, as ne may believe. I'm going to have him ready at the start of the season and he ought to be a consistent winner for us."

Fischer is of the belief that he is a greatly improved pitcher since he joined the club late in 1930. He has lengthened his stride under the direction of Johnson, who is making him take a full step in the direction of the box a la Grove and come down solidly on his left foot, heel first, instead of on his toe, thereby getting more power into his pitch and better control.

Spencer Has Helped Fischer Considerably.

Better catching has also served to steady him and teach him the value of conserving his strength, says Fischer. "Roy Spencer has done me a lot of good with Washington. He has cut down on my curves and is making me throw my fast one in there. Last year I was only throwing my hook when I wanted to toss a bad ball up there, something that I wanted to waste if I couldn't outguess the batter."

Fischer takes a place beside Fred Marberry, Lloyd Brown and Alvin Crowder as the big four of the Nats by virtue of his showing last season. He won his way into the hearts of Washington fans in his first outing in 1931 when he relieved Sam Jones against the Yankees with the bases

Sammy West Reports; Likely to Sign Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Biloxi, Miss., March 4.—Outfielder Sammy West was a late arrival at the Washington Club's headquarters here this afternoon.

As yet unsigned, West anticipates no difficulty in reaching salary terms with President Clark Griffith and his belief is substantiated by the fact that he brought his contract with him. He is expected to sign tomorrow.

West reports his throwing arm in excellent condition following an operation undergone in Chicago last fall to eliminate a growth. The outfielder has been working out daily at his home in Texas. He will join the team in training tomorrow.

Macfarland and Cox Due To Defend 4-Ball Title

MIAMI, Fla., March 4 (A.P.).—Holders of brilliant golfing reputations were paired today for Sunday's opening of the ninth annual $5,000 international four-ball matches, with Willie Macfarlane, New York, and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, leading the field as defending champions.

The defenders will meet Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y. and Johnny Watson, South Bend, Ind., in the first of the four days of the 36-hole matches.

Tommy Armour, Detroit, Mich., and Ed Dudley, Concordville, Pa., were seeded No. 2 teams by tournament officials and will play their first match with Dick Metz, San Angelo, Tex., and Archie Hambrick, Zanesville Ohio. Metz and Hambrick clinched their places on the entry lists with their low scores today in the finals of a 36-hole medal tournament to decide upon the sixteenth team in the matches.

Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Paul Runyan, New York, were seeded No. 3, and matched with Ralph Stonehouse, Indianapolis, and Walter Bourne, Princeton, N. J.

Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, former champions of the tournament, gained the number four seeded place to encounter Abe Espinosa, Chicago, and Ralph Kingsrud, Fargo, N. Dak.

Other pairings announced today are:

Venzke Must Repeat Fast Races to Win in Olympics

NEW YORK, March 4 (A.P.).—Track fans, who already are conceding Gene Venzke a triumph over the world's greatest 1,500 meters runners in the approaching Olympic games at Los Angeles, might find they have overlooked a very important factor, in the opinion of Daniel I. Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union.

"Not that I don't think Venzke can beat anybody in the world in one race," explained the country's foremost track authority, "but it takes more than one race to win an Olympic title. The 1,500 meters is run in three heats on three successive days, and the man who wins it has to be what we call a 'repeater.'

"We don't know what Venzke can do along that line. He has given some wonderful performances this winter, including that 4:10 mile, but his races have been well spaced, a week or so apart. His success in the Olympics depends entirely upon his ability to be in top form three straight days, and we won't know about that until this summer."

If Ferris has his doubts about Venzke's ability to do the same thing to the Olympic field he has done to this country's athletes so consistently this winter, he entertains no such qualms over the ultimate outcome of the games. He expects the United States track and field forces to win

TRAITOR JUST LASTS TO LAND TROPICAL PARK FEATURE

Carfano Colt Ridden Out At Finish

Mills Rides Traitor and Tantalizing to Victory.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 4 (A.P.).—Mrs. A. Carfano's colt, Traitor, and Apprentice Hank Mills formed a winning combination at Hialeah and shared the spotlight here today in the Jupiter City Claiming Purse, 7-furlong feature of a card dominated by claiming races. Well ridyed at $7.70 for $2, Traitor was ridden out to score by a length and a half over Fervid. Another length behind came Silver Lake to land in the picture. The time was 1:26 flat.

Joe Edwards' Polygamous, an unreliable gray son of Stefan the Great, drew the bulk of the play, but broke last and never could raise more than a respectable gallop. He ran away a mile after passing the finish line before being caught by Outrider Happy Gordon.

Traitor Draws Away To Lead.

Illice dashed to the fore at the break, but Traitor, in fine fettle, overtook the mare entering the back stretch and, under easy restraint, drew into a good lead. Inferno Lad had all his speed and tried to catch the leader, but quit after reaching the stretch and it was the slow-beginning Fervid which finally forced the main issue. With Alfred Robertson working hard, the filly closed valiantly, but Mills handrode Traitor with all his skill and held his rival safe to the wire. Silver Lake closed a world of ground after breaking with the trailers.

Jockey Mills again earned himself a double when he piloted Tantalizing, $3.40 favorite, first to the pagoda pole in the 1-mile contest, sixth on the program. Miss Chilia was second, a length and a half back and two spans in advance of Tiger Prince. Tantalizing took the lead from Chattahoochee entering the back stretch and stood off Miss Chilia's challenge in the drive to the judges. Tiger Prince never could threaten the leaders.

Bliss Five Noses Out All-Stars by 37 to 34

Bliss Electrical tossers were forced to travel an extra period in the Silver Spring Armory last night in order to defeat a picked team from the Washington Collegiate Conference. The teams were deadlocked at 32-all when the regulation period ended, and Bliss finally copped, 37-34.

HELIOS broke rapidly and cut across to inside, Robertson was working on him all the way and he hung on well under punishment. IPRAL raced on the outside of the winner from the break. DRY RIDGE was going the strongest of lot at end and gradually wearing the pacemakers down. He was taken to the outside in stretch run and would have won in a few more strides.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DEDICATE, $7.20, $7.10, $4.20; BOGAN, $11.90, $6.00; PRINCETON, $3.30.

DEDICATE, off forwardly, carried NONANA along at a rapid pace first three furlongs, shook latter off rounding far turn and opened up a commanding lead atop of home stretch. He was in hand at end. BOGAN gained steadily after working his passage up on the outside. He closed full of run. PRINCETON was probably short. He was a keen factor in early stages, but tired. NONANA broke a bit slow and was used up getting to the front.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:40½. Winner, C. A. Grande's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGHEST POINT, $10.60, $6.70, $3.90; NOAJOYCE, $6.10, $4.80; TUSKEGEE, $5.00.

HIGHEST POINT, outrun in early stages, worked his way up on outside, closed with a rush under a vigorous finish and was up in the last stride. NOAJOYCE, very fractious at post, was finally taken to the outside. He broke rapidly and, after drawing away first furlong, was taken in hand, hung on well until last dozen strides, where he tired badly. TUSKEGEE, a forward contender all the way, looks to be rounding to form. MISS AVONDALE saved ground rounding the far turn and entering home stretch. COMMON broke slowly and was shuffled back.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:11½. Winner, Mrs. A. Carfano's br. c. TRAITOR broke fast and drew away on back stretch. Mills had a snug hold on him until the final furlong, where he had to be hustled along at end to stall off PERVID'S rush. Latter gradually improved her position and responded gamely to punishment, was gradually wearing the winner down. SILVER LAKE finished with good courage. INFERNO LAD and ELLICE tired. POLYGAMOUS lacked speed in the race. He ran away a mile after the finish.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:39½. Off at 4:43½. Winner, B. B. Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR SAINT, $4.80, $3.70, $2.90; WANDERING GOLD, $13.60, $4.80; LAWYER, $5.70.

WAR SAINT, in trouble when the break came when WANDERING GOLD crossed him, was taken to the outside when he recovered and, circling his field, drew away entering home stretch. He was in hand at end. WANDERING GOLD dropped back early, but closed with a good burst of speed after going wide at top of home stretch. LAWYER tired after making a bold effort at top of home stretch. HIEOVER broke fast. DONNY JOHNNY made a lot of use of first half and quit when real issue came.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:09½. Off at 5:12½. Winner, O. A. Simpson's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TANTALIZING, $3.40, $2.50, $2.50; MISS CHILLA, $4.00, $5.10; TIGER PRINCE, $4.50.

TANTALIZING shook off CHATTAHOOCHEE when straightened out on back stretch and drew away into an easy lead. He was hustled along at end to stall off MISS CHILLA. Latter, fractious at the post, broke from the extreme outside. She made good a determined challenge at top of home stretch, but hung in final drive. TIGER PRINCE worked his way up on inside and saved ground entering home stretch. GOLD MINT could never get up.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:30. Off at 5:42. Winner, Ward and Burton's b. f. DARTER was last to leave the barrier after being placed on outside. She was rushed up very fast, reached leaders rounding out of back stretch and, finishing gamely, wore down and outlasted ULTRAMARINE. ULTRAMARINE overtook MONTGOMERY MAID early and hung on well when challenged. SINGLE KAY, outrun for five furlongs, closed steadily when fully in his stride. SANCROFT closed an immense gap and ran a fine race. STRATEGY weakened after racing well up. IRON CZAR lacked early speed.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Tropical Park Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

TROPICAL PARK, Miami, Fla., March 4.—Tropical Park furnishes its most attractive program for its half-holiday offering tomorrow afternoon, with the Key West Handicap at a mile the feature. MY DANDY, top weight is selected to win the handicap, having enough class to go beyond its distance. The Reichert Bros. have won many races with this veteran, and the last time he started he was third to Ululiu, close up.

CHATFORD turned in a good race a few days ago, being second to Jaz Age in 1:06, and is the probable contender. THAIS, C. V. Whitney filly, has shown a return to form and should get the show money.

FIRST RACE—ZEVAR is selected to win, throwing out the last effort and getting the line through the previous winning race over Love Offering and others. This son of Zev has enough speed to carry the field along easily. MAKE SPEED, which won his last start, should be the contender in that race. COMMON will hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE—SUN TEATIME is a standout. Third to The Heathen on Thursday, he should not miss on that race in the slow company tomorrow. LAPIDARY is the contender. TEACH ME should improve enough to be third, but has been running sluggishly.

THIRD RACE—LIGHT NUN appears to have the call, she having beaten Estin last out. TACK can do better than last time out and on best races is the one most difficult to beat. GENIAL HOST has a chance. He won his last race and is in top form.

FIFTH RACE—DOUBLE HEART is well placed. In his last race, he was third to Jaz Age in 1:06, beaten two heads for the front money. DOUBLE HEART has shown better form in the last few months than he ever displayed. PANCHO LOPEZ won from a fast field on his first Florida race recently, and is rated the contender. LITTLE AMERICA beat Gay Bird in her last start and should get third money in this.

SIXTH RACE—LOVE OFFERING has been placed in a field which she can trim. DON TASKER ran a good race against James River and should be the contender.

SEVENTH RACE—WRACK ROYAL turned in a splendid effort last Tuesday, finishing second to Chicsu, and should have little trouble beating the platers in the seventh race. VERMICULITE ran far below expectations the other day and probably will be the contender, with STELLANOVA getting in the third pocket.

COFEATURES ON BOLLING FIELD MAT

A SPECTACULAR military background will be furnished wrestling fans Monday night when the Bolling Field Athletic Association flashes its five-star wrestling show at Bolling Field Armory. Determined to make good in his initial venture as a sports promoter locally, Lieut. Cornelius W. Cousland is leaving nothing undone in his effort to produce a big league setting for the impending matches.

Soldiers in uniform are to patrol the grounds and also assist in the parking and ushering. Every courtesy will be shown motorists, who are assured of unlimited parking space gratis.

Being presented as a benefit for the fund of the Twenty-ninth Division of World War veterans, the presentation is expected to attract a distinguished audience. Many military and Government leaders have accepted invitations tendered them by Lieut. Cousland for this occasion.

While the card will be headlined by two bang-up bouts involving Karl Pojello and Rudy Laditzi and Billy Bartush and Tommy Texis, the appearance of such stars as Sam Cordovano, Jim Browning, Charley Strack, "Bull" Martin and Danny Winters in the supplementary spots also has attracted much attention.

Billy Jones, a wrestling authority out of the Southwest and a recognized official since the days of Frank Gotch, is to referee the main events, while Harry Child, athletic director of the Boys Club and former Washington Club pitcher, has been selected as his assistant. Ladies, accompanied by escorts will be admitted to general admission seats free of charge.

by the most decisive margin in history.

"Of course, there can be a lot of slips between now and August and we likely will lose some of the events in which we feel most secure, but even so there doesn't appear to be a country capable of beating us. Outside of the long-distance runs, the discus and the weight events, our team appears to have a distinct edge.

"With Frank Wykoff, Emmett Toppino and Eddie Tolan to draw from, we should sweep the sprints. I rather look for Tolan to win both the 100 and 200 meters. Toppino and Wykoff have it on him up to 100 yards, but he has a stronger finish than either of them.

"Ben Eastman and Vic Williams look like good bets to win the 400 and 800 meter events, and I've already explained about Venzke at 1,500 meters. Maybe we'll take all three of them. And there's no reason why we shouldn't repeat our 1928 victories in the 400 and 1,600 meter relays.

"George Spitz looks like a cinch in the high jump. He's in a class by himself. Percy Beard doesn't appear to have a serious rival in the hurdles, and our pole vaulters should make a sweep of that event. We have five or six of them that can go close to 14 feet. Leo Sexton and Herman Brix should do well in the shot put."

EASTERN HIGH WINS 2 GAMES

District Five In Tourney Semifinal

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 4.—Eastern High, of Washington, won twice today and, as a result, advanced to the semifinal round of the Washington and Lee interscholastic basket ball tournament. This morning the District scholastic champs trounced Lynchburg High, 38 to 16, while in tonight's game the John Marshall High, of Richmond, succumbed, 23 to 19.

Eastern had things pretty much its own way in the morning game. Lynchburg was off to an early start, leading 4 to 0, until Kane, Courtney, Waters and Lieb got under way. Eastern led 8-5 at the quarter, 17-10 at the half, 31-16 at the three-quarter mark and then held Lynchburg to a solitary toss over the balance of the route.

John Marshall put up quite a battle and the Eastern team was forced to travel at full speed to win by a narrow margin. Near the finish, the Richmond five pulled up to within two points of the Washingtonians, but could not quite overhaul them.

John Marshall Leads At Half.

John Marshall led 6-4 at the first quarter and 11-10 at the half. Baskets by Lieb, Waters and Kane gave Eastern a five-point margin at the third quarter. Rideout's field goal and Grossman's free toss narrowed the count to 19-17, but at this stage of the proceedings Eastern stepped out again.

Results of other games were:

Second round—Mount St. Joseph defeated Benedictine, 20-15; Spartanburg defeated Lexington High, 35-17; John Marshall defeated Durham, 22-13; McGuire's School, of Richmond, defeated Massanutten Military Academy, 28-16; Oak Ridge Military Academy defeated Greenbrier Military Academy, 27-25; Staunton Military Academy defeated Hargrave Military Academy, 22-18; Atlanta Tech defeated Danville, 33-23.

Quarter-final round—Eastern defeated John Marshall, 23 to 19.. Spartanburg, 21; Atlanta Tech, 15. Staunton Military, 29; Oak Ridge Military, 27. Mount St. Joseph, 19; Massanutten Military, 16.

Wash.-Lee High Beats Takoma-S. S., 36 to 27

Leading all the way, Washington and Lee High School chalked up a 36-to-27 victory over Takoma-Silver Spring, champion of Montgomery County, Md., in a well played game at Ballston yesterday. The Little Generals jumped into the lead at the outset of the fray and though Takoma made several gallant attempts it was never quite able to overtake them. The score at the half was 18 to 15.

RED SOX REORGANIZE.

The Washington Red Sox, champions of the Industrial League last season, will reorganize for the coming season at a meeting to be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. at 5611 Seventh street northwest. Bill Jenkins, who has piloted the team through its last seven campaigns, again will be at the helm this year.

Games are wanted with strong unlimited teams. Jenkins is arranging the schedule. He can be reached at 484 Fifteenth street northeast or by calling Lincoln 2613-W.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

Santa Catalina Island, Calif., March 4 (A.P.).—Rumors of the apparently well-founded type broke out again today that the Cubs were dickering for another star outfielder, possibly Paul Waner of the Pirates or Walter Berger of the Braves.

Manager Hornsby is satisfied that his pitching and infield is going to be satisfactory, but admittedly is very much in the market for a heavy-hitting outfielder.

San Antonio, Tex., March 4 (A.P.).—Frank Grube, White Sox catcher, was ordered to bed today, with what was believed to be an attack of influenza. He will not be permitted to practice for several days.

Two sessions of two hours each was today's training program, which saw Manager Lew Fonseca on a serious hunt for hitters.

Palo Alto, Calif., March 4 (A.P.).—War clouds may be lifting on the Shanghai front, but the Detroit Tiger squad has been divided into "Chinese" and "Japanese" teams for the first baseball battle of the spring training season tomorrow.

Manager Bucky Harris will captain the Chinese team, with Izzy Goldstein and Owen Collier pitching. Coach Jewel Ens will pilot the Japanese, with Phil Page and Buck Marrow on the mound. The hurlers all are recruits and the game will last five innings.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 4 (A.P.).—In a wild batting spree, the regulars of the Philadelphia Athletics today defeated the "B" team, 9 to 5, in six innings. Rommell, Deshong and Mahaffey pitched for the veterans, while Madjeti, Carter and Manor toiled in the box for the rookies.

Three lusty home runs featured the game, the first of the year coming off Mickey Cochrane's bat with two on base. Jimmy Fox pounded one with a man on base. Oscar Roettger, new first baseman, scored a homer for the "B" team when his apparent single bounded away from Bing Miller in right field.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 4 (A.P.). George Davis, the new outfielder from St. Paul, Minn., turned out for his first practice with the Philadelphia Nationals today, and, according to the veterans on the team, made a good impression.

Savannah, Ga., March 4 (A.P.).—Wiley Moore's "Mules" and Ed Durham's "Bulls" battled to a 3-3 tie here today in the Boston Red Sox's first prace game of the training season.

The contest went six innings and was featured by Al Van Camp's home run and the long and violent altercations over Umpire Hugh Duffy's decisions. When peace was restored, Manager "Shono" Collins told his players that he was certain they had rid themselves of all their bad baseball.

Before the burlesque started, Harry Burns, 19-year-old rookie pitcher from St. Mary's College, Kansas City, received a serious gash on his forehead when he ran into the concrete stands while chasing a foul.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4 (A.P.). The X-Ray revealed that Bruce Cunningham, Boston Braves' pitcher, has a broken bone in his right thumb, which will keep him idle for at least a week. The hurler received the injury yesterday when he was hit by a line drive.

Wee Willie Sherdel arrived in camp and Manager Bill McKechnie had all of his squad on hand for today's twin practice session. During the afternoon session, Fritz Knothe, new third sacker, and Art Shires were struck on the face fielding grounders that took unexpected hops. Neither was forced to retire.

Street said his men have been going at such a clip he is afraid they will be ready too soon.

"If we don't have some bad weather pretty soon," he said, "I will be forced to declare a few artificial holidays. The boys are too far along."

New Orleans, March 4 (A.P.).—The chatter in the Indians' training camp here tonight centered about how Frank Pytlak will look in the first practice game tomorrow.

Forty to 50 players are expected to be used in the exhibition game between the Tribe and the New Orleans Pelicans.

Paso Robles, Calif., March 4 (A.P.). The Pittsburgh Pirates played their first training camp ball game today, the regulars beating the yanigans, 7 to 4.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4 (U.P.). Babe Ruth's long hitting was the feature of the final routine work-out of the Yankees at Huggins Field today. Tomorrow, Manager McCarthy will send two picked nines against each other in a practice game, and intends to continue these games until the opening of the exhibition season.

Ruth batted from his new stance, choking his grip and shortening his stride. Apparently the big fellow has not sacrificed distance for accuracy, as his drives today were as long as his usual wallops.

Crosetti and Saltzgaver will make one second base combination tomorrow and Farrell and Lazzeri the other. Sewell and Lary are the rival third baseman. The teams will be captained by Gehrig and Ruth, and each will play first base.

Clifton Barbers Trim Phi Delta Zeta, 21-17

The 21-17 score by which the Clifton Barbers beat the Phi Delta Zeta team marked the greatest difference between the teams as they rushed through 40 minutes of rough and tumble basket ball. The count was 12 to 10 at the half, in favor of the eventual winners, and the lead alternated almost with the sinking over every shot in the second half.

W. Sinclair quickly tied the score 12-to-12 at the opening of the second half and his brother boosted the Fraters ahead on another good shot. Good offensive work by Keesey and Letvin gave the Barbers a 17-to-15 lead, but with the end of the game two minutes away, McIntosh, inserted into the game a second before, tied up the score with a beautiful long shot.

Keesey put the game on ice with a first rate two-handed shot from inside the zone line with the end in sight. Just before the gun sounded Letvin scored, a snowbird. It was a close shave for the Clifton Barbers.

Powhatans in Victory Over Swann's, 20 to 18

The mechanical team play of the Powhatans enabled that team to gain a 20-to-18 decision over Swann's Service, a group of players with a natural bent for the game, but a disorganized attack. The former assumed the lead at the outset of the fray and was never headed, although a spirited Swann rally in the waning moments of the game almost knotted the score.

The Powhatans enjoyed a 17-to-7 advantage when the Servicemen abandoned a rather weak attempt to penetrate their opponents' defense with their ragged team play. Ted Scafide, a nerveless little fellow with a dead eye for the basket, brought his team to within 2 points of the eventual winners with a series of long but accurate shots. Scafide's mates passed to him every time they laid their hands on the ball and he completed its journey to the basket.

St. John's Five Again Beats Gonzaga, 27-13

Running amuck in the second half, St. John's concluded its season in a blaze of glory by gaining its second victory of the season over its traditional foe, Gonzaga, winning by a score of 27-13 before a large crowd in the Vermont avenue gym last night.

The Cadets jumped into the lead in the first quarter and were never threatened. Gonzaga made a game stand, but was completely outplayed by the Johnnies. "Gabby" Hartnett and Capt. Mike Scanlon were the outstanding players in the winning attack. Hartnett accounted for 7 points and Scanlon 8.

Carr and Lao started the Purple off on a promising rally in the final period, but St. John's checked the movement before it had fairly started.

Temple U. Boxers Meet C. U. Tonight

Two undefeated leather-pushers will appear in the Temple University line-up when the Cherry and White boxing team invades Brookland tonight for a tussle with Catholic University's ring team. It will be the final match of the season for the locals. Pete D'Alessandro, veteran 118-pounder, and Capt. Irving Kutcher, who fights in the 155-pound class, are the two Temple men who have not tasted defeat.

Catholic has scored over Temple in the last three matches between the two teams, but with only one veteran, Danny Pyne, on the team this year, the Brooklanders can hardly hope for victory tonight. Injuries, sickness and scholastic difficulties have not lightened Coach Eddie La Fond's task of selecting a group of men to don the gloves for tonight's match. Jack Bruton, a willing but inexperienced fighter, may substitute for Miro in the 155-pound class. Miro has an injured nose. Generasso, another substitute, may fight in the 125-pound class. The ramainder of the team will be chosen from Pyne, Frank Stines, Capt. DiGiacomo, Thibodeau, Johnny Stapleton and Tom Gearty.

VILLAGERS TO MEET.

Ciro's Italian Village baseball team will hold its first meeting of the season Tuesday night at the home of Manager Burruto. Bertolino, Faina, the Di Nenna brothers, Baker, L. Scagnelli, Fitzgerald, J. Scagnelli, Licarione, Mahaney, Fox, Wilner, Jenkins and Barry are requested to report.

THE Greater Washington handicap tournament for women holds the spotlight in the bowling world today. Despite the fact that approximately fifteen of the leading women bowlers of the city will not be in line when the first block is started today, the event promises to be one of the most successful ever held.

John Blick, recognizing the need to get every woman bowler of note in the tournament in order to insure its success, has ruled that those unable to roll today because of previous engagements will be permitted to dispose of their first five games some time next week. Five games will be rolled at Convention Hall today, five at Arcadia next week and the final five at Columbia the week following. Each contestant will be allowed a handicap two-thirds of the difference between her own average and 110. The entrance fee of $7.25 also includes the cost of games.

Honors were well distributed in the Bureau of Engraving League. Strothers won the individual game honors with 126, Powell took the set award with 329. Numbering's 544 effort won the team game laurels and Section 9 scampered off with the high set of the evening, 1,550.

Patents No. 2 stretched its winning streak in the Department of Commerce League to fifteen games by taking all three from Mines with a record set of 1,794, at Rendezvous last night. Kaschub established a new all-time record for the loop with a game of 172, which included a triple-header strike and will cost Fred Pelzman another overcoat. Patrick's 394 set was high.

Dick Lee's 142 game and a three-game total of 370, compiled by E. J. Harney, topped the Building Contractor's League at Arcadia. John P. Evans' 1,682 set and D. C. Butcher's 600 game were high among the teams.

Sam Smith's pin-spilling was the highlight of the Interstate Commerce Commission loop at Arcadia. He mauled the maples for a game of 138 and set of 360, all of which helped the Attorneys in winning the team prizes with their game of 569 and set of 1,614.

A 141 game and 351 set, the work of one Mr. Mason, was by far the outstanding event of the Odd Fellows League at Convention Hall. Amity No. 1 cashed in on its game of 523 and set of 1,500.

Jones' 143 game and 360 set were prize-worthy in the Washington Gaslight loop at Convention Hall. Fitting Department's 553 game and Accounting's 1,550 set were high among the teams.

Coach Brunner will enter two relay teams and three medley relay teams, in addition to contestants in the breast-stroke and back-stroke races. The team will leave from Central at 11 a. m.

Columbus U. Ring Team Ends Season

Meets Brooklyn College at Strand Tonight in 1932 Finale.

Although the Columbus University boxing team, which is slated to meet Brooklyn College, of New York, in the season's finale tonight at 8 o'clock at the Strand Theater, shapes up as a far superior team on paper, Coach Dick O'Connell is taking nothing for granted and will send his men into battle fully prepared for a grueling struggle.

Columbus will bring to a close one of the most successful boxing seasons it has ever enjoyed with tonight's match. Its only defeat was suffered in the opening match of the season against City College, of New York. Since then the scarlet mittmen have beaten Washington and Jefferson, Springfield and North Carolina. O'Connell plans to use the following men tonight: Ed Marmel, 118 pounds; Mike Tardugno, 128 pounds; Jerry Russo, 135 pounds; Leo Covaleskie, 145 pounds; Mickey O'Connor, 165 pounds; Gus Mirman, 175 pounds; Ray Burke, heavyweight.

Brooklyn will present an all-Jewish lineup. Maurice Kreitner, 118 pounds; Maurice Goldberg, 125 pounds; Nat Bauer, 135 pounds; Sol Kaplowitz, 145 pounds; Joe Pelfiat, 165 pounds; Sam Pressburg, 175 pounds, and Eddie Schwartz, heavyweight, are scheduled to fight for the New Yorkers.

Sunday Practice For Del Ray Nine

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., March 4.—Officers for the Del Ray Athletic Club Baseball Team were chosen today at an important meeting held at the home of Edward Von Deck. Bill Johnson and Jeff Williams, two old heads at the national pastime, were appointed as coaches of the Red Birds. They immediately called the first drill for Sunday afternoon on Edward Duncan Field at 2:30 o'clock, providing weather permits.

Guy Camden was named secretary of the team, and Edward Von Deck elected as treasurer. These two boys have been actively affiliated with the Del Ray Club for several seasons.

More than fifteen members of the team attended the session. It was announced that the team would probably enter in the unlimited division of the Capital City loop. It hopes to play a higher class of baseball this season than in 1931.

MAN'S THROAT CUT IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Rockville Man Is in Serious Condition; Two Others Are Hurt in Mishaps.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, on the slippery roads of nearby Montgomery County, Md., yesterday. The most seriously hurt was William O. Johnson, of Rockville, Md., whose throat was cut almost from ear to ear by windshield glass when the car owned by him and driven by Norman Bussmon, of Rockville, skidded on the slippery surface of the Rockville pike about 2 miles south of Rockville and crashed into a telephone pole.

The car was badly damaged and the telephone pole was snapped off at the base. The pole did not disrupt telephone service, however, as the lines had been cut off and were being taken down since erection of the overhead cable by the telephone company. The men were taken to the office of Dr. Benjamin C. Perry at Bethesda for treatment and Johnson then was removed to Georgetown Hospital by Sergt. Leroy Rodgers and Policeman Roy E. Davis, of the Bethesda substation, Montgomery County police. Johnson was pronounced critically injured.

Garner Duvall, son of Montgomery County Commissioner Sherwood Duvall, of near Damascus, Md., was slightly injured when he lost control of his car on the Frederick pike about 2 miles south of Gaithersburg and the car piled up in a 5-foot ditch and collided with a sunken culvert. He was treated for injuries to the hand by Dr. George E. Lewis, of Rockville, Md.

Charles J. Clark, 504 Elm avenue, Takoma Park, Md., was treated for shock by Dr. H. H. Howlett, of Silver Spring, Md., after his car ran off the road at the culvert on Georgia avenue under the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks and up the steep bank alongside the tracks. He was arrested and charged with reckless driving by Corporal George Windham, of the Silver Spring substation, Montgomery County police.

Manassas Man Charged With Drunken Driving

In the automobile of Representative Goodwin at the time of the accident were his daughter, Miss Marjorie Goodwin, and a friend, Arthur Buffington. Larkin was arrested by Private C. C. Brown, of the Eighth Precinct. He later posted $500 bond.

DATE FOR MEETING OF FIREMEN IS SET

Virginia Association Session to Start in Alexandria on August 10.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The annual convention of the Virginia State Firemen's Association will be held in Alexandria August 10, 11 and 12, the executive committee of the Alexandria Fire Department has decided. The decision as to the place for the convention was reached at the last convention, but the time was left to the entertaining department. It is estimated that the last day of the convention will draw at least 5,000 firemen.

The committee decided to extend a formal invitation to the Cumberland Valley Firemen's Association to hold its annual gathering in Alexandria at the same time. The executive committee of that association will meet next week at Carlisle, Pa., to consider this invitation. The membership of this association includes fire companies in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The annual parade of the firefighters will be held August 12, and companies from Virginia, the District of Columbia, Maryland, West Virginia, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and the lower part of New York State will attend.

Prizes valued at approximately $2,000 will be awarded by the association to competing companies.

Representative Howard W. Smith presented to the members of the Alexandria city council and a number of local attorneys representing clients who own property along the river front, a tentative draft of a bill he proposes to introduce in Congress. The purpose of the bill is to determine the true boundary of the Potomac River on the Virginia side from Jones' Point northward.

After discussion the matter was left in the hands of Representative Smith. One of the main points of the matter is to clear title to all property on the river front, and in case the owners desire to dispose of their holdings, confirmation of title to their land will be assured.

The George Washington Birthday Association banquet committee has selected March 22 as the tentative date for the subscription banquet to be given in the George Mason Hotel, in honor of Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, U. S. A., who was grand marshal of the parade held in Alexandria on February 22. Gen. Malone has stated that date will be acceptable to him. Reservations will be handled by J. William May.

THE PART-PAYMENT CRUISE.

The globe I am going to span;
A tourist I'll be, proud and happy,
At sea on the time-payment plan!

The lure of far places enthralls me—
The glories of Asia I seek;
The Orient beckons and calls me—
A third down and so much a week!

There's Bagdad so full of romances—
We'll see it and Amritsar, too;
Don't bore me with talk of finances—
The time-payment bank sees me through!

To Sofia, Athens and Rome I
Would hasten with spirits quite stirred;
Just watch me afar from my home fly
With baggage marked "Payment Deferred."

I want to see Bangkok and Peking—
I long for the East Indies (Dutch);
Through Egypt I crave to go sheiking—
The down payment isn't so much!

My pep I will soon be retrieving—
A year of sweet travel, oh, man.
A few dollars down when I'm leaving—
The rest when I feel that I can.

Oh, speed me to Constantinople
And show me the sights of the town;
I've got fifty cents which I hope'll
Suffice for the first payment down!

No more a mere travel-mad dreamer—
A time-payment tourist am I!

During 1921 the company retired bonds of par value of $264,000. In addition, there was deposited with sinking fund trustees cash sufficient to retire $736,000 par value of bonds, which were retired as of January 1, 1932. Out of an original bond issue of $7,000,000, all but $1,988,000, par value of the bonds have been retired. The company has no bank loans or preferred stock outstanding.

In 1931 the corporation added to surplus $3,334,623, after payment of cash dividends at the rate of $6 per share, totaling $4,016,526, in addition to which a 5 per cent stock dividend was declared in November, 1931.

In addition to the regular quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents per share, the board of directors of Incorporated Investors has declared a stock dividend of 2½ per cent. Both these dividends are payable April 15 to stockholders as of record March 22.

GERMAN BANK PAYS $10,000,000 ON LOAN

New York Federal Reserve Receives 10 Per Cent on $100,000,000 Credit.

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—The German Reichsbank today deposited $10,000,000 with the New York Federal Reserve Bank as a 10 per cent repayment on the $100,000,000 Central banking credit granted last June.

The remainder of the loan, $90,000,000 has been renewed for a period of three months by the four participants, who share equally in the extension—the Federal Reserve Bank, the Bank of England, the Bank of France and the Bank for International Settlements.

The $10,000,000 deposit with the Federal Reserve is for the account of the Bank for International Settlements, which is crediting one-fourth, or $2,500,000, to the other three participants in the loan. The amount of the extension of each bank is thus reduced to $22,500,000.

This loan was granted late last June to tide the German Central Bank over the midyear settlement period, at a time when the German financial crisis was in an acute stage.

It has matured several times, and each time has been extended for a short period, no repayment having been made until today.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

STOCKS resumed the firm upswing early, but sold off fractionally on announcement of a dividend cut by General Electric. Foreign news was all good, and there was no bear pressure on the list.

BONDS continued firm, with U. S. Governments leading on gossip that the Treasury's March financing, to be announced next week, would be bullish. Sterling exchange registered a new high for 1932.

FRANC YIELDS LEAD ON MONEY MARKET

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—The French franc, for the past six months the pampered pet of the foreign exchange markets, suddenly has become something of a stepchild.

Both the British pound sterling and the American gold dollar have recently elbowed the franc aside, foreign exchange dealers explain. Quotations for both currencies have advanced substantially, in terms of francs.

The pulling of French balances out of London was a factor in toppling the pound sterling off its gold base last autumn, and French withdrawals from New York subsequently were accompanied by a heavy gold movement and sharp pressure against the dollar.

In the past few days, however, there has been a return flow of French money into sterling and dollar balances, but international bankers in Wall street say that neither London nor New York is anxious to have French balances built up once more to a point where sudden withdrawals later on could again be disturbing.

The pound sterling has been strengthened by the feat of Great Britain in emerging from a state of near-bankruptcy a few months ago, to a position in which it could pay off some $400,000,000 in foreign loans in more than a month. The $250,000,000 credit extended jointly by the Federal Reserve and the Bank of France last August has been repaid, and three-fourth of the $200,000,000 credit from the Morgan banking group is currently being repaid.

The dollar, according to Wall street bankers, has been strengthened by the Glass-Steagall act liberalizing the Federal Reserve system and sharply increasing the amount of gold available to settle foreign exchange transactions, if needed.

The French franc reacted ¼ point to 3.93 9-16 cents today. At that figure it is no longer profitable to ship gold to Paris in settlement of foreign exchange transactions. The gold point is 3.94½ cents.

The franc's high point for the year was 3.94¾ cents reached on February 13.

Recovery Begins In Retail Trade

Reports in 55 Cities Show That Business Holds Steady Level.

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—Improvement in sentiment outruns actual betterment in trade and business conditions, the weekly mercantile reviews said today. Nevertheless, the slight gains noted over the past two or three weeks have been well minimized. General retail trade is showing up relatively better than wholesale business.

Broadstreet's says: "Reports from 55 leading cities show that business in general throughout the country maintained about the same pace as a week ago. Wholesalers are now receiving small orders of a hand-to-mouth variety, but that is the extent of their activity, although the light manufacturing lines in some cases are not doing badly. Caution continues to hold up the heavy industries, which remain undeniably slow."

Dun's Review commented as follows: "Milder weather this week has proved beneficial to many branches of trade, with some retailers reporting the best merchandising volume since December. Favorable reports continue to outnumber the unfavorable ones, and a further increase in distribution and consumption is expected as the practice of hoarding diminishes."

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—Although again outpaced by the sprightly bond market, stocks kept within striking distance of their 1932 high today, closing with an even distribution of small gains and losses.

Reduction of General Electric's quarterly dividend to 25 cents from 40 cents brought on a midafternoon reaction from the morning highs, but the market rallied again toward the finish. The day's volume diminished to 1,524,422 shares.

Growing interest in the bond market resulted in a number of new highs for 1932, and many diplays of a firm undertone. The United States Government group, more or less inactive for the past few days, came back into popularity and most of the Liberties and Treasuries advanced substantially.

The rail section, which led the upturn yesterday, was subject to some profit taking today, but most price changes followed a narrow range.

There was a somewhat indecisive trend in the utilities and industrials, but a number of these bonds were in demand.

The foreign department was moderately active and firm. Brazil 6½s gained nearly 3 points. British 5½s again passed 100 and Japanese loans were higher. German government 5½s and 7s advanced fractionally.

Indecisive price changes were the rule on the curb market. Some stocks succeeded in working moderately higher while others were in supply, giving the list an irregular appearance. Trading was quiet.

Commonwealth Edison suffered another relapse, sagging to a new low. Insull Utility Investments also eased, but Middle West was steady. Electric Bond & Share turned over briskly, making a narrow advance.

On the stock exchange, more active dealings in an assortment of low-priced issues at rising quotations gave weight to the view that trading was chiefly professional. Commission house sentiment leaned rather definitely in the direction of optimism, and brokers pressed distinct encouragement over the strength of bonds, the argument being that a good investment market must precede a durable rise in junior securities.

U. S. Steel spent the day in close quarters and finished half a point off. Westinghouse, American Tobacco "B," Gillette, American Can, Du Pont and General Motors shaded lower, but Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, North American, Allied Chemical, Canadian Pacific, General Foods and New York Central finished steady to firm.

GENERAL ELECTRIC REDUCES DIVIDEND

Common Stock Quarterly Return Cut to 25 Cents, Making $1 Basis.

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—Directors of General Electric Co. today reduced the quarterly dividend on the common stock to 25 cents from 40 cents, thus putting the shares on an annual basis of $1 against $1.60.

Wall street had rather expected a cut in view of General Electric's smaller earnings, but it was realized that the company's strong cash position was a factor to be considered and that the directors might decide to retain the 40-cent payment.

The $1.60 annual rate was established in the second quarter of 1930 following the four-for-one split of the common shares earlier that year. In 1927 the rate was raised from the $3 basis fixed after the four-to-one split-up in 1926. Previously the stock had paid $8 annually since 1902.

A statement said the preliminary report showed 1931 earnings were equal to $1.23 a share on the common stock, compared with $1.90 in 1930.

Cash and marketable securities on December 31 totaled $122,178,923 compared with $141,717,851 at the end of 1930. Current assets were $219,086,510, against current liabilities of $28,582,788. Approximately $43,000,000 was written off the holding value of securities of subsidiary companies.

Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share on the special stock. Both dividends are payable April 25 to stock of record March 18.

The General Electric issues sold off sharply on the dividend announcement, but strong support developed on the dip and the late trade brought a partial recovery.

For the market as a whole, however, the reduction was the day's most depressing news.

New Low Price Record Set by Sugar Futures

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—New low records for the season were established in the sugar futures market today under heavy general selling, which seemed to be promoted by increased spot offerings. These were accompanied by conflicting reports from Cuba relative to the crop restriction plan, and uncertainty as to the future policy of the sugar control committee was increased by the circulation of unconfirmed rumors that Chairman Chadbourne had resigned.

May sold off to .86 cent per pound and December to 1.05 or 4 to 5 points below the previous close.

CANADA'S RAILWAY BONDS GO HIGHER

Dominion Carriers Benefit on Reports of Road Merger Plans.

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—Canadian railroad bonds, which rallied sharply on Thursday, worked higher again today.

Aside from the recent strength of most railroad bonds in this market, reflecting cessation of bank selling, interest in Dominion carriers has been increased by reports that the railroad commission would recommend consolidation of Canadian National and Canadian Pacific, with the provision that the government guarantee some of the latter's bonds.

Canadian Pacific perpetual 4s reached a new high for the year, up about $20 per $1,000 obligation. The same road's 5s of 1954 were also strong. Advances in Canadian National issues put several of those loans to new 1932 tops.

Rumors of a projected consolidation of the two great Canadian systems have been heard in the street for several days, but they did not influence prices in the rail list until today.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—The announcement of C. O. Miniger, president of the Electric Auto-Lite Co., of plans to increase its operations this month over the February rate, is interpreted in Wall street as partial confirmation of earlier reports that the company would receive a good share of Ford orders for starting and ignition equipment.

Arrangements were completed today for the sale of a New York Metal Exchange membership at $1,000, unchanged from the previous transaction.

The Schulte Retail Stores Corporation has postponed action on the $2 quarterly dividend on the 8 per cent preferred stock, due at this time, until a special meeting scheduled for June 2.

Mead Johnson Co. declared an extra dividend of 25 cents, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 75 cents, on the common stock payable April 1 to stock of record March 15. A similar extra was paid three months ago.

Coca Cola Co. today reported record earnings for last year. Net profit was $14,023,622, equal after dividends on the class "A" stock to $11.82 a share on the common. Compared with $13,515,535, or $11.15 a common share in 1930. Last year was the eighth successive year in which net profit has increased.

More activity in the Youngstown Steel district is promised as a result of plans for early resumption at ten idle mills of the Shenango plant of American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. They are expected to start up early next week.

Packard Motor Car Co., shipped 2,150 cars in February, an increase of 270 over February, 1931. The schedule for March is said to be the same as February.

Construction contracts in the 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains for the first three weeks of February amounted to $70,564,900, the F. W. Dodge Corporation reports. Figures for this 17-day period compare with $84,798,400 in construction contracts for the 25 busines days comprising January.

Sales of the F. W. Woolworth Co. for February totaled $18,793,418, compared with $19,385,731 in the same month last year, a decrease of 3 per cent. Sales for the two months of the year were 4.7 per cent below the corresponding period of 1931.

New bond offerings in this district in the past week totaled $40,506,000 compared with $5,872,000 in the preceding week and $157,690,044 in the same week last year.

COTTON PRICES GAIN IN STEADY MARKET

Southern Selling Features Dealing; Trade Demand Continues Favorable.

New York, March 4 (A.P.).—While somewhat irregular, the cotton market showed a generally steady tone today, with Southern selling and realizing or liquidation absorbed by covering and a continued demand from the trade.

After selling up to 7.10 early, May reacted to 7.05, but firmed up again late in the day on a renewal of trade buying, selling at 7.11 and closing at 7.10. The general market closed steady at net gains of 2 to 7 points. After holding fairly steady earlier, the Liverpool market eased off just before the local opening, and initial prices here reflected a narrowing of the difference between the two markets. This seemed to attract some selling here against purchases in the English market.

Houses with continental connections were buyers here during the day. The decline in the Liverpool market was attributed partly to the firmer tone of sterling. Private cable advices said there had been hedging and liquidation in the Liverpool market, but reported freer buying of cotton cloth by India and China.

Reports of rains in the Central and Eastern belt appeared to be without much effect on the market and there were conflicting opinions as to the Southern spot situation, with rumors of a slightly easier basis in some sections followed by later reports of steadiness, particularly on ⅜-inch cotton.

A report issued by one of the local cotton houses pointed to a reduction of 10 per cent in acreage and a decrease of about 37 per cent in the use of fertilizer.

MARKET ON WHEAT REMAINS UNCHANGED

Rye Prices Advance, Giving Trading Firmer Tone; Corn Is Stronger.

Chicago, March 4 (A.P.).—Drawn upward at times by a good advance in the rye market, wheat averaged higher today, but closed about unchanged. Wheat values were also responsive to improvement of the New York Stock Market and to Kansas reports of a sudden 60-degree fall of temperatures to around zero.

Broader export demand for rye was apparent, with Germany said to be in the market, and Russia's available stocks about exhausted.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼ off to ⅛ up compared with yesterday's finish, corn at ⅛ decline to ¼ advance, and oats unchanged to ⅛ to ¼ off. Traders were dubious whether to regard as bullish the taking of 40,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat for relief purposes. Some trade authorities contended that the immediate effect would be bearish because the wheat would come in competition with grain in regular market channels.

Some incentive for the selling side of the wheat market was found in confirmation of big shipments this week from Southern Hemisphere countries. It was pointed out that exports by Argentina and Australia were much larger than at this time last year.

Advices of snow and rain in some dry sections of the United States winter wheat belt were also more or less of an offset to suggestions of crop damage by low temperatures.

Corn and oats were strengthened by prospects of rough weather likely to increase feeding and to hinder the movement of corn.

MINORITY'S REPORT WOULD SEAT JONAS

Senate Told U. S. Appointee Shown to Have Abundant Qualification.

(Associated Press.)

A minority report from the judiciary committee recommending confirmation of Charles A. Jonas as United States attorney for the western district of North Carolina, was presented to the Senate yesterday by Senator Schall (Republican), Minnesota).

The minority report said the group favored his confirmation because of "abundant and reliable evidence" to show he was qualified for the place which he has been holding about a year under a recess appointment.

The committee voted, 10 to 7, Monday against recommending that he be confirmed.

The minority report quoted letters from Judge E. Y. Webb, of the western district of North Carolina; J. D. De Ramus, of Charlotte, N. C., and Assistant Attorney General Sisson indorsing Jonas.

The report said "the alleged severe and unjustified criticism of the committee on investigation of contributions and expenses of senatorial candidates and the imputation to it of dishonorable motives is, however, a matter for the consideration of the Senate."

Fairfax Postmaster Is Chosen by Hoover

(Associated Press.)

HOWELL HOME RAID BILL IS SAVED FROM DEFEAT BY SPONSOR

Senator Agrees Not to Speak for Passage if Measure Goes to Calendar.

COMMITTEE MAY VOTE TO GRANT HIS REQUEST

Two Officials Opposed to Legislation; Glassford Urges Enactment.

Committee defeat of the Howell "home raid" bill was averted yesterday when its author, Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, announced he would not press for a favorable vote if his measure is placed on the Senate calendar.

Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, said he thought his request would be met. A motion to enter the bill on the Senate calendar "without recommendation" will be placed before the committee at a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Six members were present at yesterday's meeting, four of them opposed to the bill. Eight were required for a quorum.

Howell's Request Favored.

Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, moved that the chairman take the vote of members present, and afterward poll the rest of the committee. He withdrew his motion after Senator Howell made his offer.

"I don't ask for a favorable report, gentlemen," he said. "I merely ask that it be placed on the calendar."

Most wet members of the committee are not opposed to granting his request. For one, Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, who fought the measure in the committee and the Senate last year, said he would not object to reporting the bill without recommendation.

Senator Capper read letters from Superintendent of Police Pelham D. Glassford and Assistant Attorney General G. A. Youngquist, expressing views on the Howell measure. A memorandum to the District Commissioners from Corporation Counsel Bride, opposing the bill, was not read by the chairman.

Sees Aid to Enforcement.

"Enactment of this bill into law will assist materially in the enforcement of the prohibition laws of the District of Columbia, but would be more effective were the penalties increased," Brig. Gen. Glassford wrote.

He told the committee there are 401 places where it is known or suspected that liquor is sold.

"These known and suspected establishments can not be raided unless a police officer or informer is able to enter and actually make a purchase," he said. "It is very difficult for any one who is not a regular and known patron of these establishments to make a purchase."

He said there are 38 policemen who now have prohibition authority, using two old automobiles "considered dangerous for use at high speed."

Number of Officers Limited.

"Crime conditions in this city, other than violations of the prohibition law, do not warrant at this time an assignment of a larger number of police officers on prohibition enforcement activities," he wrote.

Mr. Youngquist's letter reiterated objections he has previously made to search and seizure and confiscation after seizure, provisions in the bill. He suggested minor amendments.

Mr. Howell, who attended the meeting, explained that the Senate last year "modified" the first provision, but did not reach the second item to which the Attorney General objected.

Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, said that the Volstead act is broad enough to cover enforcement in the District, as it does in a number of the States.

Glenn Opposes Report.

Senator Otis F. Glenn (Republican), Illinois, took exception to Senator Howell's view that the Sheppard act was repealed when the Volstead act was enacted. In leaving the committee room, he told Senator Capper he was opposed to reporting the bill, even without recommendations.

Favorable action was taken on Senator Capper's bill to regulate sale and possession of firearms in the District, amended so as to exempt purchasers from fingerprinting, and leaving tear gas and tear gas "billies" out of the list of contraband weapons. A favorable report also was ordered on an amended bill empowering District Commissioners to require insurance companies incorporated under laws of the District to keep their records here.

Senator Blaine told the committee he will report next week on five bills now before his banking and insurance subcommittee. They would regulate foreclosure of mortgages, release of deeds of trust, real estate licensing, sale of securities and District banks.

Police Suspension Changed to Fine

Vivian Landrum, Convicted of Beating Man, Is Assessed $100.

Vivian H. Landrum, suspended policeman atatched to the old Ninth Precinct, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 yesterday by Justice James M. Proctor, following his conviction several months ago of a simple assault.

Justice Proctor had first announced that he would place Landrum on a two-year suspended sentence, but when he was informed by defense attorney, E. Russell Kelly, that such a sentence would make an appeal impossible, and that an appeal was desired by Landrum, The sentence was changed to the fine.

Landrum was convicted of having assaulted Henry Johnson, colored, when Johnson resented his presence in the Johnson home and ordered him to leave. John Sirois, another policeman, was with Landrum, and he was tried with him. The jurors found that Sirois was not guilty, and he was restored to duty.

HISTORICAL PORTRAIT UNVEILED

The famous Lansdowne portrait of George Washington was unveiled yesterday afternoon by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, at a brief ceremony at the Corcoran Art Gallery. The portrait has been loaned for the period of the Historical Loan Exhibition, sponsored by the U. S. Bicentennial Commission. A preview of the exhibition will be held tonight for diplomats and high ranking Government officials. Tomorrow and until Thanksgiving Day, the exhibition will be open to the public. At the ceremony yesterday were, from left to right—C. Powell Minnigerode, Col. George B. McClellan, Representative Sol Bloom and Sir Ronald Lindsay.

PRIORITY OF DRY ACT DENOUNCED BY BRIDE

Counsel Says Howell Bill Would Put Rum Probes Ahead of Murders.

The District Commissioners should not be charged with investigating personally violations of the prohibition act in Washington and neither should members of the Metropolitan Police Department be required to enforce the dry law before all other laws, in the opinion of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride.

In a lengthy review of the Howell bill to supplement the prohibition act in the District, Corporation Counsel Bride late yesterday proposed several amendments to the measure and approved other sections. Copies of his recommendations were submitted to the Senate District committee and to the District Commissioners.

Elimination of Section 6 of the bill was urged on the grounds that a literal interpretation would make the Commissioners virtual dry snoopers and that overemphasis on dry enforcement in instructions to police would "have the effect of making the duty of enforcing such laws paramount to the enforcement of all other laws."

Severe Instance Cited.

As a "severe instance" he suggests that a policeman, to escape penalties, might be induced to "investigate the violation of the liquar law before investigating a murder or apprehending the murderer."

Mr. Bride also objects to the provision in section 7 which would require the district attorney "to prosecute all (liquor) cases reported to him whether meritorious or not." He suggests submitting this section to the Attorney General.

The provision in section 10 authorizing Police Court judges to issue search warrants in prohibition cases is objected to on the ground that no difficulties are now experienced in obtaining such warrants from the United States commissioner and the District Supreme Court and that the Police Court dockets are already overcrowded.

Provision on Warrants.

Objection was also voiced to the provision that search warrants be issued to any policeman.

"I do not believe it advisable to extend the power to serve such warrants to all police officers," Mr. Bride said, "for the execution of this process requires ability, experience and training not possessed by all members of the police force."

Approval is given to all provisions of section 14, which provide penalties for the furnishing of liquor to a minor, save in the penalty invoked "where no element of sale is involved." This is "too drastic," Mr. Bride asserts.

The Commissioners so far have taken no action on the corporation counsel's recommendations.

Sign Law Offender Pleads Guilty.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday took the personal bond of W. T. Carrico, of the General Outdoor Advertising Agency, for having painted a large outdoor sign on Conduit road without first having obtained a permit from the District. Mr. Carrico entered a plea of guilty to violating the sign law.

GLASSFORD TO WAR ON INFLUX OF RUM

The major source of liquor supplies for the District is outside of the city. Brig. Gen. Glassford, superintendent of police, believes and he indicated yesterday that the police offensive against infractions of the dry law will be to guard the borders of the city against the bringing in of contraband fluid.

"The principal problem in the enforcement of the prohibition law in the District of Columbia," said Glassford, "is arresting the transportation of intoxicating liquor. This is because most of the intoxicants consumed in the District are transported to this jurisdiction."

The police head said statistics show that the manufacture of intoxicants in stills and by other methods seems to have decreased considerably of late years. He cited statistics showing a sharp decrease in the seizure and demolition of stills.

Confers With Blandford.

It is believed the staple illicit beverages—gin and rye—are made with alcohol spirited into the city. Ingredients, the sale of which is not illegal, are blended with the basic "alky" to form the particular synthetic type of drink desired. Many other types of bottled goods familiar in prewar days are thus simulated.

The alcohol is believed to be brought in from other cities where it is believed to have been obtained either by illegal diversion or by "recooking" processes. There is some liquor actually distilled in nearby provinces and smuggled in also, it is understood.

Gen. Glassford yesterday conferred with W. R. Blandford, prohibition director for this area. The police chief's recently expressed desire for the use of automobiles confiscated in liquor cases formed the main trend of the conversation.

Classification of Cars.

Blandford told Glassford that seized automobiles fall into two categories:

(a) Those seized for illegal transportation of liquor, but during the seizure of which no arrest is made, the occupants escaping. Under existing statutes, these machines must be sold at public auction.

(b) Those seized with a defendant and which fall under section 6 of the national prohibition act. These are confiscated but may not be used until court procedings involving the defendant are completed.

Brig. Gen. Glassford indicated yesterday that he may take steps to gain use of some of the machines falling in the second classification. They are now sold at public auction.

A number of local policemen assigned to dry law work are now using their own machines in their work. Under the current district appropriation, gas, oil and other expenses thus incurred, are met. However, for the fiscal year beginning July 1, no provision is made for such use of the personal cars of the policemen. This is a situation Glassford hopes to relieve by use of the confiscated machines.

Alleged Murderer Indicted.

Sims Richardson, colored, alleged to have shot and killed Aloysious Brown, also colored, January 23 in a fight in Burdens court, yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury of first-degree murder.

Oil Station Man Injured And Bound by Holdup Pair

A filling station manager was bound and gagged last night by two bandits, who knocked him down when he attempted to resist a holdup. The men escaped with $25 from the cash register of the station at 1731 Kalorama road northwest.

The two men, both colored, drove into the station about 8:15 o'clock last night, Charles Wade, manager of the place told police. They asked for five gallons of gasoline and offered a $20 bill in payment. When he went inside the station they followed him inside, and one of them pointed a pistol at him.

Mr. Wade yelled for help, and one of the men knocked him down. They then bound him and gagged him with rags found in the station and dragged him out to an automobile, where they left him. A short time later Mr. Wade managed to work the gag out of his mouth and called again for help. His cries brought Bernard Brown, colored, of 2206 I street northwest. Mr. Wade was treated at Emergency Hospital for bruises and contusions on his face and back.

RIGHT TO IMPOUND CARS IS SUPPORTED BY TRAFFIC GROUP

AUTOS LEFT ON STREET ARE TARGET OF ACTION

The delegating of authority to the District Commissioners to order the impounding of abandoned automobiles or automobiles which constitute traffic obstructions or hazards was favored last night by the traffic advisory council at a meeting in the headquarters of the American Automobile Association.

The council adopted a report of a subcommittee, headed by George Graham, which proposed that authority should be given to the Commissioners to promulgate, after public hearing, "such reasonable rules and regulations as they may deem necessary and subject to such reasonable penalties as they may prescribe for the impounding of automobiles."

It was explained by George W. Offutt, chairman of the traffic advisory council, that the object of the proposed authority is chiefly the elimination of cars which have been parked on the streets for a long period of time, which constitute traffic obstructions.

Asks Action by Congress.

In the event that no such authority is embodied in existing legislation, the council suggested that authority be obtained by an act of Congress.

Mr. Offutt explained that it is not the design of the council to have automobiles impounded for minor traffic violations, such as overtime parking or parking in a restricted area.

The bill proposed by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride for the impounding of automobiles was discarded by the subcommittee, which studied the question and decided the bill "was not the proper bill to be introduced to govern the matter of impounding automobiles."

Highway Gas Vending Hit.

The committee which decided on the recommendation was composed of Mr. Graham, Edward S. Hege, Harry M. Bedell and Charles C. Collins.

Mr. Collins dissented with the findings of the committee. Those who attended the committee hearings were Inspector E. W. Brown, assistant superintendent of police in charge of traffic; Traffic Director W. A. Van Duzer, and his assistant, M. O. Eldridge.

Abolition of the practice of vending gasoline from trucks on public highways was favored by the council on the grounds that the double parking, necessarily involved by the practice, constitutes a traffic hazard.

Nurse Oversupply Here Is Disclosed

With the present oversupply of trained nurses in Washington, the average nurse can expect only 114 days' employment in any given year, according to a census taken by the American Nurses Association.

The figures show that in 1930 there was 1 nurse for every 169 persons in the city. In 1900 there was 1 nurse for 1,489 persons.

It was also indicated that more nurses are being turned out each year by the hospital training schools.

Sentence of Two Boys In Burglary Try Delayed

Two boys, found guilty of attempting to break into a gasoline filling station at Eighteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast several nights ago, will not be sentenced, Judge John P. McMahon indicated yesterday in Police Court, until he had a chance to investigate their records.

The boys are Lawrence Lipscomb and Thomas Redmond. Persons living close to the gas station summoned police when they heard the sounds of blows as an entrance to the station was being made.

DISTRICT BODY GETS AUTHORITY TO STUDY SLASH IN EXPENSES

Committee Named to Suggest Economies in Personnel and Office Budgets.

SEVEN OFFICIALS FORM BODY OF INVESTIGATORS

Daniel Donovan Chairman; Meetings May Propose Changes in Methods.

The District Commissioners late yesterday created a permanent economy committee for the purpose of pruning out unnecessary expenses in the operation of the District government. It shall be the duty of the committee to study economy measures, and thereafter make recommendations to the Commissioners.

The committee is composed of seven District officials, and is headed by Daniel J. Donovan, auditor and budget officer. Other members are Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the Board of Commissioners; Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools; Harold W. Baker, director of construction; William P. Richards, tax assessor, and George S. Wilson, director of public welfare.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, said it is the hope of the Commissioners that numerous small economies will be effected throughout the District government as a result of the new policy. The idea originated with the Commissioners, he said, and was not suggested by Congress.

Authority of Committee.

The committee will have authority to recommend elimination of personnel in various departments, if it sees fit, and even reorganizations, such as the Engineer Department shakeup which stirred up such a row recently. Its chief value, however, will be tested in the slashing of departmental estimates when the Commissioners prepare the annual budget for the next fiscal year.

Besides seeking to economize through elimination of jobs throughout the Government, the committee will try to slash expenses in the following activities:

Purchase of supplies, equipment and construction material; utilization of supplies, material and equipment on hand; purchase and use of motor vehicles; projects in contemplation, and "covering generally the field of all matters relating to operating costs of the District government."

Meetings of Committee.

The committee will meet on the call of the chairman, and shall have the right to call before it heads of departments and other employes for information. It was also authorized "to investigate methods in effect in the several departments, to recommend improvements therein, and to make any other recommendations as in its judgment may result in economies in the administration of public business."

The Commissioners declined to comment on what relation this policy has to the Mapes tax bills, the proposed reduction in the Federal contribution to the District, or to the decrease in the District reserve fund during the last several years.

W. G. Wilding, third assistant auditor, will serve as secretary to the committee.

American U. Wins In Rutgers Debate

Local Team of Murphy, Tucker and Marcus Is Still Undefeated.

American University defeated Rutgers University in debate last night at Hurst Hall on the local campus by a vote of 2 to 1 of the judges.

The American U. undefeated team, consisting of Max Tucker, Robert Marcus and Arthur Murphy, upheld the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, That Capitalism as a System of Economic Organization Is Unsound."

A women's team of American University met a women's team from Syracuse University yesterday afternoon at Hurst Hall in a "no decision" match. The local college was represented by Charlotte Magee and Winona Buchanan, who had the negative of the same question debated by the men.

TRADE BOARD GROUP FAVORS CAR MERGER

The adoption by Congress of the street car merger bill was favored yesterday in a report of the Public Utilities Committee of the Washington Board of Trade. The findings of the committee will be given to the board of directors of the association for further action.

The committee, headed by John J. Esch, decided "it is not necessary for the pending legislation to impose additional burdens of restrictions upon the transportation companies. On the contrary, the business interest calls for relief from existing unfair burdens."

If the transportation companies should wish to engage in taxicab operations, the report said, they should be allowed if the Public Utilities Commission should consider it desirable in the public interest. As to the use of transportation buses being used for sightseeing purposes, the committee decided it would be uneconomical and undesirable to prohibit such operation.

The committee also reported that the transportation companies should be liberally relieved from existing paving burdens. "We find considerable differences in the estimates as to the effects of the provisions on this point as carried in the bill recommended by the Public Utilities Commission," the report said.

"We understand that the objection of the District Commissioners to these provisions are based on the ground that the existing budget of the District of Columbia would make the District unable to assume the payment of the prospective paving costs.

"We believe, however, that such an objection should not stand in the way of adoption of reasonable provisions on this subject. It is to the public interest that the District should for the future assume responsibility for its proper share of paving costs under such reasonable provisions as will further the general purposes * * * of facilitating the improvement of the service rendered to the public.

"We regard the provisions, as contained in the bills as recommended by the Public Utilities Commission and agreed to by the transportation companies, to be reasonable and desirable in the public interest."

Long Jail Terms Given Two Slayers

Alonzo Dunbar Sentenced to 15 Years; Watkins Must Serve 10.

Two colored men were given heavy jail terms yesterday when they were brought up before Justice F. D. Letts, in the District Supreme Court, to receive sentence following their pleas of guilty to manslaughter.

They were Alonzo Dunbar, who shot and killed Cicero Dodson, colored, on September 19 of last year, and William Watkins, colored, who stabbed to death Wesley Phillips, colored on October 25 of last year.

Dunbar was given fifteen years, after Justice Letts had remarked that he found it "hard to work up any sympathy for gunmen." He had been indicted for first degree murder, but was permitted to plead to manslaughter. In the Watkins case, where a first degree murder indictment had also been returned by the grand jury, Justice Letts imposed a ten-year sentence. Watkins' mother came here from Atlanta, Ga., to make a plea for clemency for her son.

NEW HEARING TODAY ORDERED ON BUDGET

Additional Item in District Supply Bill Will Be Considered.

Additional hearings on the District's $47,000,000 budget were ordered for 10:30 o'clock this morning by Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the House District appropriations subcommittee.

The committee announced hearings closed Friday, but when need for consideration of an additional item arose, Chairman Cannon ordered another hearing. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, will appear before the committee.

Representative Cannon last night denied reports that final decision has been reached on any District item Provisions of the bill will not be determined by the committee members until they start marking the measure next week, he pointed out.

Before taking up the budget Mr Cannon announced, however, that no item will be increased over budget estimates, except where an "emergency" is clearly shown.

The committee has postponed its tour of school building sites and streets scheduled for repair until Monday. It will begin drafting the local supply bill shortly thereafter.

Death Sentences Given 3 in Slaying

Justice Letts Overrules New Trial Motions and Appeals Are Noted.

Overruling motions for a new trial, Justice F. D. Letts, in the District Supreme Court yesterday sentenced Charles E. Washington, Leonard A. Layton and William C. Robinson, all colored, to death by electrocution at the District Jail, June 15.

The trio was found guilty of first degree murder for the slaying of Mannie Solomon, taxicab driver, at Union and O streets southwest last June.

As Justice Letts called the men, one by one, to the trial table to receive sentence, the mother of Washington became hysterical and had to be carried from the courtroom. She was under the care of a maid at the courthouse for an hour.

John J. Sirica, assistant United States attorney, who prosecuted the case, opposed the motion for a new trial, while Attorneys E. Russell Kelly, Charles Williams and Cedric Johnson, who was retained yesterday by Robinson's mother, argued that the admission of pictures showing Solomon's body was prejudicial to the interests of the defendants. All attorneys noted appeals.

Accused Club Manager To Face Trial March 16

William C. Evans, said to be the manager of the Crystal Caverns Club, 2001 Eleventh street northwest, will be tried March 16 on charges of failing to pay the entertainment license tax, and with giving a vaudeville show at other than the hours designated by the District laws.

Evans is said to have staged dances on three separate dates without paying the entertainment tax, and he is also faced with a charge of presenting vaudeville shows on Sundays, at hours not permitted by the regulations. He entered a plea of not guilty when he was arraigned in Police Court yesterday.

District Buys Chinese Laundry.

The District Commissioners yesterday authorized the purchase of a Chinese laundry as an addition to the Municipal Center site for $15,000 The property, known as lot 825, square 533, was owned by Lee Sue Wah.

Bear Market in Garbage Grease Ends at Half Cent

The serious depression in garbage grease ended yesterday with a dull thud as the District Commissioners decided to accept the only offer made for a million pounds of the stuff accumulated at the city's refuse plant at Cherry Hill, Va.

Several weeks ago bids were called for, but none was received, and the District refuse department became worried because the Cherry Hill tanks were overrunning with grease. Several days later the Century Stearic Acid Candle Works, Inc., New York, offered a half cent a pound for the product, f. o. b. Cherry Hill.

"This price we believe low," reported Morris Hacker, supervisor of the city refuse department, "but it seems to be the best we can get. Five tank cars would amount to about $1,500."

MAN ESCAPES DEATH PENALTY IN ATTACK; 25-YEAR TERM GIVEN

Sightseeing Auto Operator Was Found Guilty on Girl's Charges.

HE PROTESTS INNOCENCE ON RECEIVING SENTENCE

Glassford Gets Complaints on Police Investigation Made in Case.

Found guilty by a jury two weeks ago of an offense that carried with it possible capital punishment, Harry Clay Robertson, 30-year-old sightseeing automobile operator, yesterday was sentenced to serve 25 years in the penitentiary by Justice F. D. Letts in the District Supreme Court.

Robertson was accused by Miss Margaret Soblotney, of Uniontown, Pa., of a criminal attack upon her last June. She testified that Robertson inveigled her into getting into his automobile on a pretense of getting her a job.

Charge of Attack.

Once in the car, she said, she was taken to some woods beyond Anacostia where she was attacked. A physician and attendants at the Women's Bureau related her physical condition when they examined her the day following the occurrence.

No sooner had Robertson been sentenced than he launched into an earnest protest to Justice Letts. He asked that the witnesses who appeared against him be investigated and he asserted that he was "an innocent man." Justice Letts said that the proper authorities would take cognizance of anything that Robertson might show to them in connection with the suggested investigation. Robertson's young and attractive wife was in the courtroom when her husband was sentenced.

Claims for New Trial.

Among the grounds cited for a new trial was that Julian Richards, assistant United States attorney, had called Robertson a "libertine" and other names.

As a result of the police investigation of the case, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford has before him complaints against three policemen attached to the First Precinct, who are alleged to have been neglectful in arresting Robertson and failed to gather necessary avidence in the case. The brunt of the investigation of the case was borne by Mr. Richards, the prosecutor.
